Key advisory body dumped

Back to bad old days: NDP

The provincial government has decided to eliminate a key government research and advisory body set up to ensure a balanced approach to the management of B.C.'s resources.

The decision to dissolve the Environment and Land Use Commission Secretariat brought a warning today from NDP environment critic Bob Skelly that mining and forestry interests will now be given whatever they want with little thought given to the environment.

The ELUC secretariat includes biologists and other environmental specialists and is the staff arm of ELUC.

The secretariat conducts research and other studies and makes recommendations to ELUC, which is composed of cabinet ministers under the chairmanship of Environment Minister Rafe Mair.

The news that the secretariat is to be chopped came today.

The secretariat's 27 members will be given other jobs within the environment ministry.

Skelly, the MLA for Port Alberni, said he believes the order to eliminate the agency came from Mair.

He said the ELUC secretariat has been critical of recent government decisions, including one to go ahead with the Cheekeye-Dunsmuir hydro transmission line to Vancouver Island.

ELUC and its secretariat were set up in 1973 by the NDP.

Bob Williams, then lands and forests minister, said the ELUC would focus on regional land management and land use problems.

Its mandate called for it to assess land and resource usage, including mining, forestry, agriculture, urban land development, recreation, fishing, hunting and other outdoor activities.

Neither Mair or his deputy were immediately available to comment on the decision to wipe out the secretariat.

Frederic rips into U.S.

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Hurricane Frederic battered the Gulf Coast with torrential rain and winds of up to 210 kilometres per hour today, smashing cars and buildings, snapping power lines and causing extensive flooding before being downgraded to a tropical storm.

At least eight deaths were attributed to the storm and hundreds were injured.

Looting broke out in downtown Mobile and the neighboring town of Prichard in the wake of the worst hurricane in a decade. Armed National Guardsmen were sent in and Prichard police were told to "shoot to kill."

Frederic weakened and was downgraded to a tropical-storm as it moved inland through southeast Mississippi and into Alabama, with top winds of 96 km/h.

At noon EDT, the storm was centred just northeast of Tuscaloosa, Ala. It was moving just east of due north at 32 km/h and was expected to turn to the northeast later.

Alabama Gov. Fob James toured the area by helicopter and said he will ask the White House to declare Mobile and Baldwin counties a disaster area. Damage is estimated at up to $100 million in Florida and $50 million in Mississippi.

Mobile and neighboring Pascagoula, Miss., bore the brunt of the hurricane which first hit land at Dauphin Island, a resort island eight kilometres long that was reported "sliced in half."

Hundreds were injured from flying debris although half a million people had fled coastal areas in advance of the storm. Damage along the coast was enormous. Estimates in Mississippi alone were running into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Large areas along the coast were without power as the savage winds broke lines and poles. A DC-3 aircraft was blown several hundred feet from its parking place at the Mobile airport and left upside down in the middle of a street.

Los Angeles smothers under blanket of smog

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It is not safe to go outside and breathe in Pasadena as some of the worst smog ever to hit the Los Angeles area hangs over the eastern suburbs like a deadly pall.

For the first time in history, air quality officials on Wednesday issued a "hazardous" warning for air over parts of Los Angeles. "Hazardous" is the worst category of smog, and even healthy adults are advised to stay inside.

Wednesday was the sixth straight day of heavy smog over the area, and the siege was expected to continue through the weekend.

To make matters worse, temperatures have been in the 100s, it has been humid, a bus strike has been putting more cars on the freeways and a 2,200-acre brush fire was burning in the hills above Pasadena.

The air quality management district ordered a 20-per-cent reduction in industrial emissions as of midnight Wednesday and urged people to stay off the freeways.

Air quality inspectors said they would rope off company parking lots today to cars with fewer than three occupants.

"The handwriting is on the wall," said a spokesman for the South Coast Air Quality Management District, saying there was no way the region would be spared very heavy smog for the seventh consecutive day.

"It's terrible," said Mary Jean Pew, acting president of Immaculate Heart College. "The students and faculty are gasping.

"One of the faculty members who has emphysema had to go to the doctor to get some stuff, he was having such trouble breathing.

"All these politician think they're doing something about it and meanwhile we suffer."

Air pollution officials ordered a 20 percent cutback in emissions by industry beginning at midnight.

Jim Birakos, deputy chief executive officer of the district, issued a "special appeal to make every effort to curtail driving and to share rides as much as possible."

"This is certainly the most intense and severe smog condition we have seen in 10 years," he said, promising to field a full force of inspectors to check smokestacks and parking lots.

Commuters could not turn to buses, however, because the Rapid Transit District — the nation's largest bus system serving four Southern California counties — has been shut down by a strike for 19 days.

"It is just terribly uncomfortable," said high school teacher Edie Jacobson of Altadena, a mountainside suburb over Pasadena, one of the hardest hit areas.

"I try to avoid it and the smog starts controlling my life — where I go and what I do. I get very tired and the children get tired. It appears to me that on smoggy days they don't learn as well, or behave normally."

Ferry swung out too wide

The Queen of Alberni ran aground in Active Pass Aug. 9 because its skipper swung too far to starboard to give another ferry room to get by.

A Transport Canada investigation report released today has found that an error in judgment by Capt. Al Bahry, 51, master of the Alberni caused the ferry to run aground on Collinson Reef in the pass.

But the error by Capt. Bahry, who had been master of the ferry for just two days, did not amount to negligence, the Canadian Coast Guard inquiry report concludes.

Capt. Bahry has not yet received a copy of the inquiry findings. He said he was unable to comment as to whether he would contradict the report or dispute its findings.

Although it was only his second day as master of the Alberni, he has been at sea for 29 years, 13 of them as a deck officer and 10 as master with B.C. Ferries, when he was in command of various ferries between Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen.

The coast guard inquiry also said the presence of fishing vessels in Active Pass was not a factor in the grounding. A separate report on the issue of small boat safety in the pass will be handed down after coast guard officials hold meetings with all interested groups.

The passenger, truck and car ferry was sailing from Tsawwassen to Swartz Bay near Victoria with 96 passengers, a crew of 22, and 74 vehicles on board when she struck the reef at 7:10 a.m. on a calm, sunny day.

All on board were taken to boats and then picked up by the ferry Queen of Tsawwassen, which the Alberni had just passed. No one was injured but damage to the ferry and vehicles aboard her were heavy.

Nine killed in Etna blast

CATANIA, Sicily (AP) — The death toll in Mount Etna's first fatal eruption this century climbed to nine today and rescue workers feared more bodies might still be buried under "rocks as big as houses" near the volcano's summit.

Three more badly dismembered bodies were found near the main crater. Six bodies were recovered after the volcanic explosion Wednesday. All the victims were Italians.

Meanwhile, surgeons performed amputations on a number of injured survivors. More than 20 persons were injured, including tourists from Britain, Spain and Switzerland. At least four were reported in critical condition following emergency surgery.

A rescue official said that if there are more bodies they may never be found "because from what we've seen so far, some victims must literally have been blown to pieces."

Franco Elmi, 35, an alpine guide, said he saw a "huge fireball" land on a Land Rover, leaving viturally no trace of the vehicle.

"There were about 30 tourists in our group and we all began running toward the bus," he said. "But then another big rock hit a woman who was ahead of me and the next minute she was gone."

Debt interest rates forcing gov't cuts

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Interest payments on the national debt have forced the federal government to put the brakes on spending and may cause increased taxes if a balanced budget is not approached by the mid-1980s, Treasury Board Chairman Sinclair Stevens says.

Stevens, responsible for approving government spending, said if past spending trends had continued the gross national debt would almost double to more than $100 billion by 1983.

The spending deficit for the first four months of the current fiscal year was $5.8 billion, an 11-per-cent increase over the same period last year.

"We can just not pass that kind of a legacy onto our children for years to come," Stevens told a meeting of the Financial Management Institute, an organization of public servants.

"We're carrying on in a fashion that no family could carry on for long in terms of their own spending," he said. "That is why we must set our minds to working towards a balanced budget by the mid-1980s."

One of the cabinet's most outspoken advocates of smaller government, Stevens said "We must put the brakes on spending or cut, literally, the take home pay of every Canadian."

The government is expected to spend about $11 billion more this year than it takes in, about a quarter of its budget. Stevens said that, along with an anticipated $7 billion trade deficit, was the most serious problem facing Canada.

The minister said government expenditures in the past had been greater than predicted because of inaccurate estimates and poor planning. That would no longer be tolerated, he said.

"It still seems that some are not quite willing to accept that there are new boys in town running the show," he told the audience, composed of public servants that are supervised by Stevens' department.

A facility in Prince Rupert to dry grain was a classic example of government waste, he said. The estimated cost when the project started in 1977 was $705,000.

The price had risen since to $3,150,000 and after the

High bank rate no cure: Galbraith

VANCOUVER (CP) — Raising bank interest rates to control inflation is "one of the major economic mistakes of our time," economist John Kenneth Galbraith said Wednesday.

Galbraith, here to address a Washington State Bar Association convention, said higher borrowing costs do not affect major inflationary causes — large corporations and unions.

Instead, he said, they merely hurt "little guys" like those in the housing industry and individual consumers.

"All modern governments of the West such as Canada, the United States and Britain are relying excessively on interest rates as a control on inflation," he said. "It has a nice, reassuring, conservative ring to it, seems respectable and can be done through the banks without legislation."

Governments can better control inflation by tightening budgets and raising taxes, particularly on high-priced consumer items, Galbraith said.

In his address to the convention, the Canadian-born professor at Harvard University in Cambridge, Mass., said government intervention in the economy is a concept under attack from "right-wing revival."

He said economic fine-tuning techniques used by governments after the Second World War are no longer as effective because of the increased importance of factors such as control of oil prices by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, more concentrated corporate power and stronger unions.

The answer, Galbraith said, is for more government intervention, not less.

"The prescription for U.S. (and Canadian) problems is a tighter budget, higher taxes on high-income consumer goods, an elementary system of rationing of energy and wage-and-price restraints," he said.

"It isn't possible for a country to survive in the modern world without wage-and-price restraints."

Much of the noise emanating from what appears to be a huge conservative segment of society is merely the voice of the affluent who can afford to go without government services, he said:

"Criticism of economic matters seems to be tied to income. The voice of one articulate banker is roughly equal to several thousand welfare mothers."

the decision to eliminate it will be a big loss to the balanced approach towards resource management.

He said the government has obviously chosen to replace the secretariat by increasing its reliance on inter-ministerial co-ordinating committees.

"However this could be offset if the government allocates single ministries to be the lead agencies in certain or specific problems," he said.

O'Gorman said the environment ministry proposes to set up new branches to take over the duties of the secretariat.

Asked if he is disappointed by the elimination of the secretariat, O'Gorman said : "I believe in what we have been doing here and the importance of a neutral co-ordinating body. That view is shared by all the people working here. We all joined for that reason."

Skelly was more blunt. He said the move means a return to the "bad old days".

"It means mining and forestry will get whatever they want while other environmental concerns go begging," he predicted.

Skelly said he believes the Agricultural Land Commission will be the next environmental watchdog to be eliminated by the Socreds.

Captives set free

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — Eleven black Roman Catholic mission workers abducted from Zimbabwe Rhodesia by guerrillas arrived in Johannesburg on Tuesday after being freed in Mozambique. Church sources said they will return to Zimbabwe Rhodesia on Wednesday. Brother Herman Toma, two nurses and eight sisters were abducted July 18 from the Marymount mission, close to the Mozambique border.

IBEW short-circuits garbage schedules

Garbage collection was way behind schedule in Victoria today as a result of Thursday's picket activity by members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

The pickets, who struck twice, were "just resting" today according to IBEW business representative, Jack Zettler.

The 15 city electrical workers disrupted garbage service Thursday by setting up picket lines early in the morning, lifting them after four hours and then placing them on again a few hours later.

About 170 members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees honored the picket lines at the Garbally Road works yard and the garbage wharf at Store Street.

Garbage was held up in the trucks overnight and workers were trying to catch up today.

Pickets also hit two road construction projects at Fernwood and Kings and Finlayson and Quadra.

The tiny union has agreement from CUPE and all building trades unions to honor picket lines. It could shut down any city operation, including city hall, the Memorial Arena, and municipal parkades.

Zettler will not discuss union picketing strategy, counting on surprise for maximum effectiveness.

A last ditch attempt to find a settlement with the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association failed Monday when the union rejected an offer that was comparable to what the CUPE unions settled on.

Zettler said it amounted to less than they had been offered in earlier talks. The union is looking for immediate parity with B.C. Hydro electrical workers.

new government took over in June, Stevens was asked for another $731,000. He said he refused to approve more funds until there was a thorough investigation.

"I am absolutely shocked, and that is putting the word mildly, at the overruns on projects we are asked to approve," he said. "It must not be allowed to occur unless there are very clear reasons why such an overrun has occurred."

Wednesday, in announcing the $5.8 billion spending deficit for the first four months of the current year, Finance Minister John Crosbie predicted a year-end spending deficit of $11.3 billion. Last year's deficit was $11.7 billion.

Between April 1 and July 31, the government spent $16.6 billion. Revenues for the same period were $10.8 billion.

During July, the government's income was $3.4 billion and expenditures were $3.6 billion. This left a deficit of $214 million, a substantial drop from the $794 million deficit reported in July, 1978.

The largest single federal expenditure during the first four months of the fiscal year was interest payments on the government's debts, which amounted to $2.6 billion. This was followed by unemployment insurance benefits at $2.5 billion, old age security payments at $2 billion, defence at $1.2 billion and transfers to the provinces to cover welfare payments at $1 billion.

Less than half of revenues for the four months ending July 31 were personal income taxes. Personal taxes accounted for $4.3 billion of government revenues, or 40 per cent.

Other major sources of income were: Corporation taxes 17 per cent, excise tax and duty 12 per cent, manufacturers' sales tax nine per cent and returns of government investments, four per cent.

Stevens had said earlier this summer the government's deficit is proportionally three times higher than that of the U.S. government.

That was one of the reasons the government wanted to sell Petro-Canada, he said, adding that the government has decided on five other Crown companies to put into private hands.

He gave no indication of which companies he is thinking of, saying only that the names will be announced about the end of the month.

Meanwhile, Canada Development Corp. president Tony Hampson announced the CDC would be interested in buying Petro-Canada if the federal government does decide to sell.

was "hauled up into Georgeson Bay to give the oncoming Queen of Tsawwassen more manoeuvring room, thus allowing the strong ebb tide to set the Queen of Alberni in the direction of Collinson Reef, corrective measures being taken too late to prevent grounding."

In addition to Bahry, investigators interviewed David Cudlipp, 24, the second mate of the Alberni and seaman George McKitterick, 45. David Lloyd Myerscough, 41, master of the Tsawwassen and the vessel's second mate, Martin Guy Caine, 57, also were interviewed.

The report said Cudlipp had control of the Alberni until Bahry took over while entering Active Pass. At the time the vessel was travelling at its full speed of 22 knots.

The Alberni was pulled free of the reef late the same day she was grounded and towed to Tsawwassen where the vehicles were removed. The ferry will be out of service until October.

Quake sweeps half of town into sea

Times News Services

JAKARTA — The most powerful earthquake in two years plunged half an Indonesian town into the sea, officials reported, and heavy casualties were feared.

Tsunami waves generated by the quake roared ashore on the remote Indonesian island of Yapen, destroying at least 400 houses and leaving 8,000 people homeless, officials said today.

Unconfirmed reports said about 100 people were killed by the waves Wednesday that were set in motion by a quake registering 8.0 on the open-ended Richter scale.

The tiny island, situated north of Indonesia's West Irian province 3,700 kms east of Jakarta, was in the immediate vicinity of the quake's epicenter and was the worst hit populated area, the Meteorological and Geological Institute in Jakarta said.

Yapen, with a total of 40,000 people, is in Cendrawasih Gulf, on the northern coast of Irian Jaya, the western half of New Guinea.

Half the houses in Ansus were swallowed up by the gulf, interior department spokesman Faisal Taimin reported. But he said there was no word on casualties yet.

Taimin said the quake also caused major damage in the town of Serui, about 65 kms east of Ansus, where it demolished the district government and legislative buildings, three schools, a church, a police barracks and other buildings.

B.C. coal giveaway charged

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Social Credit government is involved in a multi-million-dollar coal giveaway to multinational corporations that is making British Columbia "the new middle East", New Democrat leader Dave Barrett charged Wednesday.

"I don't know why they are doing it but I would have to ask and the people of British Columbia would have to ask if this is a political payment to someone," Barrett told the annual meeting of the International Woodworkers of America.

Barrett called for the creation of a coal marketing board to guard B.C. resource interests and an immediate $1-a-ton increase in royalties charged companies exporting B.C. coal.

B.C. currently charges $1.50 a ton on coal mined in the province and does not charge for leases granted to non-provincial energy companies, Barrett said.

"This is a government embarked on a program that has allowed oil companies to gain control of the coal industry without a penny return to the province," he charged.

Gulf Canada Ltd. has 492 coal lease requests pending and now holds 401 leases, Shell Petroleum has 26 leases pending and currently holds 38; Esso Canada has applied for 86 coal leases and British Petroleum has applied for 37, he said.

"They don't have to pay for these," said Barrett. "The terms of the lease require them to spend only $5 in work per hectare the first year. If they drive a tractor onto the area and let sit, that's all they have to do."

Barrett said low royalties and lax leasing agreements allow multinational companies to speculate on leases and then sit on the resources.

They are "just waiting for the price to rise, like they sat on oil in the Middle East. We are the new Middle East."

The former NDP government had instituted a moratorium on new leases in 1975 and announced coal royalties would rise to $2.50 a ton, an order not enforced after Premier Bill Bennett's government took power in 1976.

Barrett said a provincial coal marketing board similar to one now regulating the sale of B.C. natural gas would both safeguard B.C.'s mineral base and guarantee sufficient revenues from international companies holding leases on the province's land.

Patient 'willed' death

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — A New Westminster coroner's jury was told Wednesday that a 23-year-old Riverview patient may have "willed herself" to death since no positive cause of death can be found.

The jury made no recommendation after concluding Patricia Ann Green died from natural causes in Riverview Hospital Feb. 13, eight days after she was admitted.

A small amount of the tranquillizer chlorpromazine was found in Green's body but it was not enough to cause her death. RCMP investigators found no evidence of foul play.

"People find it hard to talk about, but it does seem possible for some people to will themselves to death," said Dr. John Tainsh, Green's psychiatrist while she stayed at Riverview.

"Look what happens to some happily married couples," he said. "One person dies and then the other dies a few days later. That could be seen as willing yourself to death."

Hooker fine first in year

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 21-year-old prostitute was fined $200 in provincial court Wednesday in the first soliciting conviction in Vancouver in more than a year.

Maria Bedo, 21, of Toronto, was one of about 30 people charged earlier this year in a police crackdown on prostitution.

She was charged May 14, after accosting a plainclothes policeman at a downtown corner.

Police have been stymied in their efforts to gain soliciting convictions because the courts have found prostitutes were not pressing or persistent in approaching potential clients.

On Aug. 15, for example, Judge Kerry Smith dismissed charges against one woman saying her conversations with an undercover policeman were "astute bargaining" rather than soliciting.

But this time Smith said Miss Bedo was pressing because she was too aggressive toward clients.

In finding her guilty, Smith said two witnesses saw her take policeman by the arm.

IWA job deaths report slammed by WCB chief

VANCOUVER (CP) — The International Woodworkers of America is playing politics with an inaccurate attack on the Workers' Compensation Board, board chairman Dr. Adam Little charged Wednesday.

He said the board obtained a copy of a union report after it was presented to the union's annual convention by Verna Ledger, safety and health director of the IWA's western region.

Ledger and the report claimed 63 woodworkers were killed on the job in British Columbia last year and charged the board is "strangely silent" about the death toll.

Little said ledger's remarks and report are "misleading in tone and in substance." Board date shows that 52 workers were killed in 1978 and three others died of unrelated heart attacks, he said.

Ledger said 47 loggers were among those killed last year while the board data shows 40 were killed. Only 32 of those deaths were related to normal industrial hazards, Little said.

In a letter to Jack Munro, IWA regional president, Little said: "The board is angered and disappointed with the substance of this report. We are angered because we believe that Ms. Ledger, the safety and health committee of the IWA and the IWA leadership itself know that the report is inaccurate. "We are disappointed because irresponsible accusations and public posturings such as this serve only to create an atmosphere of confrontation."

Little said the board increased services and staff in the accident and compensation areas.

Trial disrupted by court strip

NELSON (UPC) — The arson conspiracy trial of John J. Verigin enters its fourth day today in the courtroom where five Sons of Freedom women stripped in court Wednesday while singing a Russian hymn.

The first Freedomite woman to strip had only moments before left the stand after testifying she had been ordered by Verigin to burn the home of Stephan Sorokin, the leader of the Reformed Doukhobors sect who were formerly Sons of Freedom.

Clothes were sent flying as sheriffs plunged into the crowded gallery to seize the women and remove them from the courtroom.

The Crown rested its case Wednesday and dropped a fourth charge against Verigin of conspiracy to commit arson when a witness could not be located.

In testimony Wednesday a confession allegedly written by another defendant, Peter P. Astaforoff, was read into the court record. He made no objection to the statement being read and did not deny writing it. It implicated Verigin in the burning of a $500,000 community hall, owned by the sect Verigin heads.

An RCMP officer who headed the conspiracy investigation testified he did not interview Verigin nor any member of his organizationbefore charges were laid.

Laskin still in hospital

VANCOUVER (CP) - Chief Justice Bora Laskin, 66, of the Supreme Court of Canada remained in good condition in hospital here Wednesday, but there was no word on when he might be released. Laskin underwent a hernia operation Aug. 22 and an abdominal operation Aug. 31.

Whose views?

As job "actions" brew among the B.C. ferry workers and Victoria city electricians, employees of the B.C. Buildings Corporation and the people who write government cheques, the labor movement faces an increasing struggle to maintain credibility with the public.

For years the public at large has tended to believe that some labor unions have grown too powerful and are too often able to hold the public to ransom through strikes and work-to-rule campaigns.

A recent Gallup poll indicates, however, that the union movement is facing as much dissent from within as from outsiders. The poll shows that in union households, 57 per cent of persons interviewed believed that union leadership does not accurately reflect the views of their members. Only about one-quarter (28 per cent) believed the leadership does reflect membership views.

They may have more to do with the leadership's firm determination to lead the unions into the political paths of the NDP. In an earlier Gallup poll this year, union households were asked whether labor should engage in partisan political activity. The results were remarkably similar to those of the most recent poll: 59 per cent said unions should not, 27 per cent said they should.

Evidence of this attitude was provided by the last federal election. Despite the CLC's best efforts, the NDP failed to make a dramatic breakthrough. Its numbers of seats and votes was improved somewhat, but it made no progress in moving into new areas of the country nor did it realize its long-held ambition to push its votes over the magic 20 per cent mark.

Most unionists are apparently not especially interested in partisan politics and don't want their unions spending their money that way. If they did, there's no guarantee that the NDP would be the party they would choose.

It's ironic that the efforts of the unions have raised most members' wages to the point where they're more likely to respond to the lure of Joe Clark's mortgage tax deductibility plan than to Ed Broadbent's call to help the poor.

The union leadership thinks the solution to this political dichotomy between leader and member is more political education to show rank-and-file union members the value of the NDP.

Perhaps, however, it should consider that many of its members might prefer that unions concentrated on providing more services to them.

Do it themselves

The International Woodworkers of America should themselves become more actively involved in safety training for union members working in the woods and mills.

During its convention in Vancouver, the union's safety and health director for the western region tore a strip off government, companies, the media and the Workers' Compensation Board for being strangely silent while 67 people last year and 25 this year have been killed.

The union says that companies are responsible for training and that in many cases it is non-existant; in the others, the length of time isn't enough. As a result, the IWA is launching an advertising campaign to inform the government and the public about the issue.

Statistics show the safety record in the forests is deplorable but why doesn't it occur to a union as large and wealthy as the IWA that it also has a responsiblity towards safety? Not only to inform the public and its members about lack of it, but actually to participate in providing, or helping to provide more competent safety programs.

The union says it is interested in a Swedish training program where the government requires novice loggers to complete a three month training course. Maybe the IWA would be concerned enough to establish such a training center and then seek other union, government and business money to help finance it. That would be far more worthwhile than an ad campaign.

It's bean a while

You all remember those classic lines. Beans, beans, beans, the musical fruit; the more you eat the more you. . . etc. Right? Well maybe no more. The federal minister of agriculture is spending $36,000 to develop a bean hybrid that will require a re-writing of the kid's jingle.

If the researchers have any measure of success there will be some disappointed people. Mel Brooks, for one. Without their world reknowned gastronomic side-effects, that noisy scene in his money making movie Blazing Saddles would have flopped — at least one case where silence would not have been golden.

And what about the companies who can beans. Will they have to go to the expense of providing labels to identify which cans contain the exploding variety.

Those seeking alternate methods of producing energy will have one less source to investigate.

One can't help wishing the researchers would leave the bean alone. There is just too much change going on these days. At least with beans, you know where you are after eating them. In pain.

Softening on civil servants

OTTAWA — "Why couldn't we add to next year's income tax forms a section people could fill out as a claim to buy so many shares of Petro-Canada? They then could add the cost of those shares to their taxes due, and pay both with a single cheque."

This idea, although not in those exact words, was tossed out during the discussions of the inner cabinet at Jasper last week. It may not be a good idea. It may not be workable. All you can see for certain is that it's the kind of idea — too novel, too flashy — that no civil servants ever would toss out.

Joe Clark's attitude toward the civil service has undergone, oddly so for a land-locked Albertan, a sea-change. In place of yesterday's political suspicion there is, today, intellectual skepticism.

Not red, colorless

Last June, Clark and his ministers arrived in office convinced that behind the welcoming smiles of many of their civil servants there lurked the paint grimace of a closet Liberal. This paranoia faded fast. During the transition itself, and at the Tokyo and Lusaka conferences, the Clark crowd realized both, that they themselves knew almost nothing about government, and that their civil servants did and were "professionals" at their jobs, as one minister after another went out of his or her way to say publicly.

The new mood of the day is skepticism — not that the civil service is tinged a Liberal red, but that it is colorless.

"The problem isn't that they're Liberals, but that they are, many of them, stale," says an insider. "We ask for a policy, and time and again we get back last year's policy. It's neither here nor there that the government then was Liberal, and now is Conservative. It's everywhere, politically, for us, that we are a new government, that we're determined to do new things, and that we're not getting new ideas out of the civil service."

Clark's "tilt" today thus isn't so much toward the right or to the left as toward the political. Politics now precedes policy. At Jasper, for instance, the inner cabinet first decided that it had to implement its promises for political reasons, and only then decided to sell off Petro-Canada and to implement mortgage tax deductibility this year.

Consider, as one sign of change, the kind of people Clark opens his doors to most often. At nine each morning, Clark ponders the day's affairs with two Privy Council officials (Marcel Masse, Bev Dewar) and with at least five political aides (Bill Neville, Jim Gillies, Ian Green, Andre Payette, Donald Doyle; two others, Lowell Murray and Jean Piggott) crowd in from time to time). By contrast, Pierre Trudeau, a sufferer from the early-morning blahs, met at 9:30-9:45 a.m. each day with three Privy Council officers (Michael Pitfield, de Montigney Marchand, Gordon Robertson) and with two political aides (Jim Coutts, Dick O'Hagan).

Consider as well the change at the Conservative party headquarters. It may emerge soon, as hasn't happened with any government in modern times, as an independent power center. The headquarters' planned budget of $2.5 million will be three times that of the Liberals, or of the Conservatives while in opposition. Six new regional officers will do jobs that once, during the Trudeau years' were done out of the Prime Minister's office and before, were not done at all. Similarly caucus liaison will shift from the Langevin Building to the Queen Street headquarters, as will polling of public attitudes and political preferences.

Consider lastly the way some of the early-in-office paranoia about the reddish tinge to the civil service ranks has crept back into the talk of those around Clark. The cause of this chatter was the demand, sent insistently to Clark through the summer from party workers and backbench MPs, for what one insider calls, "some bureaucratic heads on spikes."

So far, the only head certain to roll is that of Air Canada chairman Bryce Mackasey, a former Liberal cabinet minister. Two other former Liberal cabinet ministers, though, now are within the shadow of the chopping-block; High Commissioner to London Paul Martin and Under-Secretary of State Pierre Juneau.

Chopping block

Political government, which means the practice of the partisan as much as of the art as possible, may turn out to be no better than technocratic government. The Conservatives have found, for instance, that it's one thing to call the civil service stale, and quite another to recruit fresh blood. No Quebec "stars" have answered the call. Former Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough has opted to be head of Union Gas rather than to be head of a new Petro-Canada, and Toronto financier Tom Kierans has chosen the vice-chairmanship of McLeod, Young and Weir over a post as Clark's economic adviser.

Still, when politicians rub against each other they sometimes spark ideas that civil servants seldom dare to indulge in. "Suppose a public offering of Petro-Canada shares was over-subscribed as happened to the British Columbia Resources Investment Corporation "a capital nest-egg of close to $500 million," went one the ideas tossed out, again not in these exact words, at Jasper. "Couldn't the new Petro-Canada then buy out a multi-national, such as Gulf Canada, say?"

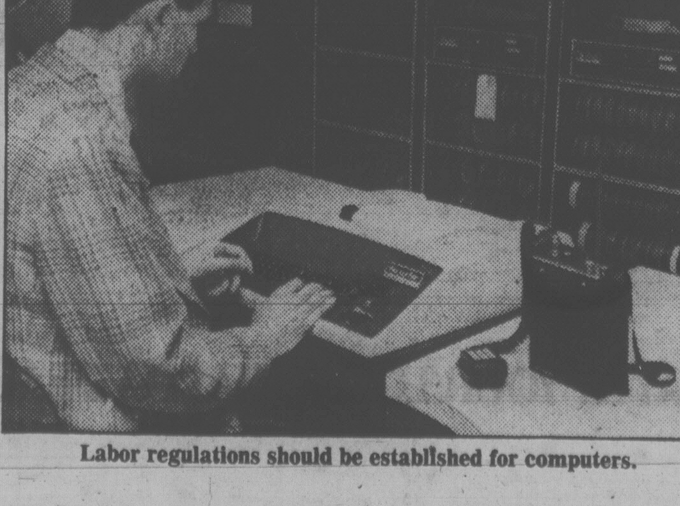
Computer concern

Much concern has been made over energy, pollution, radioactivity and ecology. But a major problem looms on the horizon that most seem to have ignored. That is the arrival of the computer on the industrial scene and the fact that computers hate dust and heat.

Oh, workers often complained about hot, dirty working conditions. But they could usually be put off with claims that the costs of the demanded changes were prohibitive. Computers will not be so put off. When faced with hot, dusty working conditions they just shut down. So, gradually, without too much notice, firms have been providing computers with clean, air conditioned environments. What happens when computers become a dominant factor in industry? Then with large numbers of firms either unable or unwilling to afford the pleasant environment that computers demand a major shut down could ensue with catastrophic effects upon society.

I propose advance action to circumvent such an eventuality. What is necessary is legislation ensuring that, in the event of a computer complaint, the computer shall stay on the job until a provincial officer has had time to investigate whether the complaint is justified, and if it is financially possible to make the required job adjustments. If at the end of a reasonable period, say 90 days, the dispute has not yet been resolved, a royal commission shall be appointed to discover the source of the friction. The commission's findings and recommendations shall be binding on all parties, except those that place financial hardship on the firms involved.

In all these proceedings the computer shall be obliged to keep on working and stiff fines should be levied on those who fail to do so. The future welfare of mankind demand that these measures be initiated as soon as possible.— Larry Tickner, 589 Nora Place.



Labor regulations should be established for computers.

Offensive report

What, I ask, does the Victoria Hotel Association do apart from criticising the commendable work of the Association of Canadian Travellers? I refer to the offensive, non-factual report given in the Times of Aug. 29 (Beer garden 'drunks, rowdies' draw blast from city hotelmen) on the beer garden held over the B.C. Day long weekend.

The Times can hardly be credited with good journalism practice, distortion of facts to rouse and make indignant the self-righteous, pompous community members to gain their support in banning future applications for a beer garden, the proceeds of which are solely for the benefit of the needy.

The volunteers organizing this event could well have spent the precious long weekend with their own families enjoying the days of sunshine and rest but, instead, chose to devote their services to promote an event for the benefit of this community.

Victoria's so-called image was enhanced, not impaired, depending of course on the eyes of the beholder. How many of the critics mingled with the many visitors to find out how much they enjoyed the open air garden and preferred to while away a few hours there rather than in the stuffy and expensive hotel pubs?

The group musicians were limited in their hours of playing and the garden closed before 9 p.m. each night.

IDs were checked at each gate by volunteers and commissionaires; the few minors who crept over the fenced enclosure were quickly spotted and escorted out of the garden.

Toilet facilities were clean. Granted that a couple more toilet cabins might have proved useful, I doubt whether any flower beds suffered very much as a result of lack of toilet facilites.

In four days, three rather small incidents have been distorted out of proportion to the facts, and three incidents in four days speaks rather well for the overall supervision of a beer garden.

Well done, ACT, for the self-sacrifice and tremendous hard work that was put into the raising of well needed funds for charity. Many a handicapped person will be grateful, but please, do not even consider making application for a repeat effort and all the frustrations involved for such an unworthy and ungrateful 'city' of Victoria — or should that read 'an unworthy and ungrateful few?'

Let the critics and others do better, if they can. — M. Cassar, 11-516 Quadra Street.

Editor's note: The comments reported were solely those of the hotel association and not those of the newspaper itself.

Mud-slinging

I am writing to deplore the mean spirited character assassination of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher in the article "Daughter of the Empire" which appeared in Weekend Magazine (Sept. 1). Surely a fair-minded journalist can differ with a leader's political views without resorting to the mud-slinging and innuendo which characterize this incredible diatribe.

Helen Lawrenson is given as the author, but my suspicion is that it was written by a man as the article is riddled with put-downs of Thatcher as a woman leader. It seems to bother this writer that a woman can be strong, courageous and not intimidated by males, even though they be other heads of state.

This spiteful article even criticizes Thatcher's accent, snobbishly points out that her origin is even more humble than generally supposed, and gratutiously manages to take a side swipe at the Queen.

I have never before read such a distribe about any head of state and I strongly protest this type of rotten journalism. I would be interested in knowing who this "Helen Lawrenson" is and what are her (his) credentials? — James A. Munro, 1648 Rockland Avenue.

Forgetting our own

Your daily (Sept. 5, page 13) deals with USA income tax provisions which allow Americans only "partial tax deductions" when they attend conventions in Canada. This appears to "sour our tourism" with a loss up to $100 million a year.

One item that was not even mentioned is that American tourists visiting our country can spend $300, duty free, each — more than once in one year, whereas Canadians travelling south are only allowed a grand total of $150 and that per person and for the entire 365 days!

Here in our fair city everything seems to be geared more and more to lure visitors; even the rehabilitation of Chinatown, which seems to be more intended to become a tourist attraction in its own right rather than intended to preserve an old culture and Oriental customs and traditions. Appeals are already made for funds from various sources which include the community and all levels of government.

Of course the project deserves our support. But let us not forget that there are other priorities which need not to be ignored. We were made aware of the plight of some youth that dwell on the streets because they have nowhere to go. These young people should be helped with apprentices' training on a field of their choice; should be encouraged to return to schools and made aware that there is a future ahead — a future more rewarding than a welfare cheque and a brush-off with the law. More recreation facilities are not the answer.

Perhaps we are becoming so obsessed by tourists' trade that we are neglecting some of the needs of our resident citizens.

As the capital city of our province, Victoria relies on the payroll of the members of our government, the armed forces, and the many retired people who brought with them their pensions and savings and who provide our merchants and workers with a steady and reliable income because of a steady demand for goods and services. But if these demands become increasingly costly and beyond reach for the "average" citizen, a decline will be the obvious result — a decline which will not be made up by a few hundred tourists staying in our city for one week or less. — E. J. Lattes, 432-200 Dallas Road.

Misrepresentation

The recent articles by one Douglas Fisher, Ottawa, which deal with the aboriginal peoples problems, that have been published in the Times, Sept. 4, 5 and 6, are a really sorry collection of misrepresentation.

A journalist of Mr. Fisher's stature does himself injury by such statements but the intense harm perpetrated on the aboriginal peoples, and their and others pursuit to effect a proper and humanitarian settlement of their rights, is very sorely injured.

I would ask all those who have read Mr. Fisher's articles and perhaps agree with them, to really understand what aboriginal rights and land claims really are all about. In the main they will give them the economic stability to control their lives, and in so doing diffuse the drain of dollars from Mr. Fisher's wallet. — Don D. Fraser, 1161 Burnside Road.

Ball game over

I believe that recent comments on the Royal Oak industrial zoning only perpetuate the long history of distortion and confusion on this important issue.

Planning does not mean zoning for industry when a customer is knocking on the door; it means making provision for land-use needs 10, 20 or more years ahead of that need. If that fundamental had been understood by Saanich council ten years ago, the present controversy over Royal Oak would have been avoided.

The additional 60 acres in Royal Oak still leaves Saanich with miniscule provison for industry — a total of some 500 acres or about two per cent of our total area of 42½ square miles. The suggestion that all local service industry can locate in Central Saanich is a political expedient which ignores both basic economics and sound planning principles.

A democratically-determined majority of Saanich residents favors industrial zoning at Royal Oak. The well-orchestrated and politically-tuned opposition of area residents has received long and careful consideration by council who have worked hard to resolve those objections and assemble a compromise program.

It is claimed that property values in the area have been depressed by this rezoning and by industry already in place. In fact, a recent survey of house resale values clearly showed a value appreciation equal to or higher than other areas of Saanich. Many claims have been made that industrial zoning will generate massive traffic problems and require the widening of Glanford Avenue. In fact, residential zoning suggested by ratepayer groups would generate a greater traffic intensity, particularly during evenings and weekends — the times of greatest hazard.

The truth is that no community group in Saanich wants industrial zoning in the neighborhood. Nor do they want — in most cases — commercial or retail development or pumping stations or townhouses or duplexes or condominiums or small houses or gas stations and so on. Nevertheless it is council's responsibility to determine what reasonable provision should be made for all land-use needs and then to plan accordingly. Most of us respect the hard work and sustained effort made by the Royal Oak Ratepayers Association which has contributed positively to the current plan, but their work is done and the decision has been made so let's get on with it.

The Royal Oak political football has been kicked around long enough. This is no time for new players to arrive on the scene with the idea of starting the ball game all over again. — Ian Cass, 3844 Merriman Drive.

Weak complaints

It seems like the allegations which the Victoria Hotel Association have come up with against Associated Canadian Travellers who held their beer garden on B.C. long weekend ring like a long, loud cry of a child who has lost his toy. The alleged complaints of drunkenness, rowdyism, unsanitary food and lack of supervision and toilet facilities at the beer garden appear rather weak and third-hand information.

I was there as an onlooker and saw the hard work put in by ACT members. Men and women together worked hard to raise money for charity. The ACT members deserve to get all the hearty dues for their good cause, and given the encouragement to carry on their good work.

There were ACT members checking ID cards at both entrances and the food sold was certainly handled in a sanitary manner. As for the complaints of hotel guests about loud rock music disturbing their sleep, I would like to know how many tourist would want to go to bed by 9 o'clock (that's when the beer garden closed its gates). As for the drunkenness, there is drunkenness every night when lounges and cabarets close without the beer garden being there. — Mrs. Amina MacLeod, Victoria.

Pretty good job

Re: the beer garden put on by the Associated Canadian Travellers over the B.C. Day weekend and the comments by Gordon Card, president of the Victoria Hotels Association:

I would be the first to admit that some aspects of our beer garden were not perfect, but after all, this is only our second time up to bat and I think we did a pretty good job. I personally received many comments from tourists who praised our beer garden.

As for Card's so-called charges of "rowdyism, incidents of drunkeness, etc." I would be very pleased to talk to his sources.

I spent most of the weekend working at the beer garden and I didn't see any special incidents of drunkeness, at least not as much as I have seen in some of the beer parlors in Victoria.

Some of the younger people were boisterous, but not for long — ask the ones we turfed out!

We kept a low profile and only moved in when there was any suggestion of problems. Again, ask the very few people who got the gate.

As for allegations of unsanitary food, Card should talk to the health inspector who okayed it all. The Hungarian food concession was at the Inner Harbor before and after our beer garden and had no complaints. The Chicken on the Run trailer was well run and has a good name in this town and they shouldn't be slandered. The Cultured Cow served yogurt and sandwiches, etc. and these were kept under constant refrigeration.

Toilet facilities were emptied twice a day. Could Mr. Card judge how many we should have had there before the beer garden started?

The group of people who volunteered their services and put in many long hours are commercial travellers — these are the people who usually keep hotels operating all year round.

Last year at our first beer garden we raised $16,000 for charity in the Victoria area, and probably another $9,000 this year. Before Mr. Card attacks us again, think about that $25,000 we raised mostly on volunteer labor.

And if he really wants to help, why doesn't he give us some of his expertise and then maybe everyone would be happy. Help us run this beer garden and make it a great success both financially for charity and as a great tourist attraction for the B.C. Day weekend.

I am only a member of the ACT Victoria club and not on the executive nor am I speaking for them, but I do know that most of the members echo my thoughts. — H. S. Irving, 1845 Gonzales Avenue.

Smaller classes

Your 'Back to School' editorial of Sept. 4, was both timely and thorough in its analysis of the dilemma faced by school boards and teachers' associations in a situation of declining enrolment. Your summary, that "... we can only hope school boards are improving the quality of education in their districts," is a concern and a goal, not only of school boards, but of parents and teachers as well. Assessment programs, new and revised courses of study, and evaluation and improvement of instruction are some areas in which teachers are participating, with school boards and the ministry of education, science, and technology, in concerted efforts toward better schooling.

When decisions are being made regarding the quality of edcuation to be offered at the district or provincial level, some will offer fiscal solutions, others political. Teachers are part of a group that strives to present educational reasons for decision-making. We would be remiss in our services to our students, their parents, and ultimately to their employers and the society they will live in, if we failed to emphasize the results of conclusive, well documented and soundly based research: better learning takes place in smaller classes.

If the decrease in the total student population without a corresponding decline in the teaching force is resulting in smaller actual classes, then I am sure we can be confident that progress is being made toward quality education. However, since the provincial average for actual class size is 24 pupils, and since research shows that smaller class size becomes an effective educational factor at 15 pupils, it is obvious that we must continue our pursuit of this goal. — Elsie McMurphy, President, Saanich Teachers' Association.

Home help history

I am writing a book on women who immigrated to Canada between 1870 and 1914 and worked in Canadian homes. Over 100,000 came before 1914 from the British Isles and continental Europe and another 100,000 in the 1920s. In particular, British Columbia was a favoured destination for British "home helps" many of whom were placed on Vancouver Island through agencies such as Queen Mary's Coronation Hostel in Vancouver.

The lives of these women are seldom revealed in the historical records. Therefore, I ask your help in locating women who will share their experiences of immigration and household work with me by personal interviews or correspondence. I would also appreciate receiving any family or local recollections regarding the employment of immigrant household workers. Replies will be kept confidential, if desired.

I plan to be in British Columbia from October 18 to early November and can be reached c/o Dr. P. Roy, 602-139 Clarence St., Victoria. — Dr. Marilyn Barber, Dept. of History, Carleton University, Ottawa, Ontario, K1S 5B6.

Added irritant

If the federal government is so enthusiastic about metric measurement, perhaps a bureaucrat up there in Ottawa can explain why customs and excise make the duty-free liquor allowance for returning travellers in the old imperial measure.

On the board in the entrance to the duty-free shop at Gatwick Airport, Canada is the only country of the dozen or so listed that does not use litres in reminding customers of their allowance. Since most wine is now bottled in litres in Europe, the resultant confusion is surely one added irritant that a weary traveller could do without! — Neville Green, 3830 Cadboro Bay Road.

The faces of young Japan . . . indulged, but only if bloodline correct

The anguish of a Japanese MD

By SAM JAMESON

ISHINOMAKI, Japan — Noboru Kikuta, a 53-year-old obstetrician, no longer remembers the name on the first birth certificate he falsified.

But he remembers clearly what led him to do it — to break the law in order to save a life.

For 18 years, from 1959 to 1977, Kikuta broke the law more than 200 times, and made it possible for unwanted children to survive without the stigma that goes with being adopted or being illegitimate in Japan.

He simply registered the children as the natural sons or daughters of their adoptive parents.

Six years ago Kikuta confessed publicly to what he had been doing. As a result, he was expelled from two professional societies, his licence to perform abortions was suspended and the government threatened to close his hospital.

At the same time, though, his confession brought to light a problem that has caused untold anguish in Japan, a problem that nonetheless had never been discussed openly.

The problem involves merciless discrimination against unwed mothers, against illegitimate children and even against adopted children. Such discrimination has led to countless abortions and has been known to drive men and women to kill not only their children but themselves as well.

Kikuta's personal anguish, he said in a recent interview, began 21 years ago, shortly after he opened a maternity hospital in Ishinomaki, his birthplace and a commercial centre of 110,000 people in the ricelands of northeastern Japan. A married woman came in for a checkup, and Kikuta told her she was in her eighth month of pregnancy. The woman was horrified. "That can't be," he quoted her as saying. "I've only been married for six months."

Only when Kikuta insisted that his diagnosis was correct did the woman admit she had had intercourse with a married man two months before her marriage. Later, the woman came back with her parents and her husband.

"They all said the baby would be an imposition, a burden, and pleaded with me to perform an abortion," Kikuta said. "I said that would be murder and I couldn't do it. And I sent them away."

Some months later, Kikuta learned that a certificate of stillbirth had been obtained by the woman's husband. What really happened, he never found out, though he is convinced, he said, that the woman had the child killed.

"I felt there must be a better way," he said.

Why didn't the woman give birth to the child and place it in a welfare home? Because in Japan such a birth would have been recorded permanently on the couple's family register. Stillbirths are not recorded.

In Japan the family register is a public document. It may be inspected by anyone with a legitimate reason — the husband's employer, for example. If the couple has other children, their prospective brides and grooms will see it.

An illegitimate birth in Japan virtually automatically brands a woman as a fushidara na onna (slut). Her legitimate children are regarded as having "bad blood," and her husband is tarred with the same brush. Doors of opportunity are generally closed to illegitimate children.

"In Japan, the father's (or mother's) sins are still very much visited upon the children," Kikuta said.

Like other Asians, the Japanese consider the bloodline to be a fateful determinant of personal character, unchangeable even by the best upbringing. Thus the taint of illegitimacy militates against the adoption of such children.

And adoption poses still other problems, regardless of legitimacy. Japanese tradition still stresses continuation of the male bloodline as "the most important moral principle," Kikuta said.

Birth papers faked to avoid stigma against illegitimate

Childless couples shy away from adopting even legitimate children if they have no blood tie to the husband. Traditionally, a nephew or niece related by blood to the childless husband has been adopted on the theory that the male bloodline is carried on to future generations.

The trouble, however, is that times have changed.

"Until Japan was defeated in the war," Kikuta said, "a husband always had many brothers and sisters who had many children. In those days, a phone call to a brother or sister was often all that was needed to arrange for the adoption of a seventh or eighth child."

Now, with the average household in Japan consisting of 3.26 persons — an average of one child — adopting a relative's child is no longer possible, Kikuta said.

He said he saw no way to rescue unwanted babies because he too believed in the "blood-determinant" theory of personality formation — until he met an American missionary who changed his mind. The missionary came to Kikuta's hospital looking for unwanted babies to adopt, even though he and his wife had six children of their own.

"The missionary said, he would take even the child of a murderer or a prostitute, even a child born of a rape," Kikuta said. "He told me that a child is born innocent, that evil is instilled in a child only by an adult during upbringing. Now I understand, but I was very surprised then."

Kikuta, who has three sons, said that curiosity induced him to visit the missionary and his family, which at that time consisted of seven or eight Japanese children in addition to the couple's own children.

"I looked carefully into the eyes of every child, expecting to find some with a dark expression," Kikuta said, "but I could not find such an expression on any face."

After that experience, he said, the answer "came naturally" to the double dilemma of the expectant mother fearing social disapproval and the childless couple seeking a baby.

"The answer was to carry out the wishes of both sides, to forever dissociate the newborn baby from its real mother," he said — and to certify the birth as natural to the adoptive couple.

Mother does the homework

By GEOFFREY MURRAY

TOKYO — As usual at this time of year, with school summer holidays ending, the weather bureau, national science museum and many other Japanese institutions were crowded with researchers seeking answers to vacation assignments. But for disillusioned officials it was a most depressing sight.

The usual questions were being asked, of course — but the bright, young faces of students eager for knowledge have been replaced by the earnest, if self-conscious, ones of their mothers.

"Before, the children always came to research for their homework. But now it's almost invariably the mothers, or even the fathers who come, while the kids stay home and take it easy," lamented a weather bureau official.

This phenomena reveals two things about contemporary Japan:

1. The overprotectiveness of Japanese mothers is reaching ridiculous proportions.

2. Children have lost interest in an education system that turns them into mere passive vessels for the intake of necessary information to pass examinations.

The image that has been built up of postwar Japanese education is of a treadmill in which there are very clear distinctions between winners and losers. The winners are those who can get into the right schools from primary level onwards, passing the extremely stiff, highly competitive entrance examinations at every stage of school life in order to get into the "right" university, which will ensure employment by the "right" (i.e., big) company — even if it is merely a job as an office clerk.

The losers in this juvenile rat-race bear the scars and stigma of failure for life. Hence, there have been tremendous pressures on youngsters here to succeed at any cost. Those who do fail tend to overreact, providing vital raw material for the frightening rises in juvenile delinquency and suicide.

The government has tried to introduce reforms to lessen the damaging effects of the heated-up competition — the so-called examination hell — without actually tampering with the core of the sterile system.

There was nationwide astonishment recently when the Osaka prefectural board of education revealed the results of a survey showing students were more interested in sex, music, clothes and sports than in studying.

The survey found seven of 10 students unhappy with their studies. One-third said they could do better but didn't feel like making the effort. Six of 10 did no homework, and one of three said he or she had considered dropping out of high school altogether.

Considering the Protestant work ethic that so far has motivated Japan, the most significant finding of all was that 80 per cent of students interviewed were not unduly concerned about the future or of seeking fame or fortune. A depressing picture emerged from the survey of a stereotyped education system unable to respond to students' needs.

The report insisted that the youngsters were not lacking in ambition or desire to learn, but showed little interest in independent effort (having been spoonfed at home and school for so long) and were ready to blame their poor results on others.

Along side this should be placed a Japan Youth Research Institute study showing that high school students either are lethargic or overly studious, do not enjoy their school life and have few friends of the opposite sex.

AND TO THINK ABOUT:
Victoria is currently experiencing an extremely buoyant real estate market particularly in the residential sector. Shortages and rising prices are widely forecast. New subdivisions are in demand. Apartment vacancy rates are critically low. We, like other commercial realtors in town, are besieged with apartment buyers. To those apartment owners who do not wish to sell, please forgive us if we keep bugging you, but our purchasers and circumstances demand close market surveillance. To those who are contemplating selling, watch out for options, and if you need our help, we are only a telephone call away.

Bonds

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were higher in active trading on the Canadian bond market Wednesday. The market is being led by a technical rally in the U.S. bond market where prices have increased by over $1 since Monday, the Invesment Dealers Association of Canada said. The rally lost lost momentum towards noon Wednesday after a major U.S. bank increased its prime lending rate to 13 per cent.

The short end of the market was unchanged. Mid-, long-term and provincial issues gained one-quarter of a point. Corporate issues remained the same.

Day-to-day money was available at 11¼ per cent.

On the heels of Tueday's successful $175-million Bell Canada financing, Labatts Ltd. floated a $40-million offering of 20 year sinking fund debentures. The issue, with a coupon of 11⅛ per cent initiative par, sold immediately at a small premium.

Apart from these two corporate bond issues, the market was relatively quiet as participants await Monday's federal government financing. Analysts said the issue is expected to carry a high interest coupon of at least 10½ per cent.

All that glitters is not gold

By H.J. MAIDENBERG
Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK, N.Y.--Lost in the glitter of record gold prices is the fact that silver has soared by far greater percentages in the past year. Indeed, the price of silver bullion has jumped more than 50 per cent, while gold has advanced more than 30 per cent.

Outwardly, it would seem that investors and speculators trying to avoid or profit by the ravages of inflation would prefer gold to silver.

For one, a smaller amount of gold represents more value and doesn't require as much space. Gold also is available in 1-ounce bullion coins, such as the new Canadian Maple Leaf piece that is being introduced this week, and in small bars. Unlike silver, gold doesn't tarnish and doesn't have to be bought in bars of 100 ounces or even larger units.

But what had driven silver to record highs this year--and what also may cause it to drop sharply in the near future--is the fact that it basically is an industrial metal. By contrast, gold is a monetary metal foremost and much less an industrial raw material. What both metals share today is that their prices will become increasingly volatile.

To the silver bulls, the major force driving up its price is not so much rising inflation as a real shortage of the metal. One of the leading experts in the precious metal markets is Dr. Henry Jarecki, chairman of Mocatta Metals Corp., the American offshoot of the London firm that has been involved in the bullion trade since 1664. Dr. Jarecki noted recently:

"The simple fact is that the world has been consuming silver at a rate of about 250 million ounces a year, while newly mined supplies have been averaging 150 million. But between 1964, when most nations began removing silver from their coinage, and last summer, the global deficit was more than compensated by recycled supplies and other supplies."

Thus, while gold prices moved up in recent years, silver prices appeared to be stuck in a range of $4 to $6 an ounce. When silver rose to its upper barrier, supplies seemed to pour out of government vaults around the globe as they sold off their melted coinage.

India was one big seller. Silver traditionally had been the chief form of savings in India, particularly among families who bought it to include in a daughter's dowry. The inheritance of silver along with gold and precious jewels served as social security to women, especially before 1950, when they had few legal rights.

When the price of silver soared, many Indian women sold their silver and invested in gold or jewels. Mocatta of London, in fact, originally prospered by providing silver by the tons to India.

At any rate, investors and speculators in silver long have been frustrated by the sudden deluges of metal produced by rising prices, especially those led by the logic that climbing gold prices eventually must push up silver.

Meanwhile, the relatively steady price of silver encouraged its greater use by the industrial consumers. The photographic industry, which has been booming in recent years, remains the single biggest user of silver in making film. The electrical and electronics industries together rank second and the sterlingware makers are third.

In the first half of the year, for instance, photographic materials took 37 million ounces of silver in this country alone, compared with 30 million in the like period of 1978.

Overall, silver usage in this country totaled 95 million ounces in the first half, up from 81 million a year ago.

Last summer, however, the entire global silver market changed. Supply suddenly appeared to dry out. It seemed that after a decade of melting down genuine silver coinage, most governments had no more coins to melt. And good harvest in India had stimulated increased purchases of precious metals. Still, as silver inched up to $5.80 an ounce, just before Labor Day 1978, nervous investors and speculators expected more metal to rain down upon them.

The rains never came and once the investors and others realized it, silver began its steady climb. Now the fear is that the unfolding recession will sharply reduce industrial demand for the metal. But the silver bulls hold that overseas demand still is strong. India had another good harvest this season.

Moreover, the silver buyers maintain that the pursuit of photography has grown so popular and still is such a relatively cheap hobby, that a recession will not greatly affect the usage of silver. Wall Street analysts also note that the film industry was among the most immune to the Great Depression.

Whatever the reasons for the silver shortage, the next few months will tell if the bulls or bears are correct.

When inflation hits U.S. Canada cries ouch too

NEW YORK (CP) — Canadian economists are keeping weather eye on the storm clouds gathering over the U.S. economy, says one of Canada's top bankers.

Rowland Frazee, president and chief executive officer of The Royal Bank of Canada, said at a news conference Tuesday he expects 1980 will be a better year for the Canadian economy. But he added a warning postscript: "What's going to happen in the United States?"

The head of Canada's largest bank, with assets of about $50 billion, said the inevitable linkages between the two economies make one-sided forecasting impossible, for Canadians at least.

"What happens in the United States impacts all over the world," he said. "But nowhere more significantly than on Canada.

"We usually follow perhaps six months behind and quite often the depths and peaks are not as dramatic as they've been in the United States."

Sometimes, as in the last U.S. recession, for example, growth in Canada slowed to zero, while in the U.S. it fell into negative figures.

However, Frazee said, the outlook for Canada's immediate economic future still depends on the U.S.

"Our reading so far is that the U.S., which we think is probably in its recession snow, in the early stages, hopefully would have a soft landing and the recovery would start next year," he said. "With this in mind, the impact on the Canadian economy would not be too dramatic and 1980 would be a better year than 1979 for us, but nothing spectacular."

Frazee said his bank's economists have lowered their predictions twice already this year and now predict a real Canadian growth rate of about 2.5 per cent.

"Which on a world basis is not all that bad," he commented. "It's certainly not good, compared to the five or six per cent we used to have a few years ago, but compared to other parts of the world, including the United States, it's sort of in the middle ground."

The U.S. is laboring under a terrible combination of high unemployment and rising inflation. Federal monetary restraint is forcing up the interest rates and likely will intensify the recession. Wholesale prices jumped 1.2 per cent in August, an annual rate of 14.9 per cent and unemployment rose three-tenths of a point to six per cent last month.

Canadian figures show an annual inflation rate of about 9.6 per cent in the consumer price index and unemployment is dropping, down to 7.2 per cent last month.

To complicate matters further, 1980 is an election year in the U.S., which could produce campaign distortions in the economy.

"I'm beginning to get a little worried about our reading of the U.S. economy, Frazee conceded. "It keeps puzzling us."

Alberta sells 50% of Syncrude share

CALGARY (UPC) — Alberta Energy Corporation announced Tuesday it was selling half of its 20 per cent interest in Syncrude Canada Ltd., the world's largest oil sands plant, to Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas and Petrofina Canada Inc.

AEC said it would sell 5 per cent interest each to Hudson's Bay and Petrofina for a total of $365 million. AEC had bought 20 percent interest in the oil sands plant on Aug. 30 for $560 million.

"Although the transactions have different terms and conditions, principally in regard to cash amounts and the share of future revenues that will be paid to AEC . . . they are approximately of equivalent value," AEC said.

The Alberta government-owned corporation said the two companies will pay it about 7 per cent of their share of future gross cash revenue of the plant. This is about .07 per cent of total gross revenue of the $2 billion plant.

The oil sands plant, largest of its kind in the world, began operating 14 months ago and was expected to produce 129,000 barrels of synthetic crude oil a day when it reaches full output in 1982.

Syncrude was built at Fort McMurray, Alta., by a consortium of Esso Resources Canada Ltd., Canada Cities Service Ltd., Gulf Canada Resources Ltd., PetroCanada, the Alberta government and Ontario Energy Corporation. Ontario's interest was later sold to PanCanadian Petroleum Ltd.

After the 10 per cent sale by AEC, ownership in Syncrude would stand at Esso 25 per cent, Canada-Cities 17.6 per cent, Gulf Canada 13.4 per cent, PetroCanada 12 per cent, AEC 10 per cent, Alberta equity 8 per cent, Hudson's Bay 5 per cent, Petrofina 5 per cent and PanCanadian 4 per cent.

Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas is a large petroleum exploration and production company and Petrofina is an integrated oil company engaged in exploration, production, refining and marketing.

AEC was created by the Alberta legislature in January, 1975. The Alberta government owns half of the 15 million shares and the rest are held by Canadian shareholders, about 93 per cent of them Albertans. The company's assets were listed this month at about $500 million.

AEC had an option to purchase 20 per cent interest in Syncrude when the original consortium was put together. AEC excercised its option two days before the Sept. 1 expiry date, six months after Syncrude produced its five millionth barrel of oil.

Company Reports

Revelstoke

Revelstoke Companies Ltd., the Calgary-based company involved in merger talks with Consumers Distributing, fared badly during the first six months of the year, company officials have announced. Net earnings were $853,000 compared wigh $2.1 million for the same period last year. The drop came despite an increase in total sales to $81.4 million from $74.8 million. In its interim financial report, the company puts much of the blame on costly strikes at its Calgary and Edmonton concrete plants. Senior vice-president Gerald Berkhold said Tuesday the company expects a big improvement in earnings during the second half of the year. Revelstoke president Steele Curry is in Toronto for talks with Jack Stupp, president of Consumers. Consumers is one of the largest retail chains in Canada with 160 catalogue showrooms in nine provinces. Revelstoke is primarily involved in building products, with 107 stores in western Canada, 21 concrete plants and four lumber mills.

Great West

Great West Steel Industries Ltd. reports net earnings for the six months ended June 30 more than doubled from the corresponding 1978 period. Net earnings were $1,379,000 or 17 cents a share this year compared with $685,000 or two cents a share last year. For the three months ended June 30, net earnings rose 50 per cent to $861,000 or 12 cents a share from $574,000 or 12 cents a share last year. Sales increased to $19,776,000 from $13,994,000 in the six months and to $10,692,000 from $8,161,000 last year.

CIB of C

Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce reports balance of revenue after taxes for the nine months ended July 31 of $134.6 million or $3.44 a share compared with $125.8 million or $3.54 for the corresponding period a year ago.

Balance of revenue for the quarter ended July 31 was $43.6 million or $1.11 compared with $44.2 or $1.20 for the same 1978 quarter.

Total assets at July 31 increased by 22 per cent to $43.5 billion.

The Toronto-based bank said the decrease in per-share earnings for the nine months reflects an increase in the average number of shares outstanding.

ICBC sticks Victorians with $55 FAIR jump

By AL FORREST

The full cost to Victoria drivers of equalized insurance rates across the province will be $55, ICBC president Robbie Sherrell said Wednesday.

In Victoria to explain the new insurance formula — known as Fundamental Auto Insurance Rating or FAIR — Sherrell spent a large part of his time fielding questions on the geographical equalization formula.

What it means is Victoria drivers will have to pay more than anyone else in B.C. to bring about one uniform rate.

Sherrell repeated an earlier estimate the equalization would cost Victoria drivers an extra $19 next year.

Then, for the first time, he outlined the full added cost.

It will be an extra $14 in 1981, another $10 in 1982, $8 in 1983 and $4 in 1984, when the equalization will be completed.

This is in addition to any other increases.

Sherrell said all drivers can expect a general rate increase as well for 1980 "but it (the increase) won't be anything like 30 per cent or 20 per cent."

The increase will be due in part to the higher cost of repairing vehicles. Most body parts are imported from the U.S. and prices are rising sharply.

As for Victoria drivers, he said, they have been getting a bit of a break in the rates.

Victorians have always had by far the best driving record in the province but in 1978 the accident rate went up.

There was no special upward adjustment in ICBC rates in 1979 because the relatively bad accident experience of 1978 might have been an abberation, he said.

However, the worsening record continued through this year and Victorians would have been directed to pay a bit more even without the equalization formula.

When asked to defend the special imposition on Victoria drivers, Sherrell was blunt and direct.

If the decision is made to equalize the rates, somebody has to pay the price, he said.

Beneficiaries of the geographical equalization formula are northern B.C. and the Lower Mainland.

Using Vancouver rates as a base of 100, the rates for the six regions are, in descending order: Vancouver 100, northern B.C. 96, Vancouver Island (except Victoria) 82, southern interior 78, Fraser Valley 76, Victoria 64.

Sherrell said a proposal to give senior citizens a 25 per cent reduction in insurance rates is being studied by cabinet and no decision has been made.

Sherrell said ICBC will continue to operate one car repair shop in Surrey and one insurance selling agency in Vancouver as a check on repair costs, the efficiency of forms and other factors.

ICBC does not want to expand into the car repair business and would only do so if forced to by private car body shops.

Private agents also have not had any serious complaints although there are some lively discussions under way on new commission rates for selling ICBC insurance.

There has been no change in the rate paid for writing the compulsory portion of the insurance. However, agents also collected a percentage of optional items and here there will be less money. The rates are generally lower. The equivalent amount for the $300 penalty for a blameworthy accident would, previously, have been in the optional package and the selling agent would get a commission on it.

Now, ICBC will collect the $300 directly and agents will not get a commission on this portion.

Discussions are continuing with agents on this point.

Sherrell said he is visiting agents as well as holding press conferences during his tour of B.C.

He described all the meetings as "lively".

Today he met the Social Credit caucus and was prepared to meet the NDP caucus if invited.

He said the equalization system is provoking questions from many cities both in Canada and the U.S.

Sherrell said he hopes the program will be copied across Canada to produce a uniform car insurance system.

ICBC showed a small profit in 1978, he said, and his latest peak at the numbers showed the insurance corporation is operating in the black this year.

Immigrant's complaint rings hollow: Official

An immigration department spokesman said Wednesday in Vancouver there is no excuse for immigrants coming to Canada and not knowing the old-age security benefits they are entitled.

Murray Perry was referring to the complaint of British immigrant Robin Trevallion of Victoria that the government owes him about $8,000 in moving costs because a government booklet gave him misleading information about old-age security benefits for immigrants.

Trevallion, 56, said that when he came to Canada in August, 1978, he thought he would be eligible for full old-age security benefits after 10 years.

However, between the time of his final interview with Canadian immigration officials in England in December, 1977, and his arrival in Victoria 11 months later he found that residency requirements had been amended on July 1, 1977, to 40 years and as a result he would be eligible for only one-quarter of the benefits.

Perry said Trevallion should have asked the government for specific information regarding pensions. Perry said immigrants to Canada are told the booklet Trevallion refers to is only a general guide and that there might have been changes since the book was published.

He said immigrants are warned that they should always check with the specific government department concerned for changes in any area they are concerned about.

"It is just inconceivable that Mr. Trevallion would have been misled," said Perry.

He said that almost a year passed between the time Trevallion was admitted to the country and when he actually decided to come to Canada.

The immigration department is checking to see that the books which confused Trevallion are not still being distributed, Perry said.

Bus-rail depot urged

Community leaders agreed informally Wednesday that Victoria needs a single, inter-city bus-rail depot on the east side of the Inner Harbor.

A new depot should also be convenient for transit bus passengers, and accommodate tour buses and prospective commuters from the western communities.

Opinions were expressed at a meeting of interested parties called by the E & N Steering Committee to help plan for replacement of the existing bus depot at Douglas and Belleville, whose lease expires in two years.

Winn Mott, vice-chairman of the committee, invited discussion after presenting four tentative locations where a regional coach terminal could be satisfactorily combined with a new terminus for the E & N diesel car connecting Victoria with up-island communities.

The four proposals: land on the harbor just south of the west end of Johnson Street bridge; a site at the foot of Pandora where the former train station was located, but encompassing an unoccupied adjoining building; property on the harbor south of the east end of the bridge; and a block on Government between Discovery and Herald opposite the brewery.

Mayor Mike Young said no site could accommodate both inter-city and transit bus operations, even without the E & N.

He cautioned the steering committee against "trying to bite off more than you can chew."

Young said any suggestion of a concentrated transportation centre in the Wharf Street area raised serious doubts in his mind. He mentioned particularly the harborfront area near Hartwig Court where inter-city float planes have their terminals.

"Let's say goodbye to the floatplanes, however long they may be with us, unless we can accommodate them coincidentally."

Young said there was an extremely remote connection between the planes and the train, and train service with its commuter potential is more important.

Young said he advocated no particular carrier or terminal site.

"But let's have a perspective on what we want to do, whatever that is."

Mott said it appeared from discussion that no one spoke in favor of having a transit depot as long as transit passengers could transfer conveniently to the train or coaches.

He said he is not so concerned about the location of a terminal as long as it served people desiring to use more than one means of transportation.

Ald. Murray Glazier, chairman of the Capital Regional Board, raised again a proposal he made last year for a small 19th century-style railroad station at the foot of Pandora to serve rail passengers only and be especially attractive to tourists.

This would be cheap, since the railway already owns the land and has rails on it, and the cost could be shared between VIA Rail, the provincial government and the city of Victoria, he said.

The inter-modal sites suggested all have their virtues, he said, but he wondered whether they envisage too many functions.

In any case, he said, if there is an integrated terminal elsewhere, the Pandora station could stand on its own as a regular stopping point.

NDP MLA Charles Barber said the natural, thematic and convenient site for a multi-purpose terminal is the Inner Harbor, requiring a four-block extension of the rail line to bring all transport and tourist-oriented modes together. He said this also would be cheap because most of the foreshore is owned by the province.

Bev Grooms, representing Downtown Business Association, said putting the major terminal opposite the brewery and adopting the Pandora railway station idea with transit links is the best compromise and would give impetus to nearby Chinatown restoration.

What are they doing to old Vic High?

By PAUL MINVIELLE

It'll still look as great as ever from the outside, but a little bit of Victoria High School's soul has been spirited away.

Some teachers, students and others who have developed an attachment to the imposing structure on Grant Street wonder how much of the old magic will be there when the school reopens, hopefully within the next two weeks.

When the last of $1.6 million has been spent to bring the 1914 building up to 1979 standards for fire safety, 1,018 students will stop attending the afternoon shift at Central Junior High School and return to normal hours at Vic High, one of the most imposing school buildings in Canada.

Although the building is 65 years old, Vic High's history goes back 103 years, making it the oldest public high school west of the Great Lakes.

The exact date of the reopening is still in question, even though the contractor has said the building will be ready Sept. 24. It could be be later as Greater Victoria School Board trustees learned Monday night.

Superintendent of schools Allan Stables said the project had been "bedevilled" from the start. He cited instances of materials for the school in a railway boxcar being lost on a siding in Toronto for weeks. Doors left exposed on a Vancouver wharf got wet and had to be returned to the factory for refinishing.

While everyone involved with the school grudgingly admits the need that existed for fire safety, few appreciate what the renovations have done to the character of the place.

Building custodian William McFetridge, who has been at the school for eight years, pointed out how the new enclosed stairwells will hide the stained glass windows from the main hallways.

In the main entranceway he pointed to the framework of a drop ceiling that promises to destroy the impressiveness of the original high ceiling and ornate trim.

He asked a workman who had worked on the dropped ceiling what its purpose was.

The workman didn't know, but Chris Watt, a draftsman for architect John Di Castri, said the dropped ceiling will enclose new fire and burglar alarms.

He said the architectural firm had done its best to preserve as much of the building's architectural features as possible, but there were some things that simply couldn't be avoided.

He said the new alarms were required by the fire marshal and ICBC.

McFetridge said that in fire drills, the school used to empty of teachers and students in one minute, 55 seconds.

He said many teachers are wondering how long it will now take, despite the new minimum of two doors for every classroom and enclosed stairways, not to mention new fire exits.

In fact, in 1967, smoke from a fire in the school attic forced a teacher and several students to flee to the roof of a 1956 addition at the rear of the school.

They were unable to leave the roof until firemen quelled the blaze and cleared the smoke.

The fire chief of the day told reporters that if the building hadn't been as well built as it was, the fire would have been more serious.

Despite the chief's testimonial, the plight of the class on the roof is an indication that the changes improving fire safety in the building were necessary.

John Peramaki, a geography and social studies teacher at the school, still remembers when he first came to the school in 1968.

"You just looked at it and you knew the school had substance," he said. "It's a traditional kind of school."

Do the students feel the same thing?

Said Peramaki: "The pupils are probably from a slightly lower socio-economic scale. But just look inside — no graffiti, no broken windows." McFetridge nods vigorous agreement.

Peramaki admits that many of his fellow teachers are concerned about the architectural changes and the effect they will have on the school's character. But he also acknowledges the necessity of fire safety.

Inside, radios blare, workmen whistle and rivet guns blast. To an inexperienced eye it looks as if there is still a lot of work to do, particularly on the science and biology labs on the fourth floor, both of which are slated for complete renovation.

"That was one change that was really needed," says McFetridge. It was also one of the few changes not necessitated solely the fire marshal's edict.

Because of the extra doors that fire regulations dictated had to be punched through the building's thick brick and plaster walls, a huge topographical map of B.C. on the building's fourth floor, at one time in one long strip some 50 feet wide, had to be split. Two pieces are now on the wall opposite.

Duncan Lorimer, who retired in June after 25 years as Vic High's principal, was in on the planning of the changes, a process that took some five years.

He noted that the enclosed stairwells and drop ceilings were obliterating the distinctive eggshell patterns on the ceilings of the main entranceway and adjacent halls.

He said that everyone, including the architect, had tried to preserve the beautiful features of the main floor, but the regulations had to be satisfied.

"Once you start altering a building," said Lorimer, "the federal building code comes into effect."

The result was that 17 feet had to be sliced off the cafeteria to provide an extra girls' washroom.

"We ran the school in 1962 with 1,500 students and had no trouble," Lorimer said. "Now that were down about 500 students, more washrooms are needed."

The ludicrousness of some of the outdated or unreasonable regulations prompted Lorimer to write the then-minister of deregulation Sam Bawlf to see if changes were possible.

All he got back was a noncommital letter.

"I guess they were federal regulations and there wasn't much he could do about it," he said.

"I feel sorry for Bill Garner (the new Vic High principal) and his new staff going into that situation," Lorimer added.

"It's very sad."

Ontario man picked for top Jubilee post

Royal Jubilee Hospital board has named an Ontario hospital administrator its new executive director.

He was selected from 61 applicants, including Jubilee acting executive director John Clark, who was previously director of diagnostic services.

Butcher will start work Dec. 1. He replaces Jubilee executive director Archibald Pickles, who retired in May.

The announcement was made Wednesday afternoon by board vice-chairman Eric Simmons.

Clark will stay on with Jubilee for an undetermined period.

Administrative policy will not undergo any major changes after Butcher takes over, but strong efforts will be made to reduce spending.

Ask the Times

Q. Can you tell me what is the meaning of a steel-bow lease. Does it have anything to do with the leasing of land? M.H.

A. It's an old Scots law involving tenant and landlord. It states that steel-bow goods comprise corn, straw, cattle or instruments of tilage. These goods were delivered by the landlord to a new tenant on the understanding that at the end of the tenancy a like quantity of such goods would be redelivered to him.

Police shortage crimps belt law

Manpower shortages and heavy workloads are making it practically impossible for Greater Victoria police departments to enforce the provincial seatbelt law.

A city police spokesman said Wednesday hard-pressed officers aren't going out of their way to enforce the law.

His comments were made after the motor-vehicle branch released the results of a survey which show an increasing number of motorists ignoring the law.

The police spokesman acknowledged that enforcement of the law "is low on our priorities list."

He recalled only one charge being laid in the city in the past month.

A Saanich police spokesman said the only times seatbelt checks are made are at roadblocks, during accident investigations, or when an officer stops a motorist for a traffic offence.

Even then, he said, it is often difficult to prove someone wasn't wearing his seatbelt. In most cases people have time to surreptitiously buckle up before the officer approaches.

The survey, released this week, found only 54 per cent of drivers and 43 per cent of their passengers were buckling up.

This represented a drop of 19 per cent and 15 per cent respectively since March 1978 when the last survey was conducted.

A total of 3,100 drivers and passengers were observed in Vancouver, Kelowna, Victoria, Penticton and Courtenay.

The refusal by passengers to buckle up has brought the latest findings closer to those in the survey done before the introduction of legislation in Ocober, 1977.

The 1977 survey, while using a smaller sample, found that 33 per cent of those spotted were using belts and shoulder straps. When usage became mandatory, the figures jumped to 72 per cent.

John Phillips, a spokesman for the MVB in Nanaimo, said the legislation has been difficult to enforce.

"It's one law that people can get away with," he said. "Nobody's going to say anything."

He said the $120,000 spent annually on government campaigns urging people to obey the law has not been wasted.

By PAT DUFOUR

Today the seas are calm. Hardly any surf. The jagged rocks that have taken a heavy toll of lives and ships are awesome in their nakedness.

We are on our way to the Bamfield lifeboat station and approaching Cape Beale lighthouse and Barkley Sound the unforgiving rocks below bear witness that this is indeed the Graveyard of the Pacific.

Capt. Jack Ickringill of Vancouver, regional manager of search and rescue, is aboard the helicopter. While this is his inspection visit to the Bamfield and Tofino stations there is another reason for the sortie.

Tom Mather, who has served courageously as a seaman at Bamfield for 23 years, is retiring and Ickringill will do the honors at a reception.

It is a serene scene but a sudden squall is a reminder that this is an area married to violent storms that develop with little warning.

Mather, like many men of the sea, especially the men he's served with so long, would be the last to claim his calling is courageous. He seems shy as the men and their families crowd around, wishing him well and admiring the plaque which Ickringill has brought him.

Among those in the lifeboat station's crew is his son Bill. Coast guard personnel, like the Mathers, have a habit of handing tradition down from father to son.

The elder Mather says he's no hero. A French polisher by profession, he came to Bamfield from Vancouver for a two-week holiday years ago, liked what he saw and decided to settle down there. He plans to stay on in retirement.

He's enthusiastic in his description of life in Bamfield — a fishing and logging community of 250 people — but becomes tongue-tied when asked about the rescues he's helped carry out.

He finally admits that he was really scared only once. That was when he was in the bow of the lifeboat trying to secure a towline in a storm. The seas were so violent a fellow crew member, Billy Fullerton, had to hold on to his legs as the rest of his body was jerked several feet above the deck by the crashing waves.

Now 65, Mather decided to retire after he collapsed from exhaustion after helping with nine rescues in two days.

"They had to pick me up (from the lifeboat) in a chopper," he recalls.

That did it.

Musing a little more, he adds: "I had a lot of good times — and bad times — but you get that in any job."

Two at Mather's party, Clifford Charles and Bob Amos, have been presented with awards of valor by the Canadian and U.S. governments.

Along with Charles' father Martin and coxswain Dave Christney, they received recognition after they saved six lives in a 23-hour ordeal. Four of them were the crew of a U.S. Coast Guard helicopter that crashed in the disastrous 1976 herring season.

The younger Charles and Amos josh with the others as they drink coffee and munch sandwiches of smoked salmon from the local cannery. Like Mather, they make light of their experiences but a plaque on the wall from a grateful American government is a reminder that days like this are breathing spells.

Why do they take jobs they know will expose them to so many hazards.?

Before leaving we head down to the dock where the lifeboat is at the ready. Hegstrom and his men climb aboard for a final picture with the elder Mather.

Then we head off, wondering when and how we'll hear of the Bamfield crew again.

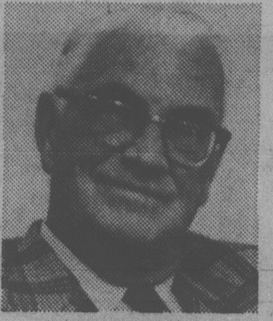
Sure, Victoria is bigger 'and it's more beautiful'

Bill Straith, 85, former city alderman, former minister of education, has no patience with anyone who complains that Victoria is growing too big.

"I like what's happening to Victoria. When I came here 70 years ago it was little more than a village. The Empress had just been built. Now it has become a city of apartments — and it's more beautiful than ever."



STRAITH
. . . special tribute

Straith made the comments in an interview after a Victoria Chamber of Commerce meeting at The Empress where he was the oldest of 16 former chamber presidents to be honored. He received a special tribute from president Mel Cooper.

Straith, a lawyer, headed the chamber in 1934. He later became an alderman and then was Liberal MLA for Victoria for 16 years, serving under Duff Pattullo, John Hart and Boss Johnson. He was education minister for five years.

"Those were exciting years, hectic years, but at my age I can't recall everything that happened.

"I do remember that Victoria was very small when I arrived here and I have watched the changes over the years. Most of the change has been for the better.

"One thing I've noticed in recent years — there are a lot of people coming from Toronto and Ottawa and Hamilton and London, Ont., to live in Victoria.

"There wasn't as much of that in the early years but now I've been meeting all kinds of people who have just moved here from Ontario. They come here on a visit and then decide to stay.

"The rest of Canada is just learning what a beautiful city we have."

In 1934 the chamber had only a handful of members compared with the present total of almost 1,000. Meetings were held in the chamber office on the third floor at Government and Fort. Now the meeting hall is large enough only for a committee meeting.

Straith said he has always been impressed by the contribution made by the Chinese community to Victoria and he is pleased Chinatown is being renovated and developed.

Straith said the chamber's decision to honor past presidents and to place him at the head table was "a very pleasant experience."

Other past presidents introduced from the audience were:

Harold Husband 1936-38, Fred Hawes 1950-51, Ernie Arnott 1951-52, Tom Denny 1952-53, George Wheaton 1953-54, Hugh Stephen 1957-58, Alan Pendray 1959-60, John Wallace who came from Vancouver for the occasion, 1962-63, David Lawson 1964-65, Philip (Pip) Holmes, called by president Cooper "the unofficial mayor of Victoria," 1970-71, Helen Beirnes, first woman president, 1971-72, Terry Farmer, the youngest president, 1972-73, Bob McHaffie 1974-75, Alan Emery, still a director of the B.C. Chamber of Commerce, 1976-77, and John Ansell 1978.

Cooper said the day for past presidents would become an annual event.

It was held in conjunction with Chamber of Commerce Week in Victoria.

Earlier in the program Rear Admiral Michael Martin of CFB Esquimalt told the chamber Canada is "woefully unprepared" for a military emergency because aging vessels have not been replaced. While the Soviet Union has been engaged in a massive naval buildup, in the Pacific as well as in other oceans, Canada has not even been replacing all the ships that become obsolete.

He called for an increase in the number of ships under Canadian command on both coasts and in the Arctic.

The Esquimalt base remains vital to the economy of Victoria as well as to its safety, he said. During this year the base will account for $120 million in local revenues, a $37 million payroll to military personnel, a $48 million payroll to civilians and an operating budget of $33 million. An additional $2 million was spent on reserves and summer militia training.

Hearing set for Oct. 8 on new Highland zoning

The Capital Regional District's local, planning and zoning committee met in secret Wednesday to revamp its controversial zoning policy for the Highlands.

It agreed on amendments but the only director to give any information was Colwood director Howard Drummond who said a public hearing will be held Oct. 8.

He said regional planners and the CRD solicitor had told the committee some aspects of the bylaws are discriminatory.

The amendments, he said, will make the rezoning acceptable to all.

Two companies are taking court action against the regional district, claiming a 1974 bylaw putting the Highlands into a 45-acre freeze is discriminatory.

Drummond said Nov. 1 has been set as a tentative date for the preliminary hearings of the lawsuits. He agreed the proposed bylaw is related to the suits in the hopes of satisfying all parties.

At the public session of the meeting earlier in the day Langford director Ed Lubick said in a report a public planning meeting for the Highlands is expected in early February.

In the meantime, Lubick said, local residents will be encouraged to call small group meetings to discuss concerns.

He advised residents to contact Yoon Chee of the planning department at 388-4421, Susan Mills, president of the Highland District Community Association at 384-4887 or Christina Rainey, president of the East Highland Community Association at 479-9940.

Other members of the steering committee are Lorne Bolton, Harold Bukin, Bill Goede, Mrs. Paddy Harris, Kerry Joy, Bob McMinn and Peter Robbins.

Oak Bay sidesteps the 'poop scoop'

There will be no additional restrictions on leashes, roaming on beaches or owners having to obey "poop scoop" rules such as New York's.

Council passed two animal bylaws Wednesday night but neither met recent complaints of dogs messing boulevards and other public areas and nipping children.

The present rules will remain the same: Dogs must be on a leash or under the control of a human and they may use beaches in winter but not in summer.

Mayor Brian Smith said the new bylaws, given initial approval, permit the poundkeeper some control over the accumulation of dogs and birds.

If a citizen decides to keep a menagerie of animals to the detriment of a neighbor, the poundkeeper can step in and remove them or reccomend the number which could be kept.

A special permit will be needed to keep bees, wild animals and farm animals, said Smith, adding that this includes swine, donkeys, sheep, asses, horses, mules — and boa constrictors.

He said there weren't any general, sensible controls before and thought the new bylaw was a better approach than stipulating numbers of animals which may be kept on a property.

It was spotted, however, that the bylaw, while it included chickens in the definition part under poultry, missed it in the enforcement area. This was corrected.

A kennel was deemed to be four or more dogs and to have that many, an Oak Bay resident must have a $50 licence and a special resolution of council. This would not include a female's litter.

What this means, said Smith, is "you probably won't get a special resolution if you live in a 400-square-foot townhouse and have three St. Bernards."

In other business, council voted against having the Greater Victoria Economic Development Commission become part of the Capital Regional District, fearing its burgeoning bureaucracy and the CRD's inappropriateness for this activity.

Before the judge

Judge Harold Alder ordered a 30-day psychiatric remand for a 26-year-old man following a preliminary hearing in provicial court Wednesday.

Terry Harrison is charged with an Aug. 19 breaking and entering at a residence on Whittier in Saanich, and the unlawful confinement, attempted rape and indecent assault of a young woman.

Harrison's guilty plea was not accepted Aug. 24 by Judge William Ostler. But on Aug. 29 Judge Fred Giles declared him fit to stand trial and instruct defence counsel Scott Marshall.

Marshall did not have any objections to Crown counsel Richard Law's motion for a psychiatric examination and Alder remanded Harrison until Oct. 17.

Michael Lawrence Green, 21, of 430 Stewart in Nanaimo, was given a one-day sentence by Judge Fred Green for careless storing of a firearm and ammunition.

Crown counsel Ken Salt said Victoria police, responding to to a phone complaint on Aug. 22, went to a parked car at 444 Michigan. They saw a 303-calibre rifle in full view left in Green's unlocked car. Officers also found a nine-round clip of live ammunition in an unlocked glove compartment. Salt said the vehicle was parked across the street from a children's playground.

Richard Joseph Balfour, 3301 Metchosin, pleaded guilty to driving while suspended and received a 10-day, intermittent sentence.

Crown counsel Don Laughton said Colwood RCMP, operating radar along Sooke Road, spotted Balfour's car speeding and pulled him over on Metchosin Road. When asked for his licence, Balfour said he had lost it along with his wallet. He also told officers he was driving a friend's car and gave the name of Robert James Balfour and a false birthday.

After being warned he would be charged with driving under suspension when they traced him, Balfour admitted his real name and date of birth as well as being under suspension.

Laughton said Balfour was suspended July 23 this year by the Motor-Vehicle Branch because of an accumulation of penalty points. In addition, he was convicted twice of dangerous driving, in January and September of 1978, and of driving while suspended April 7 of this year.

A 22-year-old man who had a unique way of catching salmon was fined $75 and placed on six months probation.

Laughton told the court Fennell went to Oakland Fisheries Ltd. processing plant at 630 Montreal on Sept. 1 with a fishing rod in hand.

Laughton said Fennell stood near a barrel of fish and, when he thought no one was looking, reached in and pulled out a salmon valued at $25. He was caught and held for police by employees but told Victoria police he had just caught the fish. But police were advised by another employee that the stolen fish had been gutted and cleaned at least three days previously.

Christopher Lee Rhyno, 19, of CFB Work Point, was fined $350 for dangerous driving and an additional $50 for driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 per cent.

Court was informed Rhyno and another driver were observed Aug. 25 by Colwood RCMP drag racing side by side in the 2100-block Sooke Road shortly after midnight. A two-kilometre car chase ensued, Laughton said, and reached speeds of 120 km/h in a 60 km/h zone before Rhyno was caught.

Restoration planned on old Fulford school

Expos remain hot but so do Pirates

By The Associated Press

Montreal Expos are holding onto first place in the National League' Eastern Division . . . one-half game behind Pittsburgh Pirates.

No, you didn't read that wrong. Yes, it's true.

The Pirates have won three more baseball games than the Expos while Montreal has lost two less games than Pittsburgh. But the Expos have a .6043 winning percentage while the Pirates are chugging along at .6041.

Pirate manager Chuck Tanner, however, isn't worried.

"Fractions of percentage points don't matter to me. All that matters is that we keep winning," Tanner said Wednesday after Pittsburgh beat St. Louis Cardinals 2-0 behind the six-hit pitching of John Candelaria and reliever Kent Tekulve.

The Expos also won, 6-3 over Chicago Cubs. It was Montreal's 16th victory in its last 17 games.

"I'd have to say it's really discouraging for Montreal to play the way they're playing and they can't catch up," said Tanner, ignoring the mathematical fact that the Expos hold a slight edge. "It's tough when you keep winning and you can't catch the team in front of you. It makes it hard. There's a lot of pressure on them."

Despite their hot streak, the Expos have not been able to gain much ground on the Pirates, who have won 14 of their last 17 contests.

"Montreal can't possibly play any better than they have played, and they've only picked up a game and a half," Tekulve said. "You win 16 out of 17 and only pick up a game and a half. That's got to be a little frustrating."

In other NL games Wednesday, San Francisco Giants nipped Atlanta Braves 4-3, Cincinnati Reds stopped Chicago Cubs 7-4, Philadelphia Phillies blanked New York Mets 4-0 and Los Angeles Dodgers downed San Diego Padre 5-2.

Ed Ott and Phil Garner slammed run-scoring singles to pace Pittsburgh over the Cardinals.

The Pirates took the lead to stay in the second inning when Bill Madlock walked, stole second and scored on Ott's single to center off losing pitcher Bob Forsch.

Then in the fifth, Ott tripled to centre and scored on Garner's single to right.

"Montreal is putting the pressure on us, but the cream is rising to the top. We're separating the men from the boys," said Ott.

Veteran Tony Perez drove in two runs with a double to ignite a three-run eighth-inning rally and carry Montreal to its victory over Chicago.

Dave Kingman, Larry Biittner and Steve Ontiveros stroked run-scoring singles in the first inning to provide the Cubs with a 3-0 lead. But the Expos bounced back with a run in the third on Larry Parrish's 25th homer of the season and third in as many games. Montreal tied the contest with two runs in the seventh.

Dave Collins' perfect 3-for-3 night at the plate paced Cincinnati to its victory over Houston, giving the Reds a 1½-game lead in the NL West.

Frank Pastore, 4-6, got the victory in relief as the Reds swept the two-game series with Houston. Joe Niekro, 18-10, was the loser, failing for the fourth straight time in his attempt to pick up his 19th win of the season.

Carl Yastrzemski's 3,000 hit for Boston as the Red Sox dumped New York Yankees 9-2 provided the American League highlight — except in Kansas City, where the Royals defeated Minnesota Twins 4-0 to put some pressure on the Western Division-leading California Angels.

Kansas City's victory, combined with Chicago White Sox' 11-5 pasting of the Angels, carried Royals to within three games of California and continued to give the AL its only decent pennant race.

In what must have seemed like an eternity to the Boston veteran, Yastrzemski was shut out 12 straight times in search of his 3,000th career hit.

Then he finally made contact — a single off Yankee reliever Jim Beattie in the eighth inning, in his last time at bat.

Elsewhere in the AL, Toronto Blue Jays edged Baltimore Orioles 3-2; Milwaukee Brewers defeated Oakland A's 7-0; Texas Rangers routed Seattle Mariners 13-3, and Detroit Tigers turned back Cleveland Indians 4-1.

Times News Services

MEXICO CITY — Italy's Pietro Mennea set a world record and frustrated United States' track and field athletes beat themselves out of an almost-sure gold medal in Wednesday's competition at the 10th World University Games.

Mennea, 27, set the only world record of the Games with a spectacular clocking of 19.72 in the 200-metre dash, wiping from the books the 11-year-old standard of 19.83 set by Tommie Smith of the U.S. in the same Olympic Stadium.

"I always wanted to be the fastest," Mennea said, but added: "I kept looking at the results during the awards ceremony because I still couldn't believe it."

PIETRO MENNEA
. . . couldn't believe it

"Medals are hard to come by," said a disappointed James Segrest, the U.S. track and field coach, whose charges have won only two gold medals in 26 events.

And it won't be any easier on today's closing program. The heavily favored U.S. 400-metre relay team didn't even qualify for the final. The baton was dropped on an exchange and the U.S. finished last in their four-team qualifying heat.

The U.S. men's basketball team defeated Yugoslavia 88-70 to clinch the gold medal. Cuba defeated Mexico 71-57 to win the bronze medal.

Earlier Wednesday, the Canadian men's basketball team wrapped up fifth place in the tournament by defeating Bulgaria, 71-64. Canada finished with a 6-2, won-lost record.

Centre Jim Zoet of Port Perry, Ont., was the key man on the Canadian offence, scoring 20 points. Guard Jay Triano of Niagara Falls netted 14 points and forward Romel Raffin of Kitchener added 11.

The Canadians started quickly with a running offence, grabbing a 30-10 lead after only eight minutes of play. At the half Canada's lead had been cut to 41-32.

"We were playing for fifth place, which may not seem like much to most people," said Canadian coach Jack Donohue. "But we lost only two games here and they were to the two teams (United States and Yugoslavia) that are playing for the gold medal."

The Canadian team now will disband until next March when it goes to Hungary and possibly Bulgaria to prepare for the Olympic qualification tournament which is to be held in Puerto Rico in April.

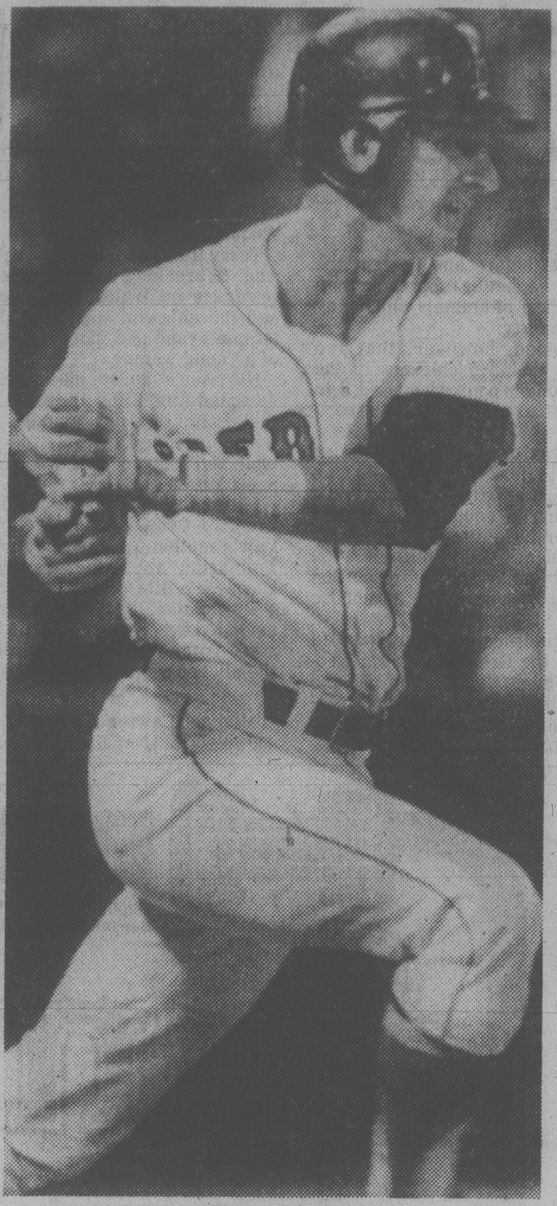
The U.S. water polo team won the gold medal with an 8-6 decision over the Soviet Union in the final game of their round-robin tournament.

Going into the final day of competition, the Soviet Union has 32 gold medals and 72 in all. The U.S. has 19 gold and a total of 49 medals. Romania has 12 golds and 28 overall. Canada has managed only three bronze medals.

Host Mexico beat Uruguay 5-3 in the gold medal soccer game and Hungary won the men's team epee title in fencing.

Ian Newhouse, a 22-year-old native of Edmonton who set a Canadian record by clocking 50.04 in his 400-metre hurdles semi-finals Tuesday, finished eighth in the final in 51.47.

Both Anne Mackie-Morelli and Debbie Campbell were eliminated in their respective heats in the 800 metres. Mackie-Morelli of Vancouver finished fourth in 2:05.05 while Campbell of Victoria ran a 2:12.12.



CARL YASTRZEMSKI
. . . Connects for 3,000th

Yaz finally hits 3,000

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Red Sox can wipe out from the computer "1 TO GO" on the electronic scoreboard.

After 19 years and three frustrating days, Carl Yastrzemski is the first American League player in history to achieve 3,000 hits and 400 home runs.

Captain Carl, a 40-year-old baseball wonder, reached the coveted goal of 3,000 hits Wednesday, driving a single under second baseman Willie Randolph's outstretched glove into right in the eighth inning of Boston's 9-2 victory over New York Yankees.

Bedlam broke loose as the Red Sox mobbed their acknowledged leader at first base and a packed crowd of 34,337 stood, roared and clapped hands.

Somehow New York slugger Reggie Jackson made his way through the mob to present Yastrzemski the ball and offer congratulations. Manager Billy Martin led an exodus from the Yankees' dugout to join in the celebration.

Finally, formal ceremonies were held with league secretary Bob Holbrook presenting Yaz a special scroll.

With his dad, Carl Sr., and son, Mike, 18, at his side, Yastrzemski also accepted a trophy, listing all his many achievements, from Red Sox co-owners Buddy LeRoux and Haywood Sullivan.

"I know one thing — the last hit was the hardest of the 3,000," Yaz told the crowd jokingly. "It took me so long because I really enjoyed the standing ovations you've given me the last three days."

★ ★ ★

He went on to thank his teammates, manager Don Zimmer, the Boston coaches, particularly Walt Hriniak, club president Mrs. Thomas A. Yawkey, widow of the longtime owner, and his family.

"I also wish two people who were my biggest boosters were here — my mother and Mr. Yawkey," he said. "They deserve to be here."

Yastrzemski's mother died after a long battle with cancer three years ago. Yawkey died of leukemia in 1976.

Following the 15-minute festivities, Yastrzemski retired from the game for a pinch-runner. That's the only "retirement" plan in his future.

"I plan to play the rest of the season and come back next year," he said at a post-game news conference.

"The guy has spent hours and hours with me the last three years, starting as early as 7:30 in the morning in spring training, analysing my swing and helping me to make adjustments at bat," Yaz said. "I wouldn't have made it (3,000 hits) without this guy."

★ ★ ★

"After all these years, I wasn't really bothered by pressure," he said. "However, the way the fans have reacted the last three days, I really wanted to get the hit for them. I was anxious at the plate, chasing pitches I wouldn't normally go after."

With his 3,000th hit, Yastrzemski became only the fourth player in major league history to reach that goal while hitting 400 homers, joining Stan Musial, Willie Mays and Hank Aaron, who did it in the National League.

"Hitting 400 homers and getting 3,000 hits is great, but it's not nearly as great as winning the pennant like we did in 1967 and 1975, or even being beaten by one-half game like we were by Detroit in 1972," he said. "Winning, that's what it's all about."

Then, still looking ahead, Yaz, only the 15th player in history to reach 3,000 hits, said:

"There's only one goal left. That's winning another pennant and then the World Series."

Soviet skiers add to interest

TORONTO (CP) — Three entries from the Soviet Union are creating some additional interest among competitors and fans looking ahead to the world water ski championships next week.

"We've never seen them at the world level before," meet organizer Clint Ward said of the Soviet Union athletes. "There have been Soviet observers the last five world competitions, so it's my guess that they are ready to challenge for the championship this time. Otherwise, they wouldn't be here."

Included among the Soviet entrants is Natalie Rumjantseva, who recently set a tricks record of 6,200 points, the first time a woman has gone over 6,000 in that category.

The Canadian team, which hopes to move up to second over all after a third-place finish at the last world championships two years ago in Italy, has a full six-member team entered.

With 106 entrants from 26 countries, official training begins Sunday with eliminations scheduled for Sept. 20-21 and finals Sept. 22-23.

Crump returns, trade unlikely

CALGARY (CP) — Running back Richard Crump returned to the Calgary Stampeders camp Wednesday after a five-day absence during which he was suspended by head coach Jack Gotta.

Crump's future remains uncertain but Gotta said he doubts the Western Football Conference club will soon trade the former Winnipeg Blue Bomber.

"At this point his stock isn't all that high. A week down the road it could be an entirely different story."

Gotta said trade talks were started with three or four clubs while Crump was absent.

One of those clubs is Ottawa Rough Riders. Coach George Brancato has lost Mike Murphy for at least another month and Emmett King has a badly twisted knee, leaving only Calvin Prince.

"I've talked to Jack about Crump and we're interested," Brancato said Wednesday. "But at this point I'm really questioning what's going on in Crump's head."

Crump remains on the suspended list.

Experienced Crusaders first foes for Vic West

Victoria West will have some experienced opposition for their opening test in the four-team Canadian senior amateur soccer championship tournament that starts Friday at Royal Athletic Park.

Holy Cross Crusaders of St. John's, Nfld., has won 24 and tied one out of 27 matches this season. They've scored 58 goals and allowed only 14.

Crusaders, who face Vic West at 8:15 p.m. in the second game Friday, boast seven players from Newfoundland's 1977 Canada Games squad and have an average team age of 22 years.

Four of the other players have at least seven years experience with the club.

Winnipeg Tatra, which earned a spot in the Premier Division of the Manitoba Central League in 1978, captured the Western Canadian title by beating Saskatchewan 4-1 and Alberta 1-0 in a recent tourney.

Tatra is anchored around a nucleus of three veterans — Dave Kerr, Martyn Daly and Dave McKenzie.

Bob Cram, a new coach this season, has managed to successfully combine youth and experience while guiding the squad to its best season to date.

Tatra will face LaSalle Olympics of Quebec in the opening game at 6 p.m. Friday.

On Saturday, Olympics and Crusaders clash at 1:15 and Vic West takes on Tatra at 3 p.m.

The championship final is scheduled for 1:15 p.m. Sunday.

Lineups of all teams:

Squash stars to continue series tonight at Sussex

Two of the brightest stars in the world of squash will be squaring off tonight at the Sussex Club.

Sharif Khan, 34, who has held the North American championship for the past 10 years, will face 33-year-old Bryan Patterson, who is ranked third among Britain's squash professionals and 22nd in the world.

Khan won the first two meetings on the exhibition schedule in Prince George and Calgary while Patterson notched a victory Tuesday in Vancouver.

Both players will be competing in the world championship in Toronto later this month.

Cougar rookies pack early punch

Rookies supplied all the scoring finish Wednesday as the Victoria Cougars started towards their pre-season Western Hockey League exhibition schedule.

Don Deschenes, Clay Rezansoff and Clay Nygaard scored for the Blues while Dave Wheeldon, Larry Mikituk and Darryl Coldwell replied for Whites as teams battled to a 3-3 tie in the team's intra-squad game at Pearkes Arena.

Now down to 42 players after five days of workouts, the Cougars launch their seven-game exhibition schedule Friday by meeting the New Westminster Bruins in Powell River.

The Bruins and other WHL rivals already have started on their exhibitions.

And at Fort Saskatchewan, Alta., Mark Schneider, Bart Yachimec, Don Ross, Dave Babych and Tom McGillivray each connected once as Portland Winter Hawks edged Great Falls Americans 5-3. Ryan Switzer, Dave Barr and Mike Johnson replied for the Americans, formerly the Edmonton Oil Kings.

WESTERN The Action SPEEDWAY

Max Low

Cheer up all you mums and dads whose little Jimmy or Joan didn't gain recognition for their endeavours at one of the recent B.C. Soccer Commission's Summer Soccer Schools. Things may be different next summer.

Now in their third year in the province and the second on the Island, the schools were immensely popular this summer, due no doubt to the wonderful Whitecaps. In Greater Victoria, where officials decided on an ideal weekly number of 48 kids for the three instructors to handle, more youngsters were turned away than got to take part.

There's no doubt that the kids loved the schools and for a couple of months everywhere you went you could see them proudly wearing their bright red Summer Soccer School T-shirts and booting their free soccer balls.

But some parents were a little dismayed at the competitiveness of the whole thing. They didn't like the way the kids were told on the Monday morning that they would be taught the basic skills all week and there would be "a big test" on Friday. And they liked it even less when following the tests some youngsters were awarded bronze, silver or gold crests or sometimes even the prized gold award of excellence, and many left with nothing.

Let me say straight off that this is not a question of sour grapes. My own three children, who are soccer fanatics, went to the summer school in Duncan where head instructor Eddie Paver did a marvellous job with all the kids. My three all won crests and, in fact, out of 115 taking part in the last two weeks only three youngsters captured the gold award of excellence and they included my son aged eight and daughter aged 10. She was the first girl (and they compete on an even athletic basis with the boys) in the history of the soccer school to win the top award.

Then they have all been learning the game for several years. So had a lot of the others. But many were just starting and it was quite a letdown after trying all week to be awarded nothing.

One set of parents told me their little boy loved the exercises and scrimmages all week but hated the tests and felt he'd somehow failed the whole thing miserably because he didn't get a crest.

"My son had been keen to register for soccer for the first time this winter but now, after going to the Summer Soccer School, he has lost interest," another woman told me.

Central Junior High School teacher David Keith, now the Canadian staff coach for B.C. and the Yukon, and the man responsible for the soccer schools on the Lower Island, was quick to defend the concept.

"Undoubtedly, it's beneficial," he said. "Firstly, we had somewhere between 12,000 and 15,000 youngsters go through the schools in B.C. this summer. Every single kid gets a free ball and that's important as we're putting up to 15,000 new balls into action in the province.

Keith was very happy with the way things went during the summer schools on the Lower Island where they ran for eight weeks at Cedar Hill (with an average of 48 kids each week), for two weeks at Juan de Fuca (66 and 64) and one week at Esquimalt (55).

"We literally turned as many youngsters away so you can see the program is extremely popular," he said.

Oh, I agree. It is. And I can agree, too, that skill and dedication should be rewarded. But so should effort, even it it's only with a token crest to show they took part. The thought of a child being unhappy or, worse still, being put off the game, because he got nothing, makes me sad.

★ ★ ★

But Keith thought it was the parents, rather than the kids, who were unhappy.

After the first week at Cedar Hill, only three parents out of 48 said they thought there was too much pressure on the youngsters and they all had kids in the six to eight-year group.

"My feeling was that the boys themselves weren't too bothered but Mum was," Keith said. "So we overcame the problem at Cedar Hill by handing out participation crests to those who didn't win anything and we didn't have any trouble after that."

And the province's staff coach said he has already sent in a recommendation for participation crests to be included at all schools next year.

So there you have it. You can send little Jimmy and Joan along next summer . . . and this time they'll both get something!

Athletics roll into cup final

Victoria Athletics connected for two goals in each half Wednesday night to gain a berth in the final of the McGavin Cup competition for first division teams in the Vancouver Island Soccer League.

Jeff Arnott booted home a hard cross from Dave McCaig at 38 minutes and Steve Carroll converted Murray McCaig's corner kick into a 2-0 lead for Athletics five minutes later.

Twenty minutes later, Murray McCaig gained back the two-goal margin by heading in a bouncing ball and Mark Robb completed scoring for A's with five minutes remaining on a pass from George Pakos.

Victoria West and Gorge meet in the other semi next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Royal Athletic and the final is scheduled for the same time and site Sept. 26.

Wisconsin veteran bids for Canada 200 honors

Local jalopy and stock car pilots will share the spotlight with some talented open super-stock drivers during the eighth annual Canada 200 event Friday and Saturday at Western Speedway.

Action gets underway at 7 each evening.

Time trials and two heat races for each of the three vehicle classes are scheduled Friday with three trophy dashes and six main events slated for Saturday.

The features consist of two 20-lap jalopy and two 20-lap stock car main events as well as a pair of 60-lap open super-stock battles.

Miller, who competes in approximately 120 races each year, recently won two 100-lap features and finished second in the Amsoil 300 at the Michigan State Fair.

The veteran, who competes in a 1978 Oldsmobile, came close to winning two races at Western Speedway during this year's Speedweek Northwest series but was forced out both times with mechanical problems.

One of the leading opponents for Miller is Victoria's Roy Smith, driving a 1979 Grand Am owned by Bob Beadle of Seattle.

Smith has won the NASCAR Northwest Late Model Sportsman championship and claimed the Yakima and Evergreen titles in the same class.

As well as being the first Canadian to win a NASCAR title, Smith currently holds the track records at Evergreen, Portland and Yakima.

Other Victorians in the running are Rick O'Dell, in his J.R. Edgett '77 Camaro; Roy Haslam, a past winner of the Canada 200 in a '77 Camaro; Joe Musfelt, current track record holder at Western in a big-block '74 Camaro; Ernie West, Bill Hitchcox, Sieg Sawatzki, Larry Pollard and Orton Kerr.

Rounding out the entry list are Del Kornelson of Calgary, Marsh Mammyluk of St. Albert, Alta., Norm Ellefson of Spokane, Buddy Lynds of Surrey, Kirk Rogers of Otis Orchards, Wash., Alan Adams of Surrey, Tom Waller of Tacoma, Al Tourand of Surrey, Tony Heckart of Yakima and Tom Berrow of Langley.

There is a distinct possibility the jalopy and stock car features will form the championship races for those classes.

"We're considering calling them the championships because of the weather factor," said Speedway manager Tony Mortel.

There have been "seven or eight" rainouts so far this season and Mortel would like to end the season sooner than scheduled.

In addition to the racing action, crews will be able to compete in a pit-stop competition for $500 Friday night.

Pat Vidan of Portland, who worked as chief starter for the Indianapolis 500 for 18 years, will serve in the same capacity during the Canada 200.

Canadians win opener

BATH, England (Reuter) — The Canadian rugby union team opened a four-match tour of Britain with a 15-6 win over Somerset on Wednesday.

Although their pack could not match up to Somerset's eight, the Canadians showed more thrust behind the scrum and won by two converted tries and a penalty goal to two penalties.

Despite getting a major share of possession from the forward duels, Somerset was unable to make much impression on the hard-tackling Canadian defence. Only fly half John Palmer, an England B international, had the skill to threaten the Canadian cover.

The Canadians, with far fewer opportunities, ran much more dangerously and but for poor finishing might have scored several more tries.

After an early sxchange of penalties between Palmer and Canadian forward Jim Donaldson of Richmond, the Canadians scored the first try in the 25th minute. Following a charged-down defensive kick, Robin Russell of Vancouver crossed for a try which Donaldson converted.

Palmer kicked a second penalty for Somerset in the second half, but the Canadians broke out again for a try by flanker Gary Grant of University of Victoria in the 65th minute. Donaldson again converted.

Other Vancouver Islanders on the Canadian team are lock Hans de Goede, prop Ron McInnes, hooker Ray Rogers and wing-fullback Chuck Shergold — all of James Bay Athletic Association; lock Chris Fowler, flanker Dennis Sinnott and outside half Pat Trelawny of Oak Bay Wanderers and prop Dwaine Van Eeuwen of Cowichan.

Danes clipped

WEMBLEY, England (AP) — Kevin Keegan led England to a 1-0 win over Denmark in a European championship Group 1 soccer match at Wembley Stadium Wednesday night.

Keegan, playing despite a muscle injury, scored the only goal in the 16th minute, and constantly troubled the Danish defence with a tireless performance.

The Danes, making their first appearance at Wembley, gave a neat, intelligent display but were unable to break through the well-organized England defence.

England lacked punch in attack and the home team's performance did not please a crowd of 85,000.

The victory virtually insured England's place in the European championship quarter-finals in Italy next year. England now has nine points from five games, two more than Northern Ireland, which has played one game more in its qualifying group.

Other scores:

Iceland 0 East Germany 3
Switzerland 0 Poland 2
Exhibition
West Germany 2 Argentina 1
Scotland 1 Peru 1
Under-21 International
Ireland 1 Poland 1

Roughies take look at Sanders

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders are dropping one quarterback and giving another a chance to make the Canadian Football League team.

Danny Sanders, 6-4, 203 pounds, has been put on a five-day trial after being acquired on waivers from Hamilton. He was an 11th round draft pick of New York Jets this year.

The five-day trial of Mike Cordova, cut by San Francisco '49ers this year, has been terminated.

Ann Meyers wrong size

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Ann Meyers convinced Indiana Pacer coach Bobby Leonard she knew the fundamentals of basketball well enough to play in the National Basketball Association. But, Leonard said her size just wasn't right.

"If she was six inches bigger and 40 pounds heavier, it would have been a different story," Leonard said Wednesday after he told the 5-foot-9, 140-pound Meyers that she had failed in her bid to become the first woman to play in the NBA.

"I personally feel Ann did a great job from the fundamental standpoint of knowing the game of basketball," Leonard said. "I wish some guys out there tonight were as fundamentally sound as her."

Meyers, an All-American women's player at University of California at Los Angeles and a U.S. Olympic star in Montreal who will remain with the club in some capacity, took the news calmly.

"I'm happy with myself," she said. "I did the best I could. The players were super to me. Slick (Leonard) and his assistants showed me a lot of things that I did wrong."

Sam Nassi, the club's owner who decided to give Meyers her opportunity, said no definite decision had been reached concerning a future role with the team.

"She has already had an offer from one television station and an offer from a radio station to do color commentary for 82 games," he said. "We can definitely use her in the administrative end of the organization."

Nassi said he had no second thoughts about Meyers' trial.

"She definitely wasn't the worst player on the court," he said. "I thrilled I did it. I brought the best possible woman player here."

The owner said he had no idea if he or some other team might give another woman a trial in the future.

"But, I do know that for her to be successful, she'll have to be faster than Ann and be built bigger."

Spurs sign Kenon

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Free agent forward Larry Kenon, whose signing by Los Angeles was blocked when the Lakers and San Antonio Spurs couldn't agree on compensation, returned Wednesday to the Spurs for the 1979-80 season.

Kenon, a 6-foot-9, two-time National Basketball Association all-star, signed a one-year contract. At the end of the season he will once again be free to sign with any team.

If he doesn't find the right deal then, he could choose to sign another one-year contract. After the 1980-81 season, the NBA's free agent policy changes dramatically.

Visitors win

University of County Cork, on tour from the Irish Republic, tripped Oak Bay Wanderers of the Vancouver Island Rugby Union 15-3 in an exhibition match Wednesday at the University of Victoria.

All the scoring was produced by kickers.

Hull's position 'embarrassing' to Jets

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Jets' president Michael Gobuty says he doesn't think Bobby Hull will be playing for any National Hockey League team.

"I can't go any further," Gobuty said Wednesday after talks in Toronto.

"It's become embarrassing to the Jets. Bobby gave us seven good years and he's made Winnipeg in many ways, but I can bend only so far, then the straw breaks."

Gobuty, a personal friend and business partner with Hull, dismissed as "verbal diarrhea" reports that a deal had been worked out to allow the veteran winger to return to Chicago Black Hawks.

New arena for Toronto?

TORONTO (CP) — Harold Ballard, owner of Toronto Maple Leafs, says he's considering building a new 25,000-seat arena to house the National Hockey League Club. Ballard said the new arena would take about a year to build, and plans call for Maple Leaf Gardens to be torn down.

INTRODUCING THE GENERAL VSR!

Now one tire does what two did before!

Meet General's first all-weather tire - the new VSR. The versatile steel radial. And versatile it is. This tire takes the seasons in its stride - rain, sleet, slush and snow. Let the seasons change. You don't have to.

How can one tire do what two did before? Look at the tread pattern for the answer. Notice the "scrambled egg" effect of the tread. Hundreds of gripping edges that seem to move off in all directions. The tread has been designed to challenge the road under all conditions and name its own terms. Let the seasons change, you don't have to. You leave this tire on your car right around the year, for the life of the tire.

With two steel belts and a special rubber compound, the VSR shrugs off all the punishment the road can throw at it. And comes back for more. The VSR rolls smooth, flexes when it should flex and builds up less heat to deliver the long tire life you're looking for.

See your General Tire dealer. Ask him about the new General VSR.

Sooner or later, you'll own Generals

Orr youngest to enter Hall

TORONTO (CP) — Three former National Hockey League greats — Bobby Orr, Harry Howell, Henri Richard — and Gordon Juckes, a life member of the International Ice Hockey Federation, were inducted Wednesday into the Canadian Hockey Hall of Fame.

Despite a knee injury that plagued him throughout his career, Orr won the NHL rokie-of-the-year award in the 1966-67 season, was named the league's top defenceman and a first-team all-star for the next eight seasons, was the league's most valuable player three times and was the outstanding player of the NHL playoffs twice.

"It's a very, very special day for my family, my wife," the Parry Sound, Ont., native said during the induction ceremonies. "I'm just delighted."

Orr also counts the Lou Marsh trophy as Canada's top male athlete and the Lester Patrick trophy for contribution to hockey in the United States among his other honors.

However, he indicated a longing to be a player once more.

"I wish we were not being elected to the Hall of Fame," Orr said. "I wish I were playing but I can no longer play and I'm just delighted that I am being inducted tonight to the Hall of Fame."

He missed part of his sophomore year in the NHL 1967-68 when he suffered a shoulder separation and torn cartilage in his left knee on which he had surgery.

Orr became a free agent after the 1975-76 season and signed with Chicago Black Hawks, playing just 20 games before having his sixth knee operation in April, 1977. He sat out the 1977-78 season and tried a comeback the next year, but played just six games before retiring.

Small in stature — 5-7 and 160 pounds — he scored 358 goals with 688 assists in 1,256 regular season games and was named to all-star teams four times. In 180 playoff games he scored 49 goals and earned 80 assists.

A blanking getaway

Shutouts appeared to be the order of the day Wednesday as play got underway in the Lower Vancouver Island High School Girls Field Hockey League.

Mt. Douglas tripped Parkland 4-0 and Spectrum topped Victoria 5-0 in "A" division play while Dunsmuir dropped St. Michael's University School 6-0 in the lone "B" division match.

Lori Green and Alison Snow each scored twice for Mt. Douglas.

Other teams in the "A" division are Norfolk House, Oak Bay and St. Michael's while Mt. Douglas, Belmont, St. Margaret's, Reynolds and Claremont complete the "B" division.

Edmonton to bid for 1983 Games

EDMONTON (CP) — City council has agreed to make an official bid to hold the 1983 Western Canada Summer Games which are expected to attract 1,600 athletes from across the Prairies and British Columbia.

The games were first held in Regina in 1975 and in Saskatoon last month.

Scholarships awarded hoop trio

Three players from the Greater Victoria area have been selected to receive scholarships presented annually by the Vancouver Island Senior Secondary Boys' Basketball Association.

Steve Salt and Tom Raine of Belmont Braves and John Hewer of Oak Bay Bays are the winners for 1978-79.

The association considers basketball ability, academic achievement, citizenship and sportsmanship in selecting winners of the awards, which were made possible this year by a contribution from the Strathcona Trust for British Columbia.

Aspartame passes test as sugar substitute

OTTAWA (UPC) — The federal health protection branch will recommend that Aspartame, a potentially revolutionary no-calorie sugar substitute, be licensed for use in a wide range of foods and soft drinks as a successor to saccharine.

"Aspartame has the potential for extensive and escalating use in foods, beverages and as a table-top sweetener," Assistant Deputy Minister of Health A.B. Morrison said a statement.

"The data on the safety of Aspartame are the most comprehensive ever received by the department in support of a food additive," the head of the health protection branch said.

Health Minister David Crombie will be asked to license the successor to the banned artificial sweetener saccharine, providing foods containing it are labeled and the food industry carries out a five-year study to monitor the effects on high-volume users.

The seven-page technical report prepared by the division of the federal health department said extensive testing of the white, odorless, intensely sweet sugar substitute showed no harmful side effects.

Maple Leaf a best seller

OTTAWA (CP) — Sales of Canada's two-week-old gold bullion coin have been so brisk that the mint has been swamped with requests from distributors to speed production.

That is not possible, Yvon Gariepy, master of the mint, said in an interview Wednesday.

"We're most encouraged, there is no question about it, but we are already producing at maximum capacity."

The Maple Leaf, which went on sale Sept. 5, has been selling equally in Canada, the United States and Europe, Gariepy said.

"I am not surprised. "Since we began early consultations for the the program (more than two years ago), we were told the bullion coin was definitely going to be popular."

A spokesman for the Bank of Nova Scotia, one of the two Candian banks distributing the coin, said orders are coming in rapidly from across the country.

However, he said, many investment dealers and mining officials wonder if the program could be run more efficiently and profitably if the coins were produced by private industry instead of the government-owned Royal Canadian Mint.

The one-ounce coin has a face value of $50, but its day-to-day market value depends on the price of gold, which traded Tuesday on the London market at $339.50.

Buyers pay this price plus a three-per-cent premium which covers distribution, production and advertising costs.

Gariepy said production is limited by the capacity of the mint, the output of the country's gold mines and the terms of the program spelled out in its mandate from Parliament.

The government has authorized the mint to produce one million coins this year and two million coins for each of the subsequent two years of its three-year trial program.

Police ask for help

TORONTO (UPC) — Toronto police have launched a public appeal for support in the raging controversy that has brought criticism from black groups and the mayor after the shooting death of a black man.

In full-page newspaper ads headed "We can't do it without you," the Metropolitan Toronto Police Association said Wednesday "we're going to keep doing our work proudly and to the best of our human ability, no matter what.

"But right now, what we need most is your support."

A black civil rights lawyer, however, says there will be bloodshed in the streets of Toronto unless strong action is taken soon to calm the racial turmoil caused by the shooting of Albert Johnson.

"It's pretty close to that," said Charles Roach, a lawyer seeking a public, independent investigation in the slaying of the 35-year-old black immigrant.

Roach said in an interview that Toronto's 150,000-member black community is also pressing for the police to be tried for murder but it is afraid of a cover-up by the Metro police commission, city council and Roy McMurtry, Ontario attorney-general.

Boat people appeal opens

OTTAWA (UPC) — Former governor-general Roland Michener and Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, named to head the Canadian Foundation for Refugees, Wednesday appealed to Canadians to ease the human tragedy of the Vietnamese boat people.

The foundation will administer funds collected from the public to resettle 50,000 Indochinese refugees.

Alta. backs right to work

EDMONTON (CP) — Albertans have the right to work regardless of whether they are members of a union, Court of Appeal ruled Wednesday.

In a test challenge to the Alberta Labor Act expected to have wide repercussions in unionized projects such as Syncrude, the three appeal judges ruled in favor of the right to work and against certain closed shop practices.

"It will cause labor unrest in many camps," said Andy Sims, counsel for Local 47 of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders International Union. "Some unionists feel very strongly about working with non-unionists."

In the decision, the judges rejected a key appeal by the restaurant workers union, which had pressured an employer into firing two men after they were expelled from the union.

The decision upheld a previous court ruling that stated the men had a right to continue working at Evergreen Services Ltd. despite a closed shop policy which prevented any non-union member from working.

Tim Christian, successful lawyer for the two men, said the decision meant "so long as you pay your dues, being a union member on a closed shop project doesn't matter."

The Alberta Labor Act allows closed shops, but a 1973 amendment states no employer can fire a person who has lost union membership for any reason except non-payment of dues.

The amendment was untested in court until Wednesday, when the judges ruled it takes precedent over a second section of the act allowing closed shop agreements.

Commons link to KGB seen

OTTAWA (UPC) — A senior Soviet official in Montreal may have received confidential information from House of Commons staff while representing Soviet interests in Canada for the past seven years, Conservative MP Tom Cossitt has charged.

In a letter to Commons Clerk Charles Koester made public Wednesday, Cossitt said Soviet Consul-General Vladimar Ivanovich Gavryushkin was "frequently accompanied" by known or suspected members of the Russian intelligence service (KGB).

"Absolutely reliable sources have informed me that security records show that this individual has represented the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union in Canada for seven years," Cossitt said.

"He has frequently visited the offices of certain Members of Parliament, that he has been contacted and (was) given information by certain persons on the staff of the House of Commons."

The Soviet embassy could not be reached for comment.

Last week, Cossitt alleged that few if any of the 3,000 people who work on Parliament Hill were screened for criminal records or subversive connections when they were hired.

Privy Council President Walter Baker has ordered Koester to investigate Cossitt's earlier charges.

Cossitt said Gavryushkin is stated in security files to have "reported directly to a Mr. Arbatov" in the Soviet Union, who allegedly is on a "friendly basis" with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev.

"Any denial that security records show this information would be contrary to the truth," the Tory MP said.

Cossitt also said the nine-member, plain-clothes security staff on Parliament Hill is "totally inadequate" to handle security for the four main government buildings.

Gift horse neighed again

TORONTO (UPC) — A local disco waitress has again refused to be saddled with a gift horse from a would-be suitor, but the lovestruck customer says he just won't take neigh for an answer.

"I"m going to work on her. This girl gives me sort of vibes," businessman Doug Vaughan, 40, said after 19-year-old Liz Gould refused again this week to accept his gift of a dun gelding named Dom Perignon.

Vaughan, who runs Carriage Trade Art and Taste Ltd., has twice had the nine-year-old horse delivered to the local disco The Chimes.

"I think it's funny and a nice idea, but I just couldn't accept such a gift," Gould said.

Vaughan said he got the idea of giving Gould the more than $1,000 gift horse when the waitress told him during one of his regular visits to the night spot that her hobby was riding.

Backlash feared against aged

TORONTO (CP) — A backlash may develop against the ever-increasing numbers of elderly people when Canadians are faced with the burden of supporting them, says a University of Toronto professor.

Albert Rose said Tuesday that the number of people over the age of 65 will increase to about 3,340,000 by the turn of the century from 1,744,000 in 1971.

And the annual cost of providing for them could rise to a staggering $12 billion from the present $5.4 billion, he said.

He also told delegates attending the annual meeting of the Ontario Pyschogeriatric Association that the elderly population will almost double again in the 30 years following the year 2000.

"The political reality will force governments to make difficult decisions with respect to the allocation of scarce resources."

Rose said the pinch already was being felt.

"In Ontario, no new homes for the aged are being built under public auspices, no new licenses are being issued for nursing homes and modest activity is under way in the field of institutions."

He said an average elderly couple in Ontario now have a reasonable income of about $700 a month from pensions and federal and provincial assistance, but single persons already live way below the $4,459 per year poverty line.

Bill for senility rising to billions

TORONTO (CP) — Care for mentally-disturbed elderly people in Canada will cost billions of dollars unless an answer can be found to the problem of senility, a Montreal doctor said Wednesday.

Dr. Joyce Boillat, director of the geriatric and medical program at Douglas Hospital, predicted that North America will have 40 million elderly people by the year 2000, of which four million will be mentally disturbed.

"The funds available in geriatrics are minimal, and yet the problems are so huge," she said.

'Chemical straitjackets'

TORONTO (CP) — Mood-changing drugs prescribed too liberally by doctors can have damaging effects on the mental health of the elderly, a Toronto doctor says.

Dr. T. J. McCann, chief of chronic care service at Queen Elizabeth Hopital, said Tuesday that doctors who prescribe drugs too liberally and nurses who oversedate patients can precipitate acute psychiatric illness in the elderly.

McCann was speaking at the annual meeting of the Ontario Psychogeriatric Association. He said some hospitals were using drugs as "a chemical straitjacket" so the patients would not disturb the staff.

"In long-term-care institutions, the over-prescribing of mood-modifying drugs is not done for the benefit of patients but as a deliberate method of keeping patients subdued so that they create a minimum of disturbance for the staff."

He did not identify any of the institutions.

He said drug abuse in the elderly can be considered an epidemic. Those over 65 represent only eight per cent of Canada's population, but they use 22 per cent of prescribed drugs.

Labor attacks UIC cuts

OTTAWA (UPC) — The federal government and the country's largest labor union have differed sharply over Conservative propsosals to cut or reduce unemployment insurance benefits.

Treasury Board President Sinclair Stevens met resistance from Canadian Labor Congress Vice President Shirley Carr Wednesday, who claimed the proposals would be disastrous to the unemployed.

Stevens, addressing a group of public servants involved in financial management, said the ease of obtaining unemployment insurance benefits had encouraged employers to lay off workers for short terms.

"It has been helping employers keep costs down," Stevens said, because they know workers will be paid by the government during the time they are not needed. "In that sense it has been a disincentive to employment."

A question of quality

Advertising effectiveness is a question of exposure — exposure of an advertising message, to potential buyers of a product or service. "Numbers" therefore, is the name of the game.

An advertiser looks for the medium with the best numbers and the media in turn promote their numbers as being better than those of their competition. It's at this point that the question of quality arises.

If you are an advertiser, we suggest you look carefully at the "numbers", in particular the quality of the numbers.

In our case the "numbers" quoted for The Daily Colonist and Victoria Times is the total number of copies paid for by our customers every day. That's quality — quality circulation, providing the best exposure for your advertising message.

Our numbers today OVER 80,000

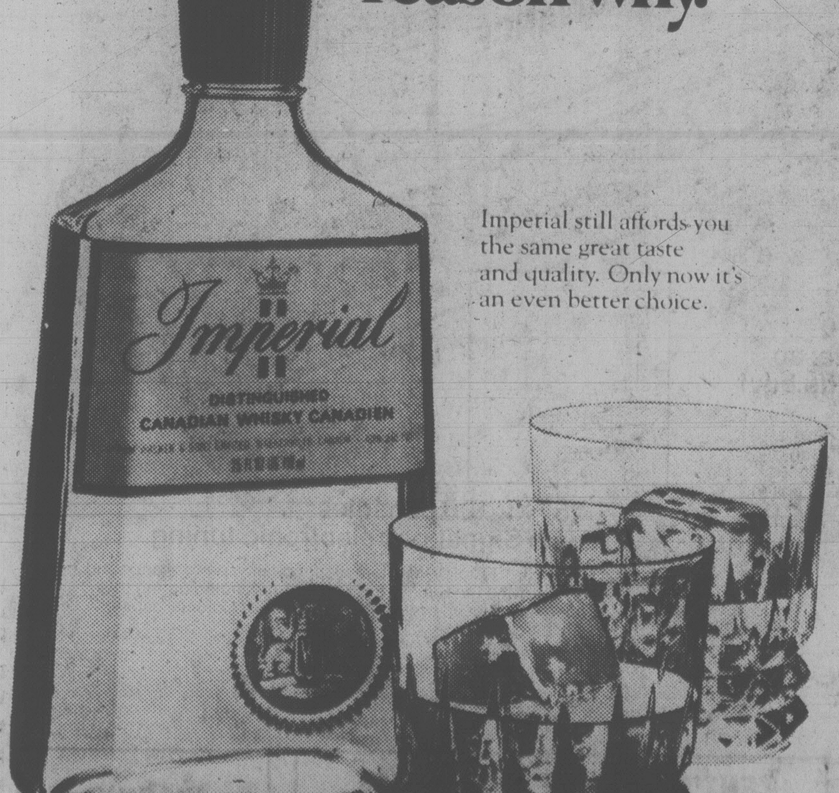
Now there's another reason why.

Imperial still affords you the same great taste and quality. Only now it's an even better choice.



Hope abandoned for tuna accord

OTTAWA (UPC) — Canada-U.S talks aimed at resolving the West Coast tuna fishing dispute have ended without a settlement, a spokesman for the Canadian fisheries department says.

Both sides abandoned hope Wednesday of a settlement this season in the dispute that led to the seizure of 19 American tuna boats for violating Canadian waters.

"The two sides examined the possibility of reaching agreement for the 1979 tuna fishing season but it was concluded that because of the short time remaining in the season it would not be feasible to do so," negotiators said in a joint statement at the conclusion of a day of talks.

"It was agreed that the two sides would meet again to pursue the discussion after an opportunity for consultations with fisheries interests on the West Coast," the communique said.

Canadian and U.S. delegations had tried to reach an agreement in Ottawa that would have ended the dispute over jurisdiction and allowed U.S. boats to fish for albacore tuna inside Canadian waters next year.

John Negroponte, U.S. Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Oceans and Fisheries, and Marcel Cadieux, Canada's special negotiator for maritime boundaries, said, however, there had been progress only on finding "possible avenues for future cooperation."

Canada seized 19 U.S. tuna boats for fishing inside its 320-kilometer (200-mile) fishing zone and released them on $5,000 bond each. The United States, which has a 19-kilometer (12-mile) fishing zone, does not recognize Canadian jurisdiction.

Canadian fisheries department spokesman Charles Friend said the end to this albacore tuna season had cooled off the dispute but it may resurface in the future because the tuna migrate in three-year cycles.

"Right now the tuna are solving the problems. They're now leaving Canadian waters because it's too cool for them," he said. "But since we expect them back, they are looking for a solution.

The skippers of the American tuna boats, seized in Canadian waters off the Queen Charlotte Islands, have been ordered to appear for trial in November.

The effort to end the dipute over tuna is part of a series of discussions the two countries have conducted since talks began more than a year ago for a new agreement on maritime boundaries and fishing rights.

In Ottawa, meanwhile, Fisheries Minister James McGrath said today he thinks Washington now realizes the United States must offer concessions to get fishing rights for albacore tuna in Canadian waters.

McGrath told reporters today "there has to be a trade-off — that's the only way we have these kinds of (fishing) agreements."

McGrath said Canada is seeking several concessions from the U.S. in exchange for rights to catch tuna in Canadian waters. These include such steps as preventing growth of a major herring fishery in American waters and allowing Canadian fishermen to catch halibut in Alaskan waters.

RCMP band performs on Sept. 20

The Ottawa-based RCMP band will perform Sept. 20 at 8 p.m. in Spencer High School's auditorium, 1028 Goldstream Avenue.

The 33-piece group, under the direction of Kenneth R. Moore, will play music arranged and written for the band's recent CBC broadcasts.

Tickets are available at the Colwood United Pharmacy, People's Drug Mart in the Westbrook Plaza and from any member of the school's band.

N-plant hazard talks proposed

VANCOUVER (UPC) — Canada's concern about the danger of a nuclear disaster in Washington state devastating B.C.'s lower mainland should be raised at the "highest level" of the U.S. government, says federal environment minister John Fraser.

Fraser said Wednesday the Canadian government was aware of the close proximity to B.C. of three American plants, and the possible danger in the event of a breakdown similar to that at Three Mile Island.

"I think the subject of nuclear plants should be discussed at the highest diplomatic level," Fraser said. "The concern of the prime minister has already been expressed and an all-Parliamentary committee will look into all aspects (of nuclear plants)."

Fraser and Sen. Robert de Cotret, federal industry, trade and commerce minister, met with several B.C. ministers late Wednesday as part of a cross-country economic policy-programming tour.

Meanwhile, Fraser also said the federal government will not permit Seattle CityLight to flood the Skagit Valley. He said the utility should stop believing it eventually will get the go-ahead to flood the valley, 145 kilometres east of Vancouver.

"We're not caving in," Fraser said.

"The position I continue to take is that the flooding of that valley is non-negotiable."

Blonde enters the life of Hawaii Five-O's McGarrett

HONOLULU (Reuter) — A blonde has entered the life of Steve McGarrett, and the dedicated, unbending chief of the elite police squad Hawaii Five-O is mellowing.

"I don't think he is going soft, just mellowing," says actor Jack Lord, who has played McGarrett for the entire 12 years of the television series and swears this is "definitely, absolutely, no question about it" his last year of solving Hawaii's crimes.

Hawaii Five-O, the longest-running series on U.S. television and a popular program in 91 other countries, has finally broken its men-only rule in the squad.

A slim blonde, Sharon Farrell, is joining the unit this season and there is a smell of romance in the air.

"I think it is time we broke away from the male macho junk," Lord says. "Women's lib is with us whether we like it or not, and I happen to like it."

Will there be romantic interludes between solving murders?

"There will be no love interest, but a gentlemanly aspect will come into the series. . . McGarrett has got to understand a woman's problems."

Miss Farrell is not so certain about the absence of romance.

"I think there is a romantic triangle developing between myself and Jack and another newcomer to the squad, played by William Smith.

"Bill pushes me around and Jack is nice to me."

Smith, who broke into films through Westerns because he could "sit tall in the saddle and squint well," also smells romance.

"I have heard the writers will develop something between me and the blonde," he says. "But, so far, I regard her with a bit of skepticism in the series, not sure whether she can do the job."

The outcome, though, will be the way Jack Lord finally decides it will be.

"Someone has to give the orders and see the job is done," he says. "This is a very businesslike crew and I keep it that way."

"I had to take over the responsibilities of exeuctive producer. I never took a title and I don't want one. But someone has to have authority and say we can't do this or that.

"But now I get very weary, very tired at the end of a day's shooting because we have so much to do. I have been on this treadmill for so many years I don't know how my wife has put up with me."

His wife of 26 years, dress designer Marie de Narde, "is my everything, my inspiration, my best girl, my dame, everything," Lord says.

Strikes black out U.K.'s ITV screen

LONDON (AP) — For the last four weeks, a card bearing just 30 words has replaced all programs on screens tuned to the commercial half of Britain's television service.

It reads: "Independent Television. Because of the present industrial dispute we are sorry that there will be no programs on this channel today. We will give you more information when we can."

Behind the words lies unemployment for more than 1,000 actors and actresses, 13,000 technicians and other off-screen television workers and hundreds of newscasters, interviewers, reporters, musicians, researchers and others, and lost advertising revenue of about $2.2 million a day.

The dispute began Aug. 11, when 6,000 technicians and electricians belonging to the Association of Cinematograph, Television and Allied Technicians walked out in a pay dispute.

Independent Television, or ITV, comprises the 15 firms which make up the Independent Television Companies Association.

It represents the commercial half of British television. The other half is made up of programs put out by the British Broadcasting Corp., which bans commercials from its network. The BBC is not affected by the strike.

Two other unions, the National Association of Theatrical, Television and Kine Employees and the Electrical and Plumbing Trades Union, with a combined ITV membership of 7,000, supported the strike.

New Canada bonds issue offering 10.25% interest

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Crosbie said today the new fall issue of Canada Savings Bonds will probably sell well despite comments from some financial analysists that better interest rates can be obtained elsewhere.

Crosbie joked with reporters as he entered a meeting of the inner cabinet that he would buy the new 10.25-per-cent bonds himself "if I had any money." Crosbie is independently wealthy.

"I don't know how long I'd keep them,'' he added.

The federal government will offer investors a return of 10.25 percent on 1979-80 series Canada Savings Bonds until the bonds mature in 1986, Crosbie announced earlier today.

He said the new series would be offered in two forms — the regular interest bond which pays interest annually, and the compound interest bond on which interest is allowed to accrue until maturity.

Individual purchase limits have been set at $25,000 and are available only to Canadian residents. Crosbie also said a plan is being formulated to allow more than 6,000 firms and organizations to operate payroll savings plans to permit employees to acquire compound interest bonds,

The bonds, dated Nov. 1, will go on sale Oct. 9. However, there will be no charge made for accrued interest on bonds purchased up to Nov. 15.

Regular and compound interest bonds will be available in denominations of $300, $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000, while compound bonds will also be available in a $100 denomination.

For example, a $1,000 bond held to maturity will have a redemption value of $1,979.93.

Crosbie said the interest rate was one of the great features of the bonds in that it is guaranteed for seven years and the bonds can be cashed in anytime.

He said that although some banks and trust companies have announced that interest rates on savings accounts will rise soon to 10.5 per cent, these rates can change anytime.

Crosbie announced Wednesday that the interest rate on Canada Savings Bonds sold over the last five years will also be increased to 10.25 per cent.

This increase was apparently designed to discourage bond holders from cashing them in to buy the new higher-rate bonds for this fall which go on sale Oct. 9.

The higher interest rates on previously-sold bonds will be paid as a cash bonus at maturity on bonds sold in 1974 and 1975 and 1976.

3 Tory workers named to Senate

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has given Senate appointments to some Progressive Conservative party workers who helped Joe Clark win the May 22 federal election.

Prime Minister Clark's office announced today that Lowell Murray, the Conservative campaign chairman, has been named to the upper chamber.

Also named is former MP James Balfour of Regina, who worked hard to help Clark take over from Liberal prime minister Trudeau.

A third is Richard Donahoe of Halifax, a veteran Conservative political in Nova Scotia.

A spokesman in the prime minister's office said more announcements may come Friday.

Rumors here in the last few days have said Murray is among several Senate appointments expected. Others prominently mentioned are MP Marcel Lambert of Edmonton, who is expected to be Senate Speaker, and Heath Macquarrie of Prince Edward Island, veteran MP.

Finlay MacDonald, Halifax broadcaster and long-time Conservative worker, had been reported as being Clark's Senate appointment for Nova Scotia.

The government is reported to have found a Quebecer willing to take one of the 11 vacancies in the 104-seat Senate. But he is reported reluctant to sit in the cabinet.

The Conservatives have been seeking strong people to sit in the Senate from Quebec to make up for the fact only two Quebec Conservatives won Commons seats in the federal election.

The appointment comes only a few days before the 43rd birthday of the New Waterford, N.S., native who was educated at St. Francis Xavier and Queen's universities.

Balfour was MP for Regina East from 1972 until he stepped down before the May 22 election. He headed a team that drew up transition papers that Clark studied in Jasper, Alta., immediately after the election and before he came to Ottawa to take over the government.

The 50-year-old Balfour was born and educated in Regina.

The 69-year-old Donahoe, a lawyer, has been in Nova Scotia provincial politics since 1937.

The three appointments have little effect on the overwhelming Liberal majority in the Senate. Standing now will be Conservatives 21, Liberals 71, independents 2, independent Liberal 1, Social Credit 1 and vacant 8.

4th pedestrian clipped

A 25-year-old man suffered a broken leg and shoulder when struck by a car in Colwood early today, the fourth vehicle-pedestrian mishap in Greater Victoria this week.

Colwood police said Underwood was in the middle of the road when struck by the car driven by Sheldon Green, 30, of 1455 Bromley.

The rash of accidents involving pedestrians has claimed one life — two-year-old Heather Elizabeth Donaldson who died a few hours after she was run over by a car in front of her home at 2 Logan on Tuesday — and resulted in severe injuries to a 14-year-old girl, Patricia Anne Brown, who was struck by a hit-and-run driver near her home at 542 Judith Monday night.

In the fourth accident, 18-year-old Deborah Roue, 10106 Bowerbank, received head injuries when struck by a car at Beacon and Seventh in Sidney Tuesday afternoon.

Bunsen sets hospital blaze

A puff of wind and a bunsen burner set fire to window curtains in a Royal Jubilee Hospital laboratory this morning, causing minor damage to the room.

Deputy fire chief Mike Heppell said staff used extinguishers and laid in a firehose to put out flames that destroyed curtains and scorched the wall and window of the microbiology lab's flourescent microscopy room.

French philosopher Jean Paul Sartre and author Simone de Beauvoir joined a 30-minute protest in front of Rome's parliament buildings in support of six persons jailed on suspicion of terrorism. "Jailed without proof," read one banner backing the detainees — who have been held since April 7 in connection with the killing of former premier Aldo Moro.

Bolshoi ballerina Ludmilla Vlasova, who left her defector husband in New York, is being shunned by fellow dancers in Moscow and regrets her decision to come home. Former friends and fellow dancers will not talk to the 36-year-old dancer because they think she "sold her soul" to Soviet officials in exchange for better roles.

Dear Abby:

Many couples who live together without marriage say, "We don't need a piece of paper to make our commitment binding. A piece of paper doesn't mean a thing!"

May I point out that when a person buys an automobile he had better have that "piece of paper" or he could be in a lot of trouble.

Also, a driver's license is just "a piece of paper," but you'd better not be caught driving without it.

And when a person buys a home, or any other piece of property, he makes sure he has that "piece of paper."

And when a person graduates from high school, college or a trade school, that "piece of paper" can make the difference between getting a job and not getting one.

We live our lives with pieces of paper, beginning with a birth certificate and ending with a death certificate. And let's not forget the will — another very important piece of paper.

So when I hear people say, "A piece of paper doesn't mean a thing." I'm reminded of the classic old adage: "Ignorance is bliss."

Paper is Proof

Dear Paper:

Granted, written documentation makes life immeasurably less complicated, but common-law marriages have been recognized as legal and binding for a long time in some states.

Forgive my pickiness, but the "classic old adage" you refer to is not "ignorance is bliss." It's "Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise." (Ode on a Distant Prospect of Eton College by Thomas Gray.)

Dear Abby:

I feel like a silly adolescent writing to you about this, but I've always respected your advice.

I'm a 26-year-old woman, never married, who is currently dating a man my age who is in the same boat.

I care about him, but here's the problem. He doesn't kiss very well. To be honest about it, the man just doesn't know how to kiss at all.

Please don't tell me to talk to him about it. I just couldn't. I'm afraid his feelings might be hurt and I'd never see him again. I am very much attracted to him and, given a chance, I think we might be good for each other. Please help.

Frustrated

Dear Frustrated:

You need not tell him anything. Show him by kissing him the way you want to be kissed. Unless he's a total lummox, he'll catch on.

Dear Abby:

If you want to get waited on in a hurry, just carry a large empty shopping bag into a department store! Salespeople come out of the walls offering their assistance.

Daring

The Codfather

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY

The roly-poly man in the light green suit is balding. Bags cradle his lower eyelids and his complexion isn't remarkably healthy-looking.

Earlobe wrinkles are a sign the body isn't getting regular lubrication, says Alexander.

A self-taught health expert who lives in Los Angeles, Alexander has become rich and famous proclaiming the beneficial qualities of plain old cod-liver oil.

Regular doses of the unpleasant tasting stuff will retard the aging process and make the skin soft and baby smooth, he claims.

During 35 years as a "nutrition researcher" he has written five books on health. The first ode to the codfish, Arthritis and Common Sense, sold 1.4 million copies in hard cover and is in its 75th printing. He is currently writing a new book, Sex and the Water Sprinkler.

The world knows him as the Codfather, he claims, thanks to extensive lecture tours and appearances on the major European and U.S. television stations.

He has visited Victoria three times in the past six years, and on each occasion spoke to capacity crowds and sold a lot of books.

During lectures he sings the praises of the eight different flavors of cod-liver oil now available, with a pitch similar to those of travelling medicine men in the Old West.

Apparently he puts on a convincing show.

After the last engagement, he says he was responsible for a shortage of the exalted lubricant.

"People were lining up looking for cod-liver oil," he beamed.

Humor and an evangelistic flair convert between 40 and 50 per cent of an audience, he estimates.

But seriously, he says, people should check their oil often. It's an indication of what kind of shape the human body is in.

Alexander is quick to reel off his own accolades — he credits himself with improving the diets of half the Irish population and says the country wants to erect a statue to his name.

"My contribution to the world is explaining that eating habits are as important as the food you eat," Alexander said.

He sees life as a gastro-intestinal war between liquids and solids and regrets the day refrigeration was invented.

Ice-cold fluids like tea and coffee should never be imbibed with meals because it throws the human system out of kilter. The stomach must be completely empty to take ice fluids.

These substances can be taken 10 minutes before a meal or at least three hours afterward, he advocates.

Milk, butter, eggs and cheese should be a part of the diet. The current trend to skim milk and low fat foods is unhealthy, he believes.

Another sign of imbalance is "green elbow" — caused by drinking too many acid drinks and by junk food. It can be spotted readily on college campuses.

To stay healthy and well lubricated drink daily a mixture of one tablespoon of cod-liver oil and several tablespoons of milk or orange juice shaken well.

It might not taste good, but it works, according to Alexander.

Slicker skates hurt you more

By JANE BRODY

Whenever a new sports fad sweeps the country, a characteristic syndrome of injuries follows close behind. The net set has its tennis elbow, runners their sore feet, skiers their broken legs, snowmobilers their spinal injuries, skateboarders their abraded limbs.

Now, with growing numbers of North Americans of every age, size and shape scooting about the streets and parks with four wheels under each foot, there's been a dramatic rise in roller-skating injuries. This year in Canada, scores of skaters will be treated in hospital emergency rooms for such injuries as broken fingers, wrists, arms, ankles, legs and collarbones, banged-up faces and cut-up arms and legs.

It used to be that skating injuries were virtually unknown outside of the agile 5-to 15-year-old set. There also used to be a reasonable limit as to how fast one could go on roller skates; friction between the metal wheels and the nonslip surface of the sidewalk prevented a buildup of unmanageable speeds.

Today, skating is increasingly popular as a physical exercise, a means of transportation, an indoor recreation (to the disco beat), and a sport among people of all ages, including some past 65. Roller skating was an official sport at the Pan American Games this summer. Can the Olympics — and all amateur hopefuls they inspire — be far behind?

Skaters today don't restrict themselves to the sidewalk near home, but instead tool around city streets and park roads, confronting such hazards as potholes, motor vehicles and hills. And, instead of struggling along on little metal wheels, skaters today can work up to fantastic speeds on large, low-friction polyurethane wheels with ball bearings.

A cyclist can apply brakes, a skier or ice skater can turn his feet to stop, and even a skateboarder can stop by jumping off the board. But a roller skater streaking down a hill cannot stop quickly except by crashing or falling. Therein lies the rub.

Another factor is the age and experience of the skater. Most injuries occur to novices, most often those on skates for the first or second time in years or ever.

Doctors warns that the new high, low-friction skates are nothing like those you may have used as a child.

By DR. L.L. COLEMAN

Dear Doctor:

I'm tempted to go on a complete fasting diet. A friend of mine does this twice a year when she wants to lose weight rapidly. How safe is this?

S.A.S.

Dear S.A.S.:

A regime of total fasting as a means of losing weight was once rejected by doctors. Today, there is a shift in this attitude. Temporary total fasting can be a significant way to lose weight quickly for some people who cannot otherwise get started on a weight-reduction program.

Before starting on such a rigid regime one should have the specific permission of a doctor. To be sure that no ill effects can result, a doctor's supervision during such a fasting plan is essential.

I have known two people who recently tried this method when they became "psychologically ready" to endure the rigors of such a program. Both patients independently told me an ineresting reaction that they had had. When they lost three to five pounds, these fasters felt such a sense of exhilaration and accomplishment that it induced them to continue beyond their initial plan. And therein lies the danger. The fasting regime should not be continued to the point of weakness, fatigue and enervation.

The basis for such a program is that no food other than water should be taken.

This program should be tried only for a few days or, at most, a week.

Here's a special back-to-eating plan.

On the first day, orange juice and apricot juice, diluted in water, are taken at regular intervals. On the second and third day, undiluted juices, grated apple and yogurt are eaten every few hours. Slowly thereafter, honey, toast and cereals are added. Some food should be taken at last every four hours during this return period.

An interesting variation to this diet has been tried at the Duke University Medical Centre. It consists of fasting for two and one-half days, preferably from Friday afternoon until breakfast Monday morning. Then, adhering to a 700- to 900-calorie-a-day diet during the work week is most effective in treating the problem of marked obesity. Apparently, this system works and is worth a try. But, again I must emphasize the need for medical supervision during such a radical reducing program.

Speaking of Your Health: Canadians still continue to pour millions of dollars a year into the medical quackery business. Do not get involved in unorthodox forms of treatment.

Knife still cuts best

By WILLIAM RICE

It is an undisputed truism of cooking that one of the best ways to cut costs is with a knife: thinner slices, smaller pieces and the same amount goes further.

The average homemaker is aware of this. He or she nods a head in agreement when a well-meaning home economist or food editor mentions it while ticking off ways to fight food price inflation. But he or she isn't handy with a knife and, surveys show, isn't likely to get more involved in butchery than slicing a cucumber or cutting up a child's portion of meat.

That doesn't bother Bill Broscovak. With an enthusiasm that perhaps only a son of a butcher could muster, he tours the country for the American Sheep Producers Council extolling the virtues of lamb and home butchery. Broscovak's message is that North Americans should learn how to cut, cook and serve more than just the prime cuts of lamb. (The same holds true for beef, of course, but Broscovak is paid to talk about lamb).

The industry is halfway through a rebuilding program, he reported. With present supply "40 to 50 percent behind demand," there is a sharp increase of ewes on farms and the promise of increasing the size of lambs by 25 percent with "no loss of tenderness," Broscovak foresees no loss of price either. Lamb will continue to be expensive.

Lamb accounts for a scant 1 percent of Amerca's meat diet. That percentage doesn't hold true in fancy French restaurants, or even in beef houses or hotel restaurants where rack of lamb or "spring" lamb chops are offered. They sell a lot of lamb. Why people eat lamb when dining out and not at home is a mystery. Another mystery is why some people will eat lamb chops — even rare lamb chops — and refuse to eat meat from any other part of the animal.

Broscovak is trying to solve these mysteries. He wants Americans to know that "spring" lamb is a thing of the past; that lamb cuts of similar size and quality are available all year round. Mutton is all but extinct in retail stores, too. Today almost all strong-flavored, 2-year-old lamb goes into soups, sausage and baby food. Because its fat melts and burns easily, the industry recommends that lamb be cooked at a low temperature — from 275 to 325 degrees for roasts. Only meat from the foreshank is tough enough to require being braised or cooked in liquid.

"The biggest problem," said Broscovak, "is overcooking. Lamb can be served rare. It should be moist and juicy."

The first time I met him, in Los Angeles, he butchered a leg of lamb — on radio! Your basic butcher might have read from a script, but not Bill Broscovak. He went to work on a tiny cutting board in that tiny studio and gave out with the enthusiasm of a commentator covering a major sports event.

He doesn't promise miracles. To do the job properly you will need two special tools (a 5-inch boning knife and an 8-inch breaking knife), plus a sharpening steel and probably even a small saw. He warns that to save money (an estimated $200 to $400 per year), you will have to spend time. It can take quite a bit of practice before your skills develop. What you gain, he thinks, is control over the meat. You can portion out a cut of meat into shapes and sizes that fit family or individual needs. You can trim unhealthy excess fat and keep pieces of valuable meat that might be discarded in a supermarket.

As examples, he performed surgery on two separate shoulders of lamb. The shoulder cut is the top of the foreleg to the neck and includes five ribs. It has a complex bone structure.

Broscovak transformed one shoulder into a boneless rolled roast. First he cut behind the line of ribs, leaving a little meat, then sawed them off at the base. To ready them for the barbecue grill, he cut off the excess fat, which could drip into the coals, cause a flareup, and give the meat a burnt-tallow taste. Next he cut around the triangular shoulder blade to the round knuckle.

"Feel the bone with the point of the knife," Broscovak advised. "Make short strokes; don't make gashes."

Following the flat of the shoulder blade, and peeling back the meat, he extracted the knuckle and top of the foreleg. Some more pulling ("It does take some physical strength," he acknowledged) and scraping and the blade itself came away. These bones should be wrapped, labeled, frozen and used for soups or to flavor stews, he recommended.

"Be sure to follow the natural seams of the meat," he continued as he cut along the muscles to separate out the solid, elastic-like piece of prescapular fat.

The meat, 3 1-2 of the original 5 pounds, was ready to be stuffed (Broscovak suggested spinach, or rice would do nicely), rolled and tied. That, too, is a trick. Once it was shaped, he began with a firm lengthwise tie of heavy twine (another necessary investment for the home butcher) and then tied off a series of lasso circles around the roast.

From the second shoulder, he cut two 1 1-2 inch steaks across the top of the foreleg. With the fat trimmed, these would be broiled or grilled.

Next, he cut off the rib bones, sawing down through them and cutting under with the boning knife. "When you do this yourself," he said, "you can leave as much meat as you want to on the ribs."

The third operation was to cut out the chine bone with his knif: and remove the "Saratoga roll" from the inside of the shoulder. "It's not solid in the retail stores I visited," he said, "but it is as tender as a rib eye." Once the fat was cut away, he sliced the minature roast into five, 3-4 inch boneless chops.

Meat from the outside of the shoulder was cut into cubes. They could be used for lamb fondue, marinated for shish kebab or ground. The smaller scraps could be ground as well, or used in a soup or stew.

The Lobel Brothers, in their book "All About Meat," warn:

"You may tackle anything you like, but not with our blessing. Boning uncooked meats is difficult for nonprofessionals; it takes a long time and may leave your meat unrefrigerated for too long; if you are not experienced, the meat may be shredded or torn . . ."

Eats cut liquor effects

Social drinking, plus good company, is one of life's happy moments for many North Americans. But it sometimes takes a good deal of agility to drink in such a way as to enjoy the pleasant effects of alcohol while keeping one's waistline and reflexes in good order.

From a nutritional standpoint, the biggest problem the social drinker faces is that alcohol provides empty calories — almost twice as many (7 per gram) as protein and carbohydrate (4 per gram) and almost as many as fat (9 per gram). It has recently been shown that those who drink heavily — on the order of a quart of wine or its equivalent each day — do not use the energy from alcohol as efficiently as the calories from other energy sources. For them, the yields may be as low as 5 or 6 calories per gram. At that level of intake, however, there's a serious risk of incipient alcoholism.

According to the latest figures, alcohol now counts for between 7 and 10 per cent of the average daily calories consumed in this country. When you figure that many do not drink at all and others drink only occasionally, it means that a good many people may be getting as much as 20 to 30 per cent of their total energy from alcohol. That's far too much for both physical and nutritional well being.

Fortunately for social drinkers, the same strategies that can keep alcohol from contributing to weight gain will also keep blood levels of alcohol within reasonable bounds. There are three major factors, all under an individual's control, which can help.

The first is the presence of food in the gastrointestinal tract. The speed with which alcohol is absorbed is partially dependent upon whether anything else is present in the stomach. So eat while you drink, for food is a wonderful buffer for alcohol.

When entertaining, the best way to handle this is to plan a short cocktail hour and to encourage your guests to concentrate on the quality and taste of your hors d'oeuvres rather than on the quantity of the drinks. Plan the snacks to complement the coming meal and avoid high-calorie foods and those high in salt, which increases thirst. Move unobstrusively into the main course by offering mugs of soup — hot or cold, according to the weather — after the first couple of rounds of drinks.

The same general rules apply when you're out. Head for the snacks rather than the bar, and try ordering a mixer of juice alone for the first round to slake your thirst.

The second factor is the rate at which a given amount af alcohol is absorbed into the system. Thus, in addition to drinking slowly, keep the concentration of alcohol low in each drink. The alcoholic content of common drinks varies a good deal. As a rule of thumb, remember that a one-ounce shot of 100-proof spirits or a four-ounce glass of wine or a 12-ounce can of beer all roghly contain the same amount of alcohol.

There are pitfalls here for the unwary, however, since some hosts mistakenly think they are doing everyone a favor by providing doubles when their guests think they are getting a single shot. Also, now that wine is becoming more popular, the glasses are getting bigger: some of the new wine glasses are of the eight- or even 12-ounce size rather than the smaller standard services of yesteryear.

As far as the so-called light beers are concerned, they are no different in their alcohol content, even though they are a bit lower in calories. So choose the drink lowest in alcoholic content for its size or long, mixed drinks. Add plenty of ice. And try dinking water as well as wine with meals, as many Europeans do.

In addition to these factors, compounds in some alcoholic beverages, called congeners, influence how rapidly the alcohol gets into the blood. Blood alcohol levels rise the fastest and reach the highest levels with distilled spirits such as gin, vodka and whiskey. Next in line are the fortified dessert wines such as sherry, and aperitifs such as vermouth. In contrast, table wine and beer are absorbed much more slowly.

When beverages are drunk along with a meal, blood alcohol levels are even lower, bearing out an additional beneficial effect of taking food with drink. Wine and beer appear to have an advantage in this area as well.

The third factor is knowing your own limit, not just overall, but the way it varies with the time and situation. Different people react differently to alcohol. Remeber, too, that certain medications such as barbiturates and some tranquilizers alter a person's tolerance for alcohol. So can tension, fatigue or outright exhaustion.

Social drinking is quite different from needing a drink to be social. It's never wise to substitute drinks for people. Instead, when you're in that mood, try substituting people for drinks. Skip the cocktail hour entirely and go out for a good meal.

Country is lush but thousands starving

By PAUL WEDEL

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Thousands of people are starving to death in Cambodia, one of the world's lushest countries, while international relief agencies struggle to break through the barriers of war and politics.

The best estimates are that 90 percent of the 4 million to 7 million Cambodians are seriously short of food with their resistance to disease significantly lowered.

If the numbers are accurate, deaths resulting from Cambodia's hunger could dwarf the casualties of the Vietnamese refugee exodus.

Refugees reaching the Thai border say Cambodians are totally without food in some areas. And the search for something to eat has added to the thousands already wandering Cambodia in search of lost loved ones.

Representatives from UNICEF and the International Council of the Red Cross went into Phnom Penh with the first small shipments of aid to thrash out agreement on the large scale aid needed.

But no major relief effort has been made for want of an agreement on conditions for shipping in the supplies needed to save what is left of the Cambodian race.

The problems are complex and politically sensitive.

The pro-Vietnamese regime that controls the capital and most towns and highways in the country is not recognized by the United Nations and most of the large aid donor countries.

Donors want to be certain their aid goes to suffering civilians, not to the more than 170,000 Vietnamese troops reported in the country.

At the same time, the Cambodian government fears that food and medical supplies will reach the guerrilla army of ousted Premier Pol Pot.

A Swedish Red Cross plan to bring aid in across the border from Thailand was vetoed by Phnom Penh because it did not control the border area where guerrillas were reported active.

Some aid officials concede that if large amounts of aid go into Cambodia, some of it certainly will end up in the bellies of Vietnamese soldiers despite controls over distribution.

"But there are no alternatives to widespread starvation," one official said. "When we have the resources to save lives, we can't be too selective."

The lack of administrative machinery in the war-torn country, according to the refugees, means there is no rationing and no way to stop profiteering.

Travelers who have flown over the Cambodian countryside said less than 5 percent of the crop seems to have been planted.

A Cambodian translator-analyst for Thai military intelligence said even around more secure province capitals no more than 20 percent of the crop is in the ground.

The analyst said it appeared there was little farming equipment, almost no seed and a stultifying lack of will to struggle.

"It is like everyone is still in shock. They think of eating today or tomorrow, but not of what they have to do now to eat in six months," he said.

Western aid experts were unanimous in predicting famine in the next few months, saying people already were dying from starvation-related diseases.

Rev. Robert L. Charlebois, special assistant for Catholic Relief Services, said, "We have already seen every form of starvation and the accompanying diseases among the refugees — especially the children."

Bone loss is normal but seniors must watch

NUTRITION MATTERS

Dr. Elizabeth Bright-See and Jane Hope

We're dipping into our mailbag today! We received many letters as a result of our column that dealt with the question of proper nutrition for the elderly. The majority of these concerned osteoporosis — a condition in which bone is lost from the skeleton.

Bone loss is normal. Starting at birth, our bones are constantly being formed, broken down and then rebuilt. It's a slow continuous process. Until we reach adulthood, bones form faster than they break down. Then, for some reason, in middle age, the bone loss speeds up and out-distances the growth of new bone. If this continues over a long enough time, we end up with smaller, more fragile bones, that is osteoporosis.

This bone loss takes many years and usually cannot be detected in the early stages. Thirty per cent of the bone must be lost before it can even be detected by an X-ray. Osteoporosis may finally cause low back pain, stooping and a shrinking of the spinal column commonly called "dowagers hump". Middle aged or elderly people who have fractures, particularly of the hip or wrist, often have osteoporosis.

For a long time, bone loss was considered just one of the natural processes of aging. However, osteoporosis doesn't develop to the same extent in all people over the world. It is estimated that 30 per cent of women over 34 in the United States suffer from this problem. The situation in Canada is probably similar. Yet, in other countries of the world, parts of Asia and Africa, for example, osteoporosis is rare. So factors other than aging obviously have an influence and the goal now is to identify these factors in order that osteoporosis can be teated or better still, prevented.

Many factors are being examined such as heredity, hormones, physical activity (or lack of it) and, of course, diet. We know heredity plays a role. If your parents were big boned, it helps. The bigger boned you are by adulthood, the more bone you can afford to lose without any ill effect.

Hormones have been suspect for some time because, as a rule, women are more likely to develop osteoporosis than men. Bone loss may increase following menopause. Estrogen treatments are sometimes used in the treatment of osteoporosis but the results haven't been completely successful. Physical activity seems to inhibit the development of osteoporosis. Inactivity, particularly in extreme cases (being confined to bed, for example) does increase bone loss.

What about dietary factors: The most seemingly obvious answer is calsium because it is such an important part of bone structure. However, adding and removing calcium from the bone is influenced by various factors such as protein.

We need protein to form a base for the calcium salts in the bone. Yet, in North America, we eat far too much protein. (The Inuit, who eat far more protein than average, lose bone earlier and faster than Caucasians).

The ratio of calcium to phosphorous in the diet is also suspect and research is zeroing in on this area. The recommended ratio is 1:1. The ratio of the average Canadian diet is at least 1:3.

Calcium is the major constituent of the structural framework of bone and is the body's most prevalent mineral.

About three pounds of a 160-pound man's weight is calcium.

Ninety-eight per cent of the body's calcium is found in the bones, one per cent in the teeth, and the remaining one per cent in soft tissues throughout the body, where it performs a variety of essential functions.

In addition to supporting the growth and continued strength of bones and teeth, calcium helps maintain cell membranes and the "cement" that holds cells together.

Fluoride is also under the dietary microscope. Fluoride combines with the calcium-phosphorous salts of the bone to make it more resistant to osteoporosis.

We wish there were some specific diet we could recommend that would help this problem. We can only make a few suggestions based on what is known at the moment:

— Watch your protein intake. Two to three moderate servings of protein foods a day are all that is necessary. Use non-meat protein.

— Try to watch the calcium-phosphorous ratio. Get a good calcium intake. This may be difficult as many foods naturally contain more phosphorous than calcium. Meat, fish and poultry may have 15 to 20 times as much phosphorous as calcium.

— If you have fluoridated water, you should be getting enough fluoride. If you don't, fluoride supplements shouldn't be taken unless they are prescribed for you.

— Keep up your activity levels as you grow older.

— Try to eat well balanced meals and include a wide variety of foods each day.

Lost freedoms haunt Colditz

By MARK WOOD

COLDITZ, East Germany (Reuter) — Allied prisoners of war who escaped from Colditz have been immportalized in books and films, but nearly 40 years later the castle is still yielding the sad secrets of those whose bids for freedom failed.

Between 1939 and 1945 imprisoned Allied officers never tired of dreaming up ingenious, foolhardy and often backbreaking ways to outwit their Nazi captors and break out of the seemingly impregnable fortress.

Their plans are still providing surprises and often headaches for the present occupants of the 900-year-old castle, now a hospital for the Colditz region in southern East Germany.

"Every time we carry out repairs or alterations we come across things like maps and forged passports hidden behind door panels, or ropes and knives stashed under floorboards," said Walter Teichmann, head of the hospital administration.

The most recent finds include tissue-thin segments of a plotted escape route and a long cord of plaited bedsheets and blankets.

About 3,000 prisoners were confined in Colditz, up to 600 at any one time. A large proportion were fighter pilots shot down by the Germans.

Locked in behind four guarded gates along the only entrance roadway and surrounded by mined terraces beneath the sheer castle walls, they tried repeatedly to tunnel their way out through the solid rock on which the fortress stands.

One group of Frenchmen dug down 24 feet below the chapel using knives and little chisels, and then 150 feet horizontally before being discovered.

"Their problem was they were going the wrong way and digging straight toward the centre of the castle," Teichmann said. "Last year part of the courtyard caved in because of the tunnel."

"About four years ago we decided to renovate the medieval banqueting hall, which for years has been used as a concert room," Teichmann said. "When we started work on the stage we discovered tons of rocks and rubble hidden underneath it."

A former French prisoner, on a visit four years ago, provided the most spectacular find in recent years. He took the doctors to an attic of one of the castle buildings and revealed the entrance to a secret room where French officers had made uniforms and documents.

Iside were a radio set, printing equipment and half-finished passports and German outfits, undisturbed since the day U.S. troops liberated Colditz in April, 1945.

When the hospital moved into the castle in 1946, staff members found traces of some fairly bizarre escape attempts, including a half-finished glider concealed in a huge room which prisoners had kept secret by constructing a medieval-looking wall across an attic.

Hardly any prisoners managed to break out from the central compound itself, except for a few who donned their homemade German uniforms, somehow discovered the password of the day and marched nonchalantly past the four guard-posts.

Study urged on ionophores

WASHINGTON (AP) — New tests indicate a powerful drug used in feeds to fatten animals may be getting into food products even though its potential effects on humans have not been studied, a University of Miami scientist says.

Dr. Berton Pressman said Tuesday a sensitive new test he has developed shows that, contrary to previous studies, carboxylic ionophores pass through the tissues and blood of animals before being excreted.

This might mean the chemicals get into meat, eggs or milk consumed by humans, he said.

Animal tests show ionophores stimulate heart contraction and enlarge coronary arteries, making them promising agents for treating human heart failure and shock, Pressman said.

But the drugs have not been tested on humans and research on human applications is in it's infancy, he said.

"While we wish to stress that there is no clearcut evidence of danger at the moment, in light of their powerful pharmacological effects, there is an urgent need to ascertain the consequences of the increasing exposure of man and animals to ionophores," he said.

In a presentation at the national meeting of the American Chemical Society, Pressman said thousands of tons of the ionophores, in the form of a drug called monensin, are used in poultry and cattle feed. For unknown reasons, the drug appears to help animals use food more efficiently, he said.

He said the prevailing belief, based upon chemical industry studies, is that ionophores remain in the digestive tract of animals until they are excreted.

Pressman said his studies with dogs show the chemicals travel through the body before ending up in the intestine and finally being excreted.

Because the compounds tend not to break down and almost all are recovered in excrement, the detour through the body has been missed, he said.

The scientist criticized the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for not paying more attention to his findings and relying too heavily on industry data on ionophores in approving their use in feeds.

However, Dr. Lester Crawford, director of the FDA's bureau of veterinary medicine, said the agency is satisfied that the safety data related to using ionophores in chickens and cattle is adequate.

The official said the FDA would not fund any further research on monensin unless there is new evidence it is needed.

New drug on market to prevent pneumonia

NEW YORK (AP) — A new vaccine to prevent pneumonia and a new antibiotic to help cure it went on the market Wednesday.

Lederle Laboratories introduced a vaccine called Pnu-Imune to protect against some common strains of bacteria that cause pneumonia. It is the second such vaccine on the market.

In a separate announcement, Eli Lilly and Co. introduced a new antibiotic called cefaclor (trade name Ceclor) which is useful against pneumonia and may have special value in treating infections of the middle ear.

Pnu-Imune gives a person immunity against the most common strains of bacteria that cause pneumococcal pneumonia, of which there are an estimated 500,000 cases and more than 25,000 deaths in the United States annually.

It is similar to a vaccine called Pneumovax introduced by a rival drug company, Merck Sharp and Dohme, last year.

Dr. Robert Austrian, chairman of research medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, said both vaccines should be used by people who are likely to get seriously ill if they catch pneumonia. This includes the aged and people with chronic lung disease.

Merck says 3.2 million persons have been vaccinated with Pneumovax but this is only five per cent of those who would benefit from it.

The drug will be available next week to the public through physicians treating the illness, which is second only to colds as the most common childhood ailment, Lilly said.

Cheaper way to make cells

HAMILTON (CP) — A McMaster University professor says he has developed a cheaper way to make the cells used to collect solar energy.

Until now, solar cells, which convert sunlight into electricity, have been made of silicon. But silicon is expensive and scientists have been seeking a replacement.

John Shewchun says he may have it.

Shewchun, a science professor, says he can make the cells from elements that are much cheaper and more common — copper, gallium, indium, selenium and tellurium. And officials of the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration in the United States say the scheme could work.

His discovery may also help the Canadian mining industry, which has been trying to find uses for selenium and tellurium for years.

"There is still a lot of work that has to be done," he said.

Customers trusted

MONTREAL (CP) — The honor system, controlled only by the idle glance from a nearby sandwich-maker, is paying dividends at Montreal's newest fast-food restaurant.

Customers at American Espresso put their money in a clear plastic box, make their own change and then line the stand-up counter to enjoy their meal.

"They're so shocked, often they don't even want to take their change, or they insist on showing it to us," says manager Manor Boissel.

Far from losing money, the brainchild of food service executive Zoltan Kosh is making more of a profit than expected — and relieving his bank manager of nightmares.

"He was very doubtful but I don't think we've lost a nickel," says Kosh, the president of Lyon's Food and Caterers Ltd.

But "we try not to leave too much money in the box," Miss Boissel says.

The idea of the no-cashier check-out was hit upon not to test the integrity of the quick-lunch crowd in Montreal's fashion manufacturing district, but as a protection for the food.

"I didn't want the girls making sandwiches and handling money at the same time," Kosh explains, "so I decided we would advance confidence to our customers."

Although the term "fast food" usually conjures up a picture of hamburgers, hot dogs, pizza and french fries, none of these foods are served at the new restaurant.

Instead, customers order their choice of sandwich, salad, pastry and coffee or other beverage, And the choice is wide.

Ninety sandwich fillings and salads are available in an assortment of 12 to 14 each per day. Fine basics like thinly sliced rare roast beef in a Vienna roll and well-seasoned potato salad take their turn with such treats as prosciutto with melon or veal galantine and salads like avocado with sour cream and caviar, hearts of palm or pickled mushrooms.

If a customer finds a favorite on the lengthy wall-hung menu and it isn't available, it can be ordered: Miss Boissel will have it on the refrigerated buffet table the following day.

Luncheon prices are modest — as little as $1.35 for most sandwiches on a choice of a dozen different types of bread or rolls.

Computer tells exact bus time

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — A $1.3-million system that tells you when to expect a bus to arrive at a particular stop is a hit in this city just west of Toronto.

Easy Rider Information with Computerized Assistance (ERICA) is promoted by a life-size model of a robot in a community shopping mall. When in use, a telephone hooked to the robot sets off a series of flashing lights.

A woman's voice gives out information but it is really a sophisticated computer using a data bank of 64 words — recorded by a professional actress in San Diego, Calif.

The end result for anyone seeking transit information could be,"Easy Rider route six stop 51, next bus seven minutes, following bus 22 minutes, goodbye."

Officials say the system has been responsible for more than 12 per cent of the 23-per-cent increase on Mississauga Transit's six bus routes, which had a total of 3.6 million riders in 1978.

ERICA is the first experiment in computer-controlled bus operations in North America.

September 19th Western Express tickets now on sale are eligible for the regular prizes plus 250 extra bonus prizes of $1,000.00 each to be drawn Winsday, September 19th.

Express tickets dated September 19th will not bear an additional bonus number. Bonus numbers will be drawn from the regular seven digit ticket number. Only complete and exact seven digit numbers will qualify to win one of the 250 $1,000.00 bonus prizes. (No subsidiary prizes will be paid on these 250 Bonus numbers.)

regular ticket number is also your bonus number

Let's compare the Western Express . . . past versus present

☐ Now 5 prizes of $100,000.00 plus 5 prizes of $10,000.00 (There were no prizes of $10,000.00 before.)

☐ Double the winning numbers to 10, each having subsidiary prizes. (There were only five numbers before.)

☐ Last week, for instance, in addition to the regular prizes, there were instant cash prizes of $2.00, $5.00 and $25.00 totalling 36,000 prizes. Therefore, your chances to win a cash prize have increased from 1 in 200 in the old game to better than 1 in 50 in the Express pouch game.

☐ On the average, one in every five Express purchasers wins an additional ticket on the regular draw, doubling the chances to win $100,000.00 and $10,000.00 plus the many thousands of other cash prizes. (This feature was not available in the old game.)

☐ Even those who do not win a cash prize or a free ticket get a second chance at substantial prizes on the Surprize Draw held on the last Winsday of every month. (Well over $100,000.00 in total prizes will be available on the September 26th Surprize draw. This feature was not available in the old game.)

The last three digits of all 10 winning numbers will win $5 worth of Express tickets giving more chances at 5 prizes of $100,000.00, 5 prizes of $10,000.00, plus many thousands of other cash prizes.

However . . .

The intent of the Western Express has not changed, that is to return between 30% to 40% of gross sales to the public in support of a wide variety of worthwhile community projects and 45% in prizes to Express ticket buyers. (Retailer commission is 10% — the balance represents the cost of conducting the Lottery).

The reason for the revision of the game last June, to that of a pouch game, was to give many, many more Express ticket buyers a chance to win at least something without increasing the prize commitment.

Heart illness sidelines David Kennedy

NEW YORK (AP) — David Kennedy, 24-year-old son of the late U.S. Senator Robert Kennedy, is in "very serious" condition at a Boston hospital with a heart infection, his family announced Wednesday.

Technically known as a bacterial endocarditis, the infection can invade the body through even the most minor break in the skin and is sometimes associated with narcotics abuse.

Last Wednesday, Kennedy reported he was robbed of $30 in a seedy hotel in the Harlem district of Manhattan. Police described the premises as a dope supermarket, and a police source said Kennedy was there in quest of cocaine.

The family announcement said without elaboration that David faces "a long and hard personal as well as medical struggle."

Dr. Warren Johnson, an associate professor of medicine at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Centre who was asked to describe bacterial endorcarditis, called it an infection of the inner lining of the heart, part of which extends over the heart valves.

The infection can invade the body through the most minor of skin nicks, he said, and even through the mouth when oral hygiene is poor.

An invasion of the bacteria is "probably an everyday event for most people," Johnson explained, but the body's normal defenve mechanism usually deals with the intruder.

Heart failure due to valvular scarring and distortion may develop even after the infection is cured, the Merck Manual says.

By THOMAS LOVE
Washington Star

WASHINGTON — A major new Ford Foundation study concludes that "the world is not running out of energy" but predicts sharply higher costs and some rough times ahead before new sources are widely developed.

Among the recommendations of the 628-page study is the rapid decontrol of oil and gas prices to allow "market forces to price and allocate energy efficiently, because doing so will simplify most other aspects of energy policy."

The study concludes that the potential energy resources of the United States and the world are so large that the ultimate physical exhaustion of energy in general is hardly a matter for present concern.

"In the long run of half a century or more, some of the more speculative forms of energy production, such as nuclear fusion and new applications of solar energy, will in all likelihood be capable of supplying essentially unlimited amounts of energy at costs that will probably be high, but easily manageable with the income levels of that time.

Funded by the Ford Foundation and administered by Resources for the Future, the study is the result of an 18-month effort by 19 well-known experts in energy economics, law, physics, engineering, geography, health and administration.

The basic factual conclusions of the study are six "realities" about the world's energy situation. Besides the availability of energy, they are:

—Middle East oil holds great risks, but is so valuable that the world will remain dependent on it for a long time. This dependence on "the politically unstable Middle East (increases) the possibility that minor events will result in major economic disruption or even war," the study states. "Efforts to ease the world oil supply-demand situation can reduce this dependence, but only slowly and at high cost."

—Higher energy costs cannot be avoided, but can be contained by letting prices rise to reflect them. "The higher costs need not have severe effects on economic welfare or lifestyles if they are properly managed; but it is a dangerous misconception to believe that government can provide dependable, clean and plentiful energy cheaply," according to the study.

—Environmental effects of energy use are serious and hard to manage. "Some energy activities pose serious threats to human health and the environment," it continued. "The need to reduce those threats will be a major cause of rising energy costs and may even limit the extent to which some particular energy resources will be used."

—Conservation is an essential "source" of energy in large quantities. Conservation "is often the cleanest, quickest and cheapest way to react to the inevitable higher energy costs.

—Serious shocks and surprises are certain to occur. "Because the energy system is a complex combination of technology and society, the future is certain to contain serious shocks, most probably involving short-term supply interruptions and price instability."

—Sound research and development is essential, but there is no simple "technical fix." While new technologies "will be a major part of the best response to higher energy costs," there is "no single technical solution nor much likelihood that technology in general will be able to reverse the trend toward higher energy costs," the report said.

Border to save killer?

SEATTLE (AP) — The lawyer for a man accused of slaying a U.S. Customs agent says the shooting may have occurred in British Columbia, and hence not under American jurisdiction.

Kelly Corr, one of two attorneys representing Artie Ray Baker, told the jury the customs office where the shooting occurred is north of the 49th parallel, the boundary between the United States and Canada.

But a government witness testified Wednesday that the customs office is entirely within the United States.

Baker, 26, faces charges of premeditated murder in the April 24 shooting of Kenneth G. Ward, 34, a customs inspector working at the border crossing near Lynden, Wash., and Aldergrove.

Corr's contention raised the question of whether the crime may actually have occurred in British Columbia, not under U.S. jurisdiction.

But Clyde Moore, an engineering technician for the International Boundary Commission, said the monument marking the border is 40 feet north of the customs building. He acknowledged, however, that the marker and customs building both are actually north of the 49th parallel.

Cancer-prone fetuses detected by scientists

BOSTON (AP) — For the first time, scientists have discovered an inherited genetic defect that causes a form of cancer, and they say they can spot fetuses before birth that almost certainly will grow up to have the disease.

Researchers at Beth Israel Hospital in Boston noticed that one family had an unusually high frequency of cancer of the kidney. After more study, they found a specific inherited foul-up in the people's chromosomes that apparently caused the illness.

Some scientists believe that all of the approximately 100 kinds of cancer that plague humans can be caused by either inheritance or environmental hazards. Until now, however, they had never been able to spot the genetic mistake that allowed the disease to pass from parent to child.

Brown said that through amniocentesis, a prenatal test, doctors will be able to determine before birth whether new members of this family will be predisposed to having kidney cancer.

Ex-NATO boss eyes presidency

TORONTO (UPC) — General Alexander Haig, former Supreme Allied Commander of NATO, says he may make a bid for the Republican presidential nomination if he feels the American people share his concern about the threat of Soviet military superiority.

Haig told a businessmen's luncheon Wednesday the current world situation is the most dangerous since the Second World War because of the build-up of Russian forces and Communist military intervention in Africa and the Middle East.

Haig was White House chief of staff during Richard Nixon's last 16 months in office and has now found support for his possible candidacy from a U.S. group.

He said international politics is experiencing a "changing strategic environment" in which the Soviet Union is "powerful and increasing its strength beyond all reason, if its purpose is defense."

Noting recent U.S. claims of a Soviet military presence in Cuba, Haig said he wasn't sure if the reports were true. But he insisted it is "imperative for any political party" in the U.S. to deal with the Soviet role in Africa and the Middle East "or they'll be voted out."

Bank robbers pluck record in Big Apple

NEW YORK (AP) — With more than three months left in 1979, New York City has already experienced a record number of bank robberies for a single year.

Six more banks were robbed Wednesday, bringing the total for this year to 642. The previous high was 641 recorded for the entire year of 1977.

In one of Wednesday's holdups, a gunman got away with about $200,000 from a downtown branch of Barclays Bank, where his accomplice was critically wounded by a bank guard and the guard and a teller suffered minor injuries.

It was one of the biggest bank jobs of the year, but did not compare with the more than $500,000 taken from a Rockefeller Centre branch of Bankers Trust Co. last month. Some of that money has been recovered.

The record-breaking sixth robbery Wednesday occurred shortly before 3 p.m. when a man passed a note to a teller in a lower East Side branch of the Chemical Bank and made off with $414.

Begin whistles embassy song

JERUSALEM (CP) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said today he has every reason to believe that eventually Prime Minister Joe Clark will fulfil his campaign pledge to move the Canadian Embassy to Jerusalem from Tel Aviv.

Begin made the statement following an hour-long meeting with Canadian envoy Robert Stanfield.

Stanfield, midway through a five-day stay in Jerusalem as part of a month-long fact-finding trip through the Middle East, ducked the question when a reporter asked if Canada is backtracking on Clark's intent to move the embassy.

"You'll have to check with our government," he said, "I'm simply a retired politician trying to do a job."

Begin told reporters after the meeting that he felt he had developed a rapport with Clark during a visit to Canada.

By HENRY S. BRADSHER
and LANCE GAY
Washington Star

WASHINGTON — U.S. intelligence officials are weighing the possibility that the 2,000 to 3,000 Soviet troops in Cuba may be training Cuban forces for action in Africa, State Department officials said Wednesday.

The suggestion that the Soviet troops in Cuba are there in a training rather than combat role raises the possibility that the Carter administration may be backing off on its contention that the troops are strictly a combat unit.

The intelligence officials stressed that the training role was only one of several possibilities being considered by U.S. officials.

On Capitol Hill Wednesday, the troop issue was dramatically linked to SALT II as Sen. Russell Long (Dem.-La.), chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said he would vote against it because the Soviets are "not keeping faith" on their agreement with President John F. Kennedy in 1962. That agreement ended a confrontation over nuclear missiles in Cuba.

Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker repeated a contention that President Carter "has days" to act to ensure the Cuban unit is withdrawn before the Senate acts to make specific conditions on the removal of Soviet troops before SALT II can be ratified.

The point in dispute between the two superpowers is not the Soviet soldiers' being in Cuba but the more complex issue of their capabilities and intentions.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said Wednesday that it is the capability of the troops to function as a combat unit that concerns the United States. But this approach to the problem quickly gets into semantics. It involves the question of whether a training mission is also capable of fighting.

A Pentagon spokesman, when asked how a combat unit is distinguished from a training mission, replied that a combat unit's sole mission is to fight, not to train others. The spokesman added that it becomes a complex matter of definitions whether a training unit can have its own tanks and rockets, as U.S. officials say the Soviets in Cuba have.

Administration officials have been reviewing the question of definitions since the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda denied on Monday that any new troops had been sent to Cuba beyond the training mission that has been there for 17 years. But the administration has firmly pronounced itself on the combat nature of the troops and would now find it difficult publicly to reverse its evaluation by redefining how a training mission might be equipped and act.

The Soviet Union has been insisting in recent newspaper articles and broadcasts on its right to maintain a military mission in Cuba. Hodding Carter noted Wednesday that four U.S. administrations have accepted that right.

While U.S. officials grapple with the question of what distinguishes combat troops from a training mission, the Soviet Union is trying to switch international attention from its own troops in Cuba to the worldwide system of U.S. military bases.

A Soviet media campaign seeks to justify the presence of Soviet troops in Cuba in terms of what the United States does abroad. This adds a new complication to the U.S. insistence that changes be made in the Soviet troop presence.

The position taken by President Carter that the status of a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba must be changed was discussed again Wednesday by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance in a two-hour luncheon meeting with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin. Vance said later that he expected to continue meeting Dobrynin, probably today and Friday, in an attempt to work out a solution to the problem.

Vance's spokesman earlier denied that there is any dispute over the facts of the Soviet presence in Cuba.

Jailed 'dead' in Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina's military regime, ignoring objections by citizens, other governments and the Vatican, has decreed a new law allowing judges to declare thousands of missing political suspects legally dead without official explanation.

The military junta says the missing persons, called "desaparecidos," went underground or died in recent guerrilla fighting. But relatives say many were arrested at home or at work, and may be alive in secret interrogation camps.

The junta, which has faced guerrilla opposition since ousting elected President Isabel Martinez de Peron in March, 1976, denies such camps exist.

In a statement last week, four civil-rights groups expessed fear the government would declare all desaparecidos dead, frustrating "the constitutional right of habeus corpus" under which families have asked courts to investigate the disappearance of 6,000 persons.

The law, published without comment Wednesday, allows a judge to declare a missing person dead if the family or government requests, and if 90 days later there is no evidence the person is alive.

Previously, the process took five years, during which time the person's heirs could not divide the estate, and a spouse could not remarry, take children out of the country, or draw a pension.

Protests were registered by the French and Swedish governments and privately by Msgr. Pio Laghi, the Vatican representative here. Sweden said any plan "to declare thousands of persons dead through this law would be considered appalling."

Nixon colors Watergate a 'disaster'

NEW YORK (AP) — In perhaps the strongest statement he has made on the subject, former president Richard Nixon says history "will justifiably record" that his handling of Watergate was "an unmitigated disaster."

The admission is contained in a new introduction to be included in Nixon's 1962 book Six Crises, which will be reissued next month.

The Times, which obtained a copy of the introducton, reported that Nixon says since he wrote the book he has "gone through another crisis, the Watergate ordeal . . . by far the most gruelling:

"History will justifiably record that my handling of the Watergate crisis was an unmitigated disaster."

Treasured snuff box swiped from display

By BENJAMIN FORGEY
Washington Star

WASHINGTON — A diamond-studded, gold-enameled snuff box commissioned by Catherine the Great, empress of Russia, and valued from $125,000 to $250,000, has been stolen from its display case at the National Collection of Fine Arts.

Margery Byers, press officer of the NCFA, confirmed that the theft was discovered Tuesday morning. The rectangular box, measuring less than four inches in any dimension, was last seen in its case just before the museum closed on Monday.

Police believe the antique box was stolen between Sunday and 9:30 a.m. Tuesday when the theft was discovered by an exhibit specialist. There was no evidence of forced entry into the building, police said.

The initial police report states that the display case was "entered in an unknown manner."

However, the thief apparently pried an opening between a transparent plastic cover and a wooden base just large enough to squeeze the snuff box through. An alarm system attached to the case failed to operate, Byers said.

The snuff box was commissioned as a gift from the empress to a political supporter, Prince Gregory Orlov, in the 1760s. It is decorated on all six sides with miniature paintings of scenes celebrating Catherine's ascension to the throne.

Court finds his remark udderly slanderous

KRUGERSDORP (UPI) — A judge has made South African legal history by finding a man guilty of slander because he called a woman a cow.

Ehrson pleaded guilty to calling Mrs. Katherine Adlem, a liquor store cashier, a cow because he thought she short-changed him.

The decision reversed a ruling 18 years ago that a man could call a woman a cow in South Africa.

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa today denounced Zimbabwe Rhodesian guerrilla leaders as "arrogant dictators" and made a renewed request for Britain to recognize his black majority government.

The Zimbabwe Rhodesian prime minister, speaking to reporters during a recess in talks toward a new constitution for his embattled southern African nation, said British support of his administration was a vital element in its success.

"The answers are to be found in the hearts and souls of the British people who believe, as do the people of Zimbabwe Rhodesia, in true liberty and freedom," said Muzorewa, head of the country's biracial government.

"It is entirely a question of whether courage rather than fear will carry the day . . . (of whether) peace rather than terrorism will be supported," he said.

Muzorewa had asked for a postponement of the morning session of the British-sponsored talks so he and his delegation could study Britain's new constitution for the war-torn African country.

Lord Carrington, the British foreign secretary who is chairman of the conference, granted the request. The conference was scheduled to reconvene this afternoon.

Carrington delivered the British proposals to Muzorewa, the head of Zimbabwe Rhodesia's biracial government, and guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe Wednesday after the three black leaders agreed to a revised compromise agenda.

MUZOREWA

The proposals were not made public, but officials said they called for drastic curtailment of the special rights granted Zimbabwe Rhodesia's white minority

The revised agenda was a compromise between the British and Muzorewa's delegation on one side and the guerrillas on the other. It was also a setback, but an expected one, for Muzorewa and Smith.

The guerrilla leaders agreed that the conference would first work out the terms of a new constitution, as demanded by Britain. And the British and Muzorewa's delegation agreed that after the constitutional issues were settled, the conference would take up Nkomo's and Mugabe's demands for a transitional government controlled by them.

Hannibal buffs wheel jumbos past policemen

Times News Services

BRAMANS, France — An American explorer, a 65-year-old businessman and a former French nightclub dancer, who are attempting to emulate Hannibal by crossing the Alps on elephants, had to take to wheels when police refused to allow the animals to travel by road.

The explorer Jack Wheeler, businessman Sam Oshin and Jacqueline Vial, Wheeler's fiancee who was born and raised in an Alpine village a few miles from Hannibal's alleged route, were making good progress on up the valley of the Maurienne River on Tuesday using mule-tracks when they came to the busy main road.

French police refused to allow the elephants onto the road for fear they would be frightened by the traffic and run amok.

So the animals, which were rented from an Italian circus, had to be loaded onto a truck and driven to Bramans late Tuesday, ready for the assault on the 2,200-metre Col du Petit Mont-Cenis today.

If the three succeed, they will be the first persons to make the journey with pachyderms since Hannibal led 46,000 Carthaginian warriors and 37 elephants over precarious footpaths above the 8,000-foot mark to attack Rome in the second Punic War in 218 B.C.

Strike causes chaos in Italy

ROME (Reuter) — A national 24-hour strike by about 3.5 million state employees brought chaos to Italy today.

Government offices, post offices and rail stations were closed as part of the action to back workers' demands for inflation-linked pay raises.

The stoppage hit trains Wednesday night, and only a few confused tourists, apparently oblivious to the strike call, wandered through deserted stations.

The action was called by Italy's giant Communist-run Trade Union Confederation.

Coal men seek 65% pay hikes

LONDON (AP) — Britain's 250,000 coal miners announced today they are seeking pay increases of up to 65 per cent.

In March they won a 15-per-cent increase, raising pay for underground workers to £85 ($221) week.

Terrorists kill banker

MADRID (AP) — Terrorists shot to death a bank president on his doorstep in Spain's troubled Basque region today and fatally wounded a second victim just across the Spanish-French border.

Police said Modesto Carriega Perez, 47, head of a branch bank in a Bilbao suburb, was kidnapped by Basque separatists in January but later freed unharmed after his family paid a $150,000 ransom.

The city of Victoria was ordered by the B.C. Supreme Court Wednesday to obey a board of variance ruling and issue a building permit to a developer who wants to build a Burger King restaurant in the 800-block Yates on the site of the razed National Motors property.

Referring to the city's public hearing tonight on a rezoning bylaw to specifically exclude fast-food outlets from all zones except one designated for them, Mr. Justice Thomas Berger said there was no intention to do this before developer Robert Philipchalk applied for a building permit.

"This is tantamount to an attempt by the city to call time out and move the goalposts before the contest gets under way again," he said.

As well, the city's move came after Philipchalk's successful appeal to the board of variance which ruled that the city's interpretation of the zoning bylaw, to exclude fast-food outlets at that site, was unsound.

Council decided Aug 23 to appeal the board of variance ruling to county court, withheld a building permit from Philipchalk pending the outcome, and introduced a new bylaw which would effectively defeat the claim for a building permit, said Berger.

Reviewing Philipchalk's application for a court order compelling the city to issue the building permit under the existing bylaw, Berger said the building inspector had refused one because city officials took the position that a fast-food outlet was not a use allowed under the zoning.

The board of variance reversed the city's interpretation. In the normal course of business, said Berger, a building permit would then be issued.

The city decided to exercise its right of appeal to county court but also sought to prevent the building permit being issued pending the appeal. Council also decided to change the zoning to remove any doubt about its meaning and specifically to exclude construction of fast-food outlets.

"The city did not have the power, in my view, under the Municipal Act, to withhold a building permit from Mr. Philipchalk pending the determination of the city's appeal to the county court," he said.

Berger said the building inspector is bound by the ruling of the board of variance to issue the building permit.

Referring to the fact that the site contains four lots, and under the zoning bylaw this must be consolidated into one lot, Berger said the city has approved a consolidation plan but the owner of the property won't agree to consolidate until a building permit is issued.

This, said Berger, is a matter which the city may be entitled to bring up in its county court appeal, expected to be heard next week.

Berger emphasized that his order for issuance of a building permit should not be construed as to the merits of the city's appeal to county court.

It was up to the county court to decide if the true interprepation of the bylaw is the city's or Philipchalk's, he said. Berger's decision was only that the city did not exercise any power it may have to withhold the building permit Philipchalk won with the board of variance ruling.

Philipchalk's lawyer, Alan Patterson, said the effect of two zoning bylaws to be considered by council tonight would wipe out the right to build a Burger King restaurant. If a court order was not issued, then Philipchalk's victory before the board of variance would be empty.

He said there is only one prohibited use under the present zoning and that doesn't involve a fast-food outlet.

City solicitor Jacob de Villiers argued that if the Supreme Court granted the order for a building permit it would in effect usurp the function of the county court in the city's appeal, a point on which Berger did not agree, saying he was not dealing with the merits of that issue but rather Philipchalk's rights under the board of variance ruling.

He also argued that where a municipality has created a special zone for a single use, such as fast-food outlets, it has excluded that use for other zones, that the property has not been consolidated and this must be done before a building permit can be granted. Granting the order would have the effect of thwarting the city's policy of one zone for fast-food outlets.

Patterson said the registered owner of the property — Philipchalk holds a 20-year option to lease it — does not want to consolidate the property unless there is a reasonable assurance it will proceed. With that done, he said, the consolidated plan approved by the city can be registered almost immediately.

Carcinogen feared in pool

KEMANO (CP) — Union officials in this small coastal community say people who use the community's indoor pool are being exposed to cancer-causing asbestos fibres.

The asbestos is contained in the pool's lining, which was installed 10 years ago before researchers identified asbestos as a carcinogen, said Wiho Patenbrock, business agent for the Canadian Association of Smelter and Allied Workers.

Alcan Smelters and Chemicals Ltd., the major employer in the town and builders of the pool, said samples taken from the pool are well within standards set by the Workers' Compensation Board.

However, Patenbrock said any exposure to asbestos is too much.

He said cancer caused by asbestos may take 15 to 20 years to develop and because of this the union wants Alcan to keep medical records for "any one who has ever been in that pool."

Patenbrock said Alcan has given the union the final report on test samples, but not the data on which the report was based. The union wants the compensation board's industrial hygiene branch to take samples from the pool.

"We've accepted minimum standards for exposure because they are the law," Patenbrock said. "But we are not happy about it."

A company official said there are plans to replace the lining, but he would not say when the job might be done. In the meantime, the company will continue to report the results of its monitoring to the compensation board.

Curbs eased

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Tuesday to lift all U.S. restrictions on economic assistance to Uganda but to keep sanctions against military aid in place. The foreign assistance restrictions had been put in place as a protest against the regime of Idi Amin who has since been deposed.

Carol Channing and Judy Garland? No, it's Craig Russell captivating Victoria

The city was totally his, hand-delivered by 1,500

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

According to the Vancouver impressario handling his West Coast appearances, Craig Russell was eager to pay his originally unscheduled first visit to Victoria.

So eager that he voluntarily sliced his usual $5,000 concert fee when it was pointed out that the Royal Theatre's approximate 1,500 seat capacity made it financially impossible to put him there.

"Victoria is the most beautiful city in the world. I know — I've seen them all," he told a wildly applauding, near-capacity audience Wednesday.

For that audience, Victoria was totally his before the evening was over — gift wrapped and hand delivered in a standing ovation.

Female impersonators — good ones — are rare and Russell is the rarest of the breed. His natural endowment of a graceful compact body and a splendid voice with a great range, from natural baritone to full-throated soprano, is matched by humor, a lively wit and keen powers of observation.

He has taken the measure of each of the dozen or so ladies he brings to the stage, echoing and magnifying, sometimes in broad lines and sometimes with subtlty, their personalities and styles.

A brief look at Barbra Streisand did not quite achieve that exceptional voice and edgy personality but his Janis Joplin was sheer witchcraft.

Even so it was not as emotionally evocative nor as magical as was his Judy Garland which brought a sudden hush to the vocally demonstrative audience.

Bryant turns her back to the mike, off comes the coifed dark wig, the mother-hubbard robe is dropped and Judy is there, complete from short rough hair and brief black costume to shapely legs and frenetic hyped personality.

But the brilliance and vitality of the star, the speed of his in-the-wings changes (to a running accompaniment of one-line quips and comments) from one glamorous costume and wig to another compensated for the initial wait.

According to reports, the Vancouver performance was distinctly risque and blue-tinged most of the way. Did Russell clean up his act for Victoria?

Whatever, that was not the impression it made here. Sexy, even mildly raunchy at moments but never to an extent that was in bad taste.

BCBC, union resume bargaining

The B.C. Buildings Corporation and the B.C. Government Employees Union started talks again today after the union served strike notice.

Union leaders warned Wednesday that strike action would begin at midnight Monday but said that they were willing to resume negotiations on an around-the-clock basis if necessary.

But union spokesman Ken Robinson said today the BCGEU is proceeding with strike plans.

The 1,150 members of the BCGEU could shut down all government operations, including courthouses and the legislature.

But Robinson says the union will have a selective strike policy, hitting only corporation locations.

Meanwhile, the BCGEU is proceeding with a strike vote for its 360 B.C. Systems Corporation members.

A vote was held Wednesday night in Victoria and Vancouver employees will vote tonight. Results will not be known until Sunday.

A mediator was appointed to that dispute earlier in the week but no talks have yet been scheduled.

Both the BCBC and BCSC disputes centre on management proposals to remove provisions from existing contracts.

Meanwhile, talks are continuing in the ferry dispute and one union spokesman said they are progressing well.

Let's assume you're a defender and your partner chooses a method of defense you don't understand. Even so, it's generally wise to cooperate with your partner, whatever he's doing, because he may know something about the hand you don't know. Furthermore, it's psychologically better to humor him — even if only for morale purposes.

Certainly you shouldn't automatically disassociate yourself from partner's method of defense and possibly compound his felony with one of your own.

Getting down to cases, let's suppose you're East, defending against two spades, and your dear partner leads the K-A-Q of hearts, declarer following suit.

Right at this point you may be thinking that you'd prefer a diamond shift to anything else, though you could stand a club lead if West thought that was best. But, much to your surprise, West plays the nine of hearts.

Declarer discards a diamond from dummy and thus dashes your hope of taking a diamond trick later on. West's heart play may strike you as very strange indeed, since somewhere along the line he must have been told not to give declarer a ruff and discard.

However, you should take the play in stride and try to figure out what your devious partner is up to. It would surely be wrong to discard on the nine of hearts, which you might feel inclined to do if you assumed that partner had suddenly taken leave of his senses.

Clearly the proper thing to do is to ruff the nine of hearts with your queen of spades, because partner presumably wants you to ruff high in order to promote his trump holding. If you do this, the contract goes down one; if you don't South makes the contract.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, September 14
By Sydney Omarr

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on dialogue with appraiser, older family member, ability to build with quality material and with an eye to security. Member of opposite sex, perhaps a Gemini, could provide inspiration. The changes will benefit you—go to it!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Study Aries message for valuable hint. Accent on ideas, short journeys, news of a relative who is to change residence. Someone is trying to impart confidential information—be receptive and discreet. A family reunion is on tap.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Recent contact will lead to financial gain. Read Aries and Taurus messages for additional guidance. Steer away from wishful thinking; see situations and people as they are, not merely as you wish they might be. Define terms, streamline procedures.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be aware of potential. Highlight confidence, responsibility and production. Capricorn native—and the number 8—figure prominently. Lunar cycle is such that you can call your own shots. You learn where you stand in business—and love.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You get what you want, although it is not necessarily what you need. Aries, Libra persons figure in scenario. You receive accolade which was due some time ago. Professional group, organization grants unique recognition for your efforts.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You are free from restriction, burden. Encourage new associations, friendships. Get to heart of matters, especially where love is concerned. Leo is very much a part of your personal scenario. Highlight optimism, enthusiasm, original approach.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You receive "surprise" backing from one in authority. Cancer, Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. Teach, learn, follow through on hunch. Give free rein to intellectual curiosity. Goal is closer than you currently anticipate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Expand horizons; pursue educational project. Be "receptive" to spiritual enlightenment. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius natives figure prominently. Long-range view is constructive—and essential. Journey is being planned. Check your luggage!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Dig beneath layers of superficiality. You are due to hit pay dirt. Know it, be confident. Check money situation with partner, mate. Be aware of lease requirements, legal ramifications. Powerful exchange of emotions occurs—you and a Scorpio could be involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Messages, calls "fly" back-and-forth; you have chance to solidify transaction, to get legal stamp of approval. If single, your marital status could become a major topic of discussion. Married or single, a partnership proposal could figure prominently.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be diplomatic, maintain moderate pace, make concessions in domestic arena. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio natives figure in scenario. Accent on health, dependents, special services and employment. Don't veer too far from routine or familiar ground.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20: Deal with factual data—emotions should not be permitted to choke out logic. Member of opposite sex wants an accounting—and is probably correct. Take nothing for granted. Get views, feelings on the record. Another Pisces could play prominent role.

IF SEPTEMBER 14 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are perceptive, restless, a natural psychologist and character analyst. In October, you can expect greater freedom of thought, action. Relationship intensifies. If single, you could marry. If married, theire might be an addition to family. Married or single, there will be a major domestic adjustment in November. You are active, attractive and capable of loving more than one person simultaneously. You write, travel and have "serious" flirtation in October.

The Lord is my Shepherd
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He leadeth me beside the still waters
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

Try raised vegetable bed

GARDENING

Jack Beastall

Home gardeners having a fairly heavy textured soil which holds moisture late into spring might consider preparing a raised bed for the sowing of early hardy vegetables.

First to consider is where the bed can be placed and how it will fit into next year's cropping plans; then what crops might be suitable for such a bed.

Since the main purpose is to have a piece of soil suitable for sowing seed in April, the bed should be in sheltered spot open to spring sunshine. A fence, building, or just shrub plantings will usually provide sufficient protection on the north and east sides.

If a pocket of soil on the south side of the residence is available with part of the building projecting a short way on the east side, it would make a perfect heat trap. Lacking a projection of the building, a screen of plastic or wood could be constructed.

When the bed is part of the vegetable garden its existence has to be included in the over-all plan. Being raised above the level of the surrounding soil it is only good for early spring crops.

Early sowings usually consist of an early variety of round-seeded peas, lettuce, spinach, and an early short carrot. Whatever vegetables are used they have to be part of the over-all plan and not conflict with the later sowings on level ground.

The size of the raised bed depends on how long the soil normally remains too wet for working, and on the amount of seed the gardener feels it is necessary to sow.

The actual preparation is simple, but it involves some digging which must be done while the clay soil is dry otherwise its texture will be ruined for a complete season. A lot of gardeners have tried to make such a bed in March only to discover the surface bakes hard as soon as the water drains away. That is the reason for doing the job in September as soon as a suitable spot becomcs vacant.

Having decided on the size of the bed, use four stakes to mark the corners, then roughly dig the enclosed area and incorporate plenty of humus in the form of manure, compost, or mushroom compost.

To improve the drainage a trench is dug the width of the spade all around the bed and the soil thrown on top of the bed area to increasse its height.

When digging this trench be careful not to bring up heavy clay; only go as deep as the soil has been previously worked. Another light digging over the surface will mix the trench soil with the composted soil. The surface is left rough for the present.

During February we usually have seven to 10 days of good weather when gardeners get their first attack of spring gardening fever. This is the time to cover the bed with plastic sheeting or to place on it a portable coldrame with glass covers to trap the heat and dry out the surface soil.

In fact, a portable coldrame could be put in place as soon as the bed is ready and used immediately for short carrots, transplants of winter lettuce, Chinese radish, spinach, and corn salad. These would give a supply until the new year.

Fast heist nets huge jewel haul

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two robbers executed a daring parking-lot jewel theft at a surburban post office Monday, netting an estimated $1.5 million for a few seconds work, police said. It was the third major jewelry robbery in the Los Angeles area in the last three weeks.

Detectives were searching for two men in their 30s who grabbed a valise full gems from jewelry salesman Robert Daly, 50, as he was placing mail in the trunk of his car.

Police said they have no suspects.

Morris appointed in union dispute

The Canadian Labor Congress has appointed Joe Morris, former president of the national labor body, as an intermediary in a jurisdictional battle between B.C. building trades unions and the International Woodworkers of America.

The trades met earlier this year with CLC president Dennis McDermott and asked the congress to intervene in the long-standing dispute.

Roy Gautier, president of the B.C. and Yukon Building and Construction Trades Council, said today he is pleased with the appointment.

"We would have hoped that they would have moved sooner but we are happy with the decision."

Gautier said meetings with Morris still have to be arranged.

Morris's appointment is the latest development in what is becoming a heated battle between the two large labor groups.

At Port Alberni, the IWA members are working on a major mill reconstruction project of MacMillan Bloedel. Munro said last week a representative of the building trades took four of the IWA workers to lunch and warned them that "if they don't stop working, their cards would be pulled and they would be fined $5,000 apiece. Two quit while the other two carried on."

There are about 1,000 IWA members who work in the construction of sawmills, work the building trades feel belongs to them.

The resulting battle has led to the shutdown of the massive Duke Point industrial site near Nanaimo.

Munro also charged that a babysitter of a Port Alberni IWA member was told that if the worker didn't get off the job "your house may get burned down and you (the babysitter) may get raped."

Gautier said today he didn't want to comment on Munro's charges.

He said a meeting on the jurisdictional dispute was held Wednesday with Don Munroe, chairman of the Labor Relations Board, but he declined to give any details about what transpired.

John Schibli, secretary-treasurer of the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council, said if the threats in Port Alberni were made as Munro charged, they certainly didn't come from the unions.

"We don't encourage that kind of thing," Schibli said.

"We constantly stress that we have no argument with the workers."

The disagreement is between the leadership of the two labor bodies, he said.

There may be some tough "beer parlor talk" on the issue on an individual basis, he added, because unemployed building tradesmen get angry when they see IWA people doing work they feel belongs to them.

Schibli said in his 38 years in the construction industry he has never heard of a provision for fining a worker as much as $5,000.

Oak Bay Manor sells for $7.9M

The government-backed Glendale Lodge Society has bought Oak Bay Manor on Cadboro Bay Road for $7.9 million from the N.B. Cook Corp. of Vancouver.

The official takeover will take place Oct. 15.

As all society directors are appointed by the provincial government, the purchase of the long-term care facility means the government has gained control.

The society already operates the 300-bed Glendale Lodge and the 152-bed Tillicum Lodge, as well as several group homes in the Blenkinsop area.

Ralfs said the society will apply soon to increase the number of long-term care beds from its present 150, despite the fact previous owners were rebuffed whenever they tried.

N.B. Cook Corp., headed by Vancouver lawyer Neil Cook, had had its problems with the manor.

Last May, after an investigation of the institution's operation and management, the ministry cancelled the long-term care licence of the facility, which was originally built in 1972 as a luxury retirement home.

What was not generally known at the time was that the province had few places in which to relocate the patients, and many patients did not want to leave the manor.

The manor's licence was reinstated on appeal while negotiations between the operators and the province continued.

Doors closed on tanks talk

The Capital Regional District's oil tanks relocation committee met behind closed door today with representatives of three oil companies to discuss plans to relocate the Inner Harbor tank farm.

The committee, chaired by Oak Bay director Shirley Dowell, decided to go in camera at the request of oil companies' spokesman Dennis Knights, of Gulf Canada Ltd.

Knights said the oil companies had agreed to meet with the committee on the understanding it would be held in private.

He said if reporters were present, he and the other representatives would be unable to speak as freely as they would like.

"It would have a bearing on our ability to carry out our plans over the next 30 days," he said.

Absent were Victoria director Bob Wright, Salt Spring Island director Mike Clement, Colwood director Howard Drummond and Central Saanich director Dave Hill.

The meeting was in contravention of the regional district's procedural bylaw which requires a quorum.

The bylaw also states that if no quorum is reached after 15 minutes, the secretary shall take the names of those present and the meeting adjourned.

At the suggestion of Dowell in August, Gulf Canada Ltd. Shell Canada Ltd. and Chevron agreed to carry out a study on the feasibility of relocating the tanks underground.

R. H. Duke, operations manager of Shell Canada Ltd. in Vancouver, said then the companies were still considering the Plumper Bay site in View Royal as one of the options for relocation.

Bennett denies hand in party 'hatchet job'

Premier Bill Bennett has denied allegations that the Social Credit Party is being manipulated by members of his administration but he refuses to discuss the firing of a top party executive.

John Gilchrist, one of 12 elected members of the party's provincial board, claims he was forced to resign as executive director last June to make way for Hugh Harris, Bennett's personal campaign manager.

Gilchrist said Harris, a friend of the premier, was appointed on orders from Victoria to act as a "hatchet man."

Bennett refused Wednesday to discuss the circumstances surrounding that appointment or Gilchrist's departure.

"I don't want to get into a discussion of how the party hires and fires," he said.

However, Bennett said that because of his role as Socred leader, he has a responsibility to ensure that the party is run effectively.

Party president Les Keen, the man who asked Gilchrist to step down, said that following the last provincial election, party officials decided they needed a new executive director with "greater credentials" than Gilchrist.

Bennett said he sees no sign of unhappiness among party members.

"One person concerned in a membership of 100,000" is hardly proof of major unrest, he said. "The grass roots are running the party."

Gilchrist said today, however, that if Bennett feels it is an isolated case then he is being naive.

The fired director said he has received many calls of support in the past two days from people who agree with him.

Meanwhile, Gilchrist said Wednesday he will seek the party presidency at the Social Credit convention Nov. 1-3.

"I have to seek the highest office in the party because I'm extremely concerned with the way the party is going," Gilchrist said.

Alarm triggers judge's humor

The alarm went off at 10.06 a.m. forcing about 150 people, including judges still wearing their judicial robes, lawyers, jurors, police and prisoners and clerical personnel to leave the building.

Firemen checked the building, determined there was no fire and allowed everyone back in at 10.20 a.m.

The best line came from a judge hearing a summation during a jury trial.

He asked the lawyer if his "electrifying summation" had triggered the alarm.

Douglas China bound

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tommy Douglas, former leader of the federal New Democratic Party, leads a 19-member delegation leaving Friday for the People's Republic of China.

Douglas said in a news release that the delegation is composed of federal and provincial politicians, union officials and business representatives.

He said the delegation wants to encourage increased trade between Canada and China, specifically increased sales of Canadian wheat, potash and other industrial commodities.

Included in the delegation are Saskatchewan MP Lorne Nystrom (NDP—Yorkville-Melville); Roy Romanow, Saskatchewan's deputy premier; Shirley Carr, vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress; and MP Pauline Jewett (NDP—New Westminster-Coquitlam), her party's external affairs critic.

Conviction quashed, pooch off death row

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rommel, a 130-pound Great Dane accused of killing two calves and biting a young woman, had his death sentence quashed this week when his master won a B.C. Supreme Court action against the provincial government.

Rommel has cooled his heels in a Kamloops kennel for the last two months while his owners, William and Mary Campbell, fought for his life. But when the Campbells lived in Clinton the 3½-year-old dog had a nasty reputation as a killer.

"It was a complete snow job," said Mary Campbell. "He loves animals and we knew it wasn't him that killed the cows."

Rommel's distrust of strangers resulted in four stitches for a 19-year-old girl-friend of Campbell's daughter when he bit her two years ago. She made the mistake of walking alone into the Campbell's living room.

Clinton's game warden twice accused Rommel of killing calves in the area. The first incident, in November, 1976, proved a bum rap and the warden was forced to apologize.

Then in March, 1978, he levelled the accusation again and got a provincial court order for Rommel's destruction under the Domestic Animal Protection Act.

Poison ban blamed

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A recently-lifted moratorium on the poisoning of wolves and coyotes is responsible for a sharp increase in the number of livestock losses to predators this year, says an official of the British Columbia environment ministry.

"One reason for the increase is that fish and wildlife staff have been unable to use poison during the moratorium," said Tony Stark, the ministry's policy co-ordinator, said.

Accused held victim's hand

VANCOUVER (CP) — A California woman accused of murdering her former husband held his hand as he lay dying from gunshot wounds and told him she loved him, an assize court jury was told Wednesday.

Hotel bellman Henry Chan said he entered the room and saw a man lying on his back on the bed. Chan said a woman was seated on the side of the bed and she held the man's hand.

The witness identified the woman as Mrs. Hutchinson and told the jury she said: "I didn't mean to shoot you. Please don't die. I love you."

Prosecutor Donald Sorochan has alleged that Mrs. Hutchinson, caught up in a love triangle, deliberately planned the shooting of her former husband because she was distressed at his new relationship with Monique Garus, 38, of Richmond.

The jury and Justice D.E. Andrews were told that Mrs. Hutchinson travelled to Vancouver from California on the day of the shooting, enticed her former husband and Garus to the hotel and fired the fatal shots as the younger woman looked on.

Pacts imposed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Labor Relations Board has imposed labor contracts at three Sandman Inns ending a 2½-year battle between management and the Hotel, Restaurant and Culinary Employees and Bartenders Union.

The board agreed to impose the first contracts on Sandman Inns in Cranbrook, Revelstoke and Kelowna under provisions of the Labor Code.

Test sidestepped

RICHMOND (CP) — A long-awaited test of the validity of the British Columbia Family Relations Act was sidestepped in family court here Wednesday.

The case — a dispute between a husband and wife — involved payment of child support. But it was adjourned suddenly when lawyers for both parties announced an out-of-court settlement had been reached.

Appeal upheld

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A British Columbia Supreme Court judge has upheld an appeal against a decision that would have raised a juvenile to adult court on a charge of arson in the $2-million fire at a local high school last New Year's Day.

Mr. Justice Samuel Toy overruled provincial court Judge George Stewart who had ordered the 17-year-old juvenile to face charges in adult court.

In making his decision Wednesday, Mr. Justice Toy noted that five independent witnesses, including psychiatrists, social workers and probation officers had recommended that the youth not be raised to adult court.

Gas rush escalates

As more and more people in the Greater Vancouver area recognize the relatively low cost of natural gas, compared with heating oil, they are rushing to get old oil burners replaced with new gas burners, says an official with British Columbia Hydro's gas division.

W. A. Pevecz, customer services superintendent, estimates about 47,000 homes in the Vancouver area still are using oil for heating.

Explosion kills 11

MANAGUA (AP) — Grenades and other ammunition stored in a military barracks in the town of Chinandega exploded, killing 11 persons and wounding 23, officials of the Sandinista revolutionary government reported Tuesday.

Walkout over food

KITSAULT (CP) — About 125 building tradesmen employed at the Climax Molybdenum mine walked out Wednesday to protest the quality of food served at this northwestern B.C. site.

A spokesman said the workers plan to remain out until National Caterers Ltd. of Vancouver, the company responsible for the food, is replaced. No talks with the company are scheduled, he said.

Extreme brutality nets life

VANCOUVER (UPC) — Two Vancouver men have been sentenced to life and 15 years in prison respectively for their part in what a judge described as a "brutal and extreme" attack on a member of the Canadian Armed Forces.

Richard Andrew (Gypsy) Higgins, 23, has received a life sentence Wednesday for the attempted murder of Pvt. Jacques Lionel Groulx after an apparent drug rip-off. He also received an additional 17 years, to run concurrently, on four other counts.

Victor Rudy (Buck) Sharma, 20, was sentenced to 15 years for attempted murder and a total of 14 years on four other counts, to run concurrently.

The pair were found guilty in June of attempted murder, confinement, wounding and two indecent assaults committed during the incident 14 months ago.

Court was told Groulx was beaten, cut 15 times with a straight razor, forced to commit sex acts on Higgins and Sharma, and then dumped 50 feet onto railway tracks.

Two railway engines passed over Groulx, but he was lying between the tracks and survived.

A third man, Stewart William Grant, 20, also of Vancouver, was sentenced to a total of 10 years for his role in confining, wounding and indecent assault. The judge found Grant was not involved in the attempted murder of Groulx.

Court was told that Groulx approached Higgins outside a Vancouver bar looking to buy hashish. After the pair tried unsuccessfully to buy the drug, Higgins took Groulx to a room where he was tortured.

Key advisory body dumped

Back to bad old days: NDP

The provincial government has decided to eliminate a key government research and advisory body set up to ensure a balanced approach to the management of B.C.'s resources.

The decision to dissolve the Environment and Land Use Commission Secretariat brought a warning today from NDP environment critic Bob Skelly that mining and forestry interests will now be given whatever they want with little thought given to the environment.

The ELUC secretariat includes biologists and other environmental specialists and is the staff arm of ELUC.

The secretariat conducts research and other studies and makes recommendations to ELUC, which is composed of cabinet ministers under the chairmanship of Environment Minister Rafe Mair.

The news that the secretariat is to be chopped came today.

The secretariat's 27 members will be given other jobs within the environment ministry.

Skelly, the MLA for Port Alberni, said he believes the order to eliminate the agency came from Mair.

He said the ELUC secretariat has been critical of recent government decisions, including one to go ahead with the Cheekeye-Dunsmuir hydro transmission line to Vancouver Island.

ELUC and its secretariat were set up in 1973 by the NDP.

Bob Williams, then lands and forests minister, said the ELUC would focus on regional land management and land use problems.

Its mandate called for it to assess land and resource usage, including mining, forestry, agriculture, urban land development, recreation, fishing, hunting and other outdoor activities.

Neither Mair or his deputy were immediately available to comment on the decision to wipe out the secretariat.

Frederic rips into U.S.

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Hurricane Frederic battered the Gulf Coast with torrential rain and winds of up to 210 kilometres per hour today, smashing cars and buildings, snapping power lines and causing extensive flooding before being downgraded to a tropical storm.

At least eight deaths were attributed to the storm and hundreds were injured.

Looting broke out in downtown Mobile and the neighboring town of Prichard in the wake of the worst hurricane in a decade. Armed National Guardsmen were sent in and Prichard police were told to "shoot to kill."

Frederic weakened and was downgraded to a tropical storm as it moved inland across though southeast Mississippi and into Alabama, with top winds of 96 kmh.

At noon EDT, the storm was centred just northeast of Tuscaloosa, Ala. It was moving just east of due north at 32 km/h and was expected to turn to the northeast later.

Alabama Gov. Fob James toured the area by helicopter and said he will ask the White House to declare Mobile and Baldwin counties a disaster area. Damage is estimated at up to $100 million in Florida and $50 million in Mississippi.

Mobile and neighboring Pascagoula, Miss., bore the brunt of the hurricane which first hit land at Dauphin Island, a resort island eight kilometres long that was reported "sliced in half."

Hundreds were injured from flying debris although half a million people had fled coastal areas in advance of the storm. Damage along the coast was enormous. Estimates in Mississippi alone were running into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Large areas along the coast were without power as the savage winds broke lines and poles. A DC-3 aircraft was blown several hundred feet from its parking place at the Mobile airport and left upside down in the middle of a street.

Los Angeles smothers under blanket of smog

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It is not safe to go outside and breathe in Pasadena as some of the worst smog ever to hit the Los Angeles area hangs over the eastern suburbs like a deadly pall.

For the first time in history, air quality officials on Wednesday issued a "hazardous" warning for air over parts of Los Angeles. "Hazardous" is the worst category of smog, and even healthy adults are advised to stay inside.

Wednesday was the sixth straight day of heavy smog over the area, and the siege was expected to continue through the weekend.

To make matters worse, temperatures have been in the 100s, it has been humid, a bus strike has been putting more cars on the freeways and a 2,200-acre brush fire was burning in the hills above Pasadena.

The air quality management district ordered a 20-per-cent reduction in industrial emissions as of midnight Wednesday and urged people to stay off the freeways.

Air quality inspectors said they would rope off company parking lots today to cars with fewer than three occupants.

"The handwriting is on the wall," said a spokesman for the South Coast Air Quality Management District, saying there was no way the region would be spared very heavy smog for the seventh consecutive day.

"It's terrible," said Mary Jean Pew, acting president of Immaculate Heart College. "The students and faculty are gasping.

"One of the faculty members who has emphysema had to go to the doctor to get some stuff, he was having such trouble breathing.

Air pollution officials ordered a 20 percent cutback in emissions by industry beginning at midnight.

Jim Birakos, deputy chief executive officer of the district, issued a "special appeal to make every effort to curtail driving and to share rides as much as possible."

"This is certainly the most intense and severe smog condition we have seen in 10 years," he said, promising to field a full force of inspectors to check smokestacks and parking lots.

Commuters could not turn to buses, however, because the Rapid Transit District — the nation's largest bus system serving four Southern California counties — has been shut down by a strike for 19 days.

"It is just terribly uncomfortable," said high school teacher Edie Jacobson of Altadena, a mountainside suburb over Pasadena, one of the hardest hit areas.

"I try to avoid it and the smog starts controlling my life — where I go and what I do. I get very tired and the children get tired. It appears to me that on smoggy days they don't learn as well, or behave normally."

Ferry swung out too wide

The Queen of Alberni ran aground in Active Pass Aug. 9 because its skipper swung too far to starboard to give another ferry room to get by.

A Transport Canada investigation report released today has found that an error in judgment by Capt. Al Bahry, 51, master of the Alberni caused the ferry to run aground on Collinson Reef in the pass.

But the error by Capt. Bahry, who had been master of the ferry for just two days, did not amount to negligence, the Canadian Coast Guard inquiry report concludes.

Capt. Bahry has not yet received a copy of the inquiry findings. He said he was unable to comment as to whether he would contradict the report or dispute its findings.

Although it was only his second day as master of the Alberni, he has been at sea for 29 years, 13 of them as a deck officer and 10 as master with B.C. Ferries, when he was in command of various ferries between Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen.

The coast guard inquiry also said the presence of fishing vessels in Active Pass was not a factor in the grounding. A separate report on the issue of small boat safety in the pass will be handed down after coast guard officials hold meetings with all interested groups.

The passenger, truck and car ferry was sailing from Tsawwassen to Swartz Bay near Victoria with 96 passengers, a crew of 22, and 74 vehicles on board when she struck the reef at 7:10 a.m. on a calm, sunny day.

All on board were taken to boats and then picked up by the ferry Queen of Tsawwassen, which the Alberni had just passed. No one was injured but damage to the ferry and vehicles aboard her were heavy.

Nine killed in Etna blast

CATANIA, Sicily (AP) — The death toll in Mount Etna's first fatal eruption this century climbed to nine today and rescue workers feared more bodies might still be buried under "rocks as big as houses" near the volcano's summit.

Three more badly dismembered bodies were found near the main crater. Six bodies were recovered after the volcanic explosion Wednesday. All the victims were Italians.

Meanwhile, surgeons performed amputations on a number of injured survivors. More than 20 persons were injured, including tourists from Britain, Spain and Switzerland. At least four were reported in critical condition following emergency surgery.

A rescue official said that if there are more bodies they may never be found "because from what we've seen so far, some victims must literally have been blown to pieces."

Franco Elmi, 35, an alpine guide, said he saw a "huge fireball" land on a Land Rover, leaving vituraly no trace of the vehicle.

"There were about 30 tourists in our group and we all began running toward the bus," he said. "But then another big rock hit a woman who was ahead of me and the next minute she was gone."

Debt interest rates forcing gov't cuts

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Interest payments on the national debt have forced the federal government to put the brakes on spending and may cause increased taxes if a balanced budget is not approached by the mid-1980s, Treasury Board Chairman Sinclair Stevens says.

Stevens, responsible for approving government spending, said if past spending trends had continued the gross national debt would almost double to more than $100 billion by 1983.

The spending deficit for the first four months of the current fiscal year was $5.8 billion, an 11-per-cent increase over the same period last year.

"We can just not pass that kind of a legacy onto our children for years to come," Stevens told a meeting of the Financial Management Institute, an organization of public servants.

"We're carrying on in a fashion that no family could carry on for long in terms of their own spending," he said. "That is why we must set our minds to working towards a balanced budget by the mid-1980s."

One of the cabinet's most outspoken advocates of smaller government, Stevens said "We must put the brakes on spending or cut, literally, the take home pay of every Canadian."

The government is expected to spend about $11 billion more this year than it takes in, about a quarter of its budget. Stevens said that, along with an anticipated $7 billion trade deficit, was the most serious problem facing Canada.

The minister said government expenditures in the past had been greater than predicted because of inaccurate estimates and poor planning. That would no longer be tolerated, he said.

"It still seems that some are not quite willing to accept that there are new boys in town running the show," he told the audience, composed of public servants that are supervised by Stevens' department.

A facility in Prince Rupert to dry grain was a classic example of government waste, he said. The estimated cost when the project started in 1977 was $705,000.

The price had risen since to $3,150,000 and after the

Runaway train kills fifty-three

STALAC, Yugoslavia (AP-UPI) — A freight train ran a red light and crashed broadside into the Belgrade-Skopje express in the Stalac station early today, killing at least 53 passengers and injuring more than 100, officials said.

The freight train roared in from the town of Krusevac, went through the red stop signal and slammed into the passenger train, they said.

High bank rate no cure: Galbraith

VANCOUVER (CP) — Raising bank interest rates to control inflation is "one of the major economic mistakes of our time," economist John Kenneth Galbraith said Wednesday.

Galbraith, here to address a Washington State Bar Association convention, said higher borrowing costs do not affect major inflationary causes — large corporations and unions.

Instead, he said, they merely hurt "little guys" like those in the housing industry and individual consumers.

"All modern governments of the West such as Canada, the United States and Britain are relying excessively on interest rates as a control on inflation," he said. "It has a nice, reassuring, conservative ring to it, seems respectable and can be done through the banks without legislation."

Governments can better control inflation by tightening budgets and raising taxes, particularly on high-priced consumer items, Galbraith said.

In his address to the convention, the Canadian-born professor at Harvard University in Cambridge, Mass., said government intervention in the economy is a concept under attack from "right-wing revival."

He said economic fine-tuning techniques used by governments after the Second World War are no longer as effective because of the increased importance of factors such as control of oil prices by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, more concentrated corporate power and stronger unions.

The answer, Galbraith said, is for more government intervention, not less.

"The prescription for U.S. (and Canadian) problems is a tighter budget, higher taxes on high-income consumer goods, an elementary system of rationing of energy and wage-and-price restraints," he said.

"It isn't possible for a country to survive in the modern world without wage-and-price restraints."

Much of the noise emanating from what appears to be a huge conservative segment of society is merely the voice of the affluent who can afford to go without government services, he said:

AND TO THINK ABOUT:
Victoria is currently experiencing an extremely buoyant real estate market particularly in the residential sector. Shortages and rising prices are widely forecast. New subdivisions are in demand. Apartment vacancy rates are critically low. We, like other commercial realtors in town, are besieged with apartment buyers. To those apartment owners who do not wish to sell, please forgive us if we keep bugging you, but our purchasers and circumstances demand close market surveillance. To those who are contemplating selling, watch out for options, and if you need our help, we are only a telephone call away.
